Landmark destroyed by mammoth blaze

By KEITH A. OWEN
Democrat-Capital Staff Writer

The old Sedalia High School and Central Business College, known more recently as the Banich Building, was destroyed in a spectacle of smoke and flames Friday night. It stood for 79 years at Sixth and Massachusetts.

Firemen received a call from an unidentified person at 10:23 p.m. and remained on the scene throughout the night and during the day Saturday. Only the walls of the mammoth structure were left standing after the blaze.

The building was apparently unoccupied when the fire started and no injuries were reported.

The inferno drew hundreds of onlookers to the scene and some reported the blaze was visible as far as 20 miles away. Smoke hung over the city for several hours as firemen battled the blaze. Shortly after 11 p.m., part of the roof collapsed, allowing flames to rise as high as 50 feet and lighting the surrounding block as if it were mid-day.

Fire Chief Willas Jabas said the fire started in the basement on the south side of the building but declined to theorize on the cause. However, he indicated that the building's furnace was in the basement.

Some reported the blaze was visible from as far as 20 miles away.

State Fire Marshall Robert Morrison, called to the scene by Jabas, completed a preliminary investigation Saturday afternoon and indicated he or a staff investigator would return Monday to continue the inquiry.

Jabas said he contacted Morrison "because I wanted to make sure that we obtained all possible assistance to determine the cause of the fire." Jabas said he does not suspect arson at this time "but we just want to make sure the cause is found."

Jabas reported the loss of an aluminum ladder and several sections of hose when a wall collapsed during the night.

John Banich, 3405 South Park, revealed that he and his brother, Martin, bought the building about six months ago for about $50,000. He said his brother takes care of most of the business affairs concerning the building. A claims adjuster for Yount Insurance Agency said the building was insured for $60,000.

Banich indicated Saturday he has "tentatively" arranged to have the building's shells demolished by the Howard Construction Co. The project, he indicated, would probably not begin until Tuesday.

Banich said there was nothing stored in the building that could have accounted for some reported minor explosions. He theorized that radiators might have developed pressure and blown up.

The building housed a dance studio, three art studios, a printing firm, a church and the Banich brother's firm, Design Devices, manufacturer of electronic rodent repellers.

Douglas Freed, 1100 West Fourth, who teaches art at State Community College and maintained a studio at the building, lost approximately 80 paintings in the fire. He placed no estimate on their value, but added: "I lost four $900 ones alone ... and 10 $600 ones." Freed currently has a one-man showing at the Angerer Gallery in Kansas City's River Quay district. He also has work displayed at the Nelson Gallery and other Kansas City institutions.

"The better things I've done in the last year and a half are all in Kansas City," Freed said. He noted that the loss of the studio is also great from a personal standpoint. "It was a great set-up ... (it) had great light," he added.

Freed, who moved into the building in 1970, said that after years of abuse, the building was finally receiving good care at the hands of the new owners. "These guys had went in and really tried to do something with it," he said.

Freed said it was the second time he'd fallen victim to fire. "As a graduate student, I lost 15 paintings in a fire" at Fort Hayes State College, Hayes, Kan., he stated.

Hal Bernard, Clifton City, said he lost all but two paintings that he's done in the past five years. Bernard said he had mixed media works, paintings, prints and thousands of drawings in his studio.

Charles Moon, co-owner of Pioneer Printing, said his firm lost between $6,000 and $8,000 worth of stock and equipment in the blaze. Moon and a partner, Mike Hawkins, said the main items lost included two presses and two off-set platemakers.

The Rev. W. H. Menasco, pastor of the First Missionary Baptist Mission, said the church had been operating in the building since April of 1970. He estimated the church's loss at around $3,500. Mr. Menasco said church items in the building included a piano, seven pews, two pulpits, several song books and some of the building materials being used to construct a new church at 901 West 24th.

Landmark Blaze

Fallen landmark had many owners

The architectural firm of F. S. Allen, Joliet, Ill., certified the building as complete in 1895 and that fall, the three-story structure saw its first use as the Sedalia High School. It was to have many uses over the years including housing a junior high school, a business college, and later as rental property for a church mission, dance and art studios and a karate school.

In the spring of 1896, 21 students graduated from the Sedalia High School's first class. According to Dr. C. F. Scotten's "History of the Schools of Pettis County," classes continued for grades nine through 12 until the school closed in 1925.

During the school years 1925-31, the building housed the Martha Letts Junior High School, so termed to honor Miss Martha M. Letts, who served as principal. Eighth grade classes also were held at the school.

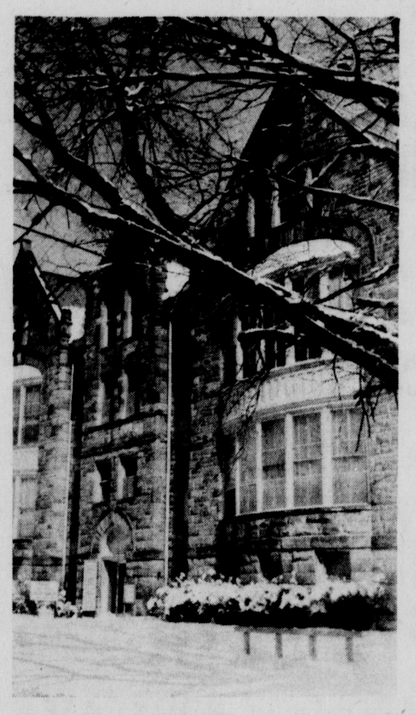

The building was purchased by A. L. Bohling about 1934 and became the Central Business College. That school operated until 1968.

Recent years have seen the building used as a theater for State Fair Community College dramatic productions, a training ground for martial arts aspirants, and most recently, dancing students.

Four artists have been using rooms in the building as studios recently, including perhaps Sedalia's best-known artist, Douglass Freed.

The building was constructed of brick with stone facing and featured gothic arched windows, massive bay windows and high-pointed gables. Rooms in the building were huge, with one as large as 4,200 square feet. As was common practice in past years, the floors of the school had been polished with linseed oil, probably several times a year. This fact added greatly to the building's combustability, fire officials said.

Hostage eludes captors in Venezuelan Consulate

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP) — One of eight hostages held by leftist terrorists in the Venezuelan Consulate escaped by heaving himself through a second-story window Saturday and falling into a rear alley, police sources reported. They said he was rushed to a hospital.

The informants described the escapee as an Oriental.

The reported escape came at midday around the time a Dominican woman hostage said in a telephone interview that the commandos holding the hostages were growing impatient and would kill everone in the building "in a matter of minutes ... of seconds" if the United States and Dominican governments do not quickly meet their demands.

She said the commandos were heavily armed and had set dynamite explosives throughout the building.

But one of the commandos said in another telephone interview his group expected to meet with a group of civilians acting as mediators between them and the Dominican government.

Among the remaining hostages was Barbara Hutchison, 47, director of the U. S. Information Service in Santo Domingo, who was kidnaped by commandos Friday.

The 23-member commando group is demanding $1 million ransom from the U. S. government and the release by the Dominican government of 37 political prisoners.

The foreign minister of Venezuela, Esfrain Schacht, told newsmen in Caracas that he had been informed by the Dominican ambassador that the Dominican Republic would not meet those demands, although it would grant free passage for the 23 commandos out of the country and "nothing more."

Earlier in the day, Miss Hutchison told a Dominican radio station in a taped interview: "My government will not pay anything because it doesn't do so in cases such as mine," meaning diplomatic personnel. "My family also does not have sufficient funds to pay $1 million ransom for me."

She added, "We are well. We haven't slept at all. We hope that everything will be quickly resolved."

Police and troops blocked off the Consulate surrounded by private homes in a middle-toupper-class residential neighborhood.

Pro-life rally supports change

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — It may take up to two years to get an anti-abortion constitutional amendment passed in Congress, says an associate director of a Washington-based group supporting an amendment.

Bill Cox, formerly with the Missouri Catholic Conference in Jefferson City and now association director of the National Committee for Human Life, was the master of ceremonies Saturday at a banquet of a two-day Missouri Citizens for Life conference here.

About 700 persons attended the banquet, which was preceded and followed by films, lectures and panel discussions about abortion by doctors, nurses, theologians, lawyers, educators and lay people.

Pro-life amendments have been introduced in both houses of Congress. A subcommittee of the Senate Judiciary Committee has held hearings for nine months. A subcommittee of the House Judiciary Committee, which was tied up in the impeachment inquiry, has held no hearings.

Cox said the House subcommittee chairman, Rep. Don Edwards, D-Calif., has said he would not call a hearing as long as the majority of his subcommittee supports abortion.

"Our guess is that the Senate subcommittee won't report out the amendment or kill it until after the election," Cox said. "We are urging people to put pressure on their congressmen to get the hearings started. And we're campaigning against those congressmen who favor abortion.

Another Washington lobbying group represented at the conference was the American Citizens Concerned for Life. Its director, Episcopalian priest Warren Schaller, said his organization is setting up a Telex system to inform anti-abortion groups about the progress of congressional action.

Cox told the banquet audience to pay no attention to leaflets passed out at the convention criticizing Sen. Thomas Eagleton, D-Mo., for not sponsoring antiabortion legislation. The leaflets were sponsored by the "Youth Coalition against Abortion."

Cox said he could not find anyone connected with the organization and lauded Eagleton as a strong pro-life supporter.

Eagleton's opponent, Thomas Curtis, had representatives at the convention, as did both state auditor candidates.

Dr. Eugene F. Diamond, professor of pediatrics at Loyola University in Chicago, was the featured speaker and he analyzed the rationale in the medical profession behind abortion and euthanasia.

Euthanasia, he said, used to be defined as a painless death but now is defined as "to cause a good, or painless death."

Despite the strongest arguments for euthanasia, especially with regard to letting deformed or mongoloid infants die, Diamond said, "the physician plays God" in making the decision.

The application of euthanasia on infants and application of abortion, he said, too often varies according to whether the life is consider a valuable life, whether it is from a family of wealth as opposed to one of poverty, or whether the person is a criminal.

"Doctors have become very pragmatic and disassociated with public opinion in this area," he said.

Diamond said 5,000 children with Down's syndrome, or mongoloids, were born in 1973. He criticized doctors and nurses who encourage mothers to avoid physical contact with such infants, and said that even if the parents don't want them, the cost of institutionalizing them is only one-tenth the cost that is spent nationally on dog food.

Representatives of Doctors for Life and Nurses for Life encouraged setting up of speakers' bureaus and refusal to participate in abortions.

A representative of Lawyers for Life encouraged lawyers to provide legal assistance without charge in adoption proceedings.

Committee seeking welfare legislation

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The federal government should take over funding of the Aid to Dependent Children program and strong welfare fraud legislation should be passed, a Missouri Senate committee has recommended.

The committee, chaired by Sen. Robert A. Young, D-St. Ann, conducted hearings this summer and will file its report Tuesday with the Senate secretary.

Reduction of paperwork for welfare workers, giving more independence to county welfare offices and better treatment for welfare clients were in the recommendations released by the Senate information office.

Similar recommendations were made earlier by a House committee investigating welfare.

Also on the Senate committee are Democrats Raymond Howard of St. Louis, Mary Gant of Kansas City, Ike Skelton of Lexington, and Republicans Richard Webster of Carthage, Paul Bradshaw of Springfield and Emory Melton of Cassville.

Many of the recommendations, such as setting up of a fraud squad, were endorsed by Lawrence Graham, new director of the Social Services Department under reorganization of Missouri state government.

"It seems to me, after these hearings, that our legislature should be reviewing big programs like this on an annual basis to make sure we're getting value received for our tax dollars," Young said.

Incumbent candidates seem to be main Watergate beneficiaries

The Judge: John J. Sirica, is widely credited with insuring that the investigation of the Watergate scandals penetrated the higher levels of the Nixon administration. At age 70, he could have chosen to become a senior judge with fewer and less important cases to try. Instead, he took on the biggest and most complex of the Watergate prosecutions.

Named "Man of the Year" by Time magazine in 1973 for his early Watergate role, Sirica is the son of an Italian immigrant who settled his family in Washington after several years of traveling as an unsuccessful businessman in five states.

Defendants in the case tried unsuccessfully to disqualify Sirica for showing what they saw as a bias toward the prosecution.

THE DEFENDANTS

Harry Robbins "Bob" Haldeman — Efficiency was the watchword under Haldeman who, as White House chief of staff, was the second most powerful man in the Nixon administration. A call from the man with the crew-cut was feared by lesser governmental officials wary of his brusque brand of leadership. Since resigning from the White House April 30, 1973, Haldeman, 47, has kept quiet about his Watergate role. His crew-cut has been replaced by an almost-mod, longer haircut.

Haldeman has returned to his native California, where he first worked for Nixon in 1956 as advance man in the vice presidential campaign.

John D. Ehrlichman — A classmate of Haldeman at the University of Southern California. Returned to his native Washington state to practice law, later setting up his own prosperous practice dealing mostly with land use questions. At Haldeman's behest, did advance work on Nixon's 1960 race for the White House. Played a key role in planning Nixon's schedule in the 1972 campaign, and signed on in the first Nixon administration as White House counsel.

Within two years, Ehrlichman, 49, was named chief White House domestic affairs adviser, outranked only by Haldeman and Nixon in the White House pecking order.

John N. Mitchell — First knew Nixon as a partner in a New York law firm. Became a principal political adviser to Nixon in the 1968 presidential campaign and was named attorney general in 1969. He resigned March 1, 1972, to head Nixon's re-election campaign, although former aides have said he made many important campaign decisions while still in the Justice Department. Within three weeks of the 1972 break-in at Democractic National Committee headquarters, Mitchell resigned from the reelection committee, insisting he was needed by his volatile wife Martha, from whom he separated a year ago.

Robert C. Mardian — A family partner in a Phoenix, Ariz., building firm, Mardian headed the Justice Department's Internal Security Division for two years until, in May 1972, he was named a political coordinator in the 1972 Nixon re-election committee. A lawyer and political conservative, Mardian has testified about his shock upon learning that persons employed by the committee were involved in the original Watergate break-in. A bespectacled, almost scholarly looking man, Mardian will celebrate his 51st birthday 13 days after the trial begins.

Gordon Strachan — Drawn to the first Nixon administration as a young lawyer who had worked for two years in the same New York law firm where Richard M. Nixon and John N. Mitchell were partners. Initially a personal White House assistant to Haldeman, Strachan became Haldeman's contact with the Nixon re-election committee as the 1972 election approached. He is described by old friends as having been a brilliant student at the University of Southern California. While Strachan worked for Nixon and Mitchell in New York, his wife Christine was hired as an attorney for another pretigious law firm.

Kenneth W. Parkinson — A native of Washington, the 46-year-old Parkinson was active for years in District of Columbia affairs. Once a law clerk in the same U.S. District Courthouse where he will stand trial, he allegedly was drawn into a cover-up as a result of a civil suit filed by the Democrats over the original break-in.

THE PROSECUTORS

James F. Neal — While working under the late Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy, Neal sent Teamsters boss James R. Hoffa to prison. Neal, 45, was a special assistant to Kennedy in the early 1960s when he conducted the prosecution of Hoffa on jury-tampering charges. Until 1966, when he returned to private law practice in Nashville, Tenn., Neal was the U.S. attorney for the middle district of Tennessee.

Richard Ben-Veniste — Although relatively young at 31, Ben-Veniste already had compiled a reputation as a tough-minded prosecutor before joining the special prosecutor's staff.

When former special prosecutor Archibald Cox was fired, Ben-Veniste taped a sign to his door which said, "No more Mr. Nice Guy." Ben-Veniste, is a short, wiry New York City native, who worked for five years as an assistant U.S. attorney there.

Jill Wine Volner — An attractive blonde, Mrs. Volner, 31, has established her reputation as a capable and probing lawyer on the special prosecutor's staff. But when she drew the task of cross-examining Richard M. Nixon's secretary, Rose Mary Woods, in court last November, she was nevertheless forced to declare the assignment had nothing to do with sex.

Asked once if she wore miniskirts to draw attention to her figure in the courtroom, she sternly replied: "Absolutely not. I am a little sensitive about comments about my clothing. I am a lawyer in the courtroom. My hemline is irrelevant. The question is — do I ask good questions?"

Over one million lost in robbery

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Three men armed with revolvers and wearing Halloween masks robbed a downtown bank stocked with cash from gambling casinos of more than $1 million, authorities said.

Police said the men, wearing aqua-colored overalls and of medium build, disappeared after leaving their getaway van across the street from the sheriff's office.

"It was a professional job," said Police Chief James Parker. "It obviously was planned very meticulously."

An estimated $1,044,000 was taken.

Parker said the men apparently hid in a downstairs area of the downtown branch of the First National Bank of Nevada until shortly after the 6:30 p.m. closing time Friday.

Then one of the men jammed a weapon into the back of assistant operations officer Mary Kay Bennett and told her, "If you say a word, I'll kill you."

The woman and another employe were taken upstairs and herded into a vault with seven other employes. They were "handcuffed and hog tied" but no one was harmed, police said.

The men scooped cash from the vault into canvas bags before leaving by a back door, authorities said.

Cold water luncheon for food

But instead of veal cordon bleu or chicken Kiev or roast leg of lamb, the menu Friday included Chad Kabob ($6.55), Senegal Souffle ($10.55), Scalloped Sudan ($12.55) and Marinated Mauritania ($4.55). And regardless of what he ordered, each diner got only a glass of cold water.

King's Garden, a local charitable organization, staged the "Cup of Cold Water Luncheon" to raise money for food shipments to famine-stricken nations in Asia and Africa.

About 75 persons attended the luncheon, donating the amount specified for each item on the special menu. Organizers of the affair said donations from major food companies made it possible for each $10 in donations to provide 1,600 meals for starving persons.

WINDSOR — Mrs. Beulah Florence Gladfelter, 76, of Windsor, died Saturday at a Clinton hospital.

She was born March 5, 1898, in Lincoln, daughter of the late George and Sadie Swearngin. On Dec. 23, 1917, in Windsor, she was married to Paul Gladfelter, who survives of the home.

Mrs. Gladfelter was a member of the First Baptist Church here.

Additional survivors include three sons, Kenneth and Lawrence Gladfelter, both of Windsor; Lyle Gladfelter, Clinton; one daughter, Mrs. Doris Lane, Kansas City; one sister, Mrs. Josephine Means, St. Joseph; five grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

Funeral services will be at 3 p.m. Monday at the Hadley Funeral Home here with the Rev. Dr. Melvin M. Hill officiating. Burial will be in Laurel Oak Cemetery, Windsor.

The family will receive friends from 2 to 4 p.m. Sunday at the funeral home.

Mrs. Isabelle Brengarth

She was born Dec. 17, 1891, the daughter of the late Michael and Mary Brummell Felton. She was married in Boonville to Frank Brengarth, who preceded her in death.

Survivors include one son, Francis Brengarth, Wooleridge; four sisters, Mrs. Marguerite Devine, Ashley Manor Nursing Home; Sister Mary Imelda and Sister M. Elfleda Felton, both of Benedictine Convent, Clyde, Mo.; Mrs. Mary F. Zoernig, 236 South Prospect, Sedalia; and five grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at 10 a.m. Tuesday at Sts. Peter and Paul Church here.

Burial will be in the Catholic cemetery here.

U.S. Senators to negotiate with Castro

HAVANA, Cuba (AP) — Sen. Jacob Javits said Saturday he wants to ask Prime Minister Fidel Castro "what's in it for us" if the United States and Cuba restore diplomatic relations after a 13-year break.

Javits, R.-N.Y., and Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., meet with Castro on Sunday, and Javits said he expects the session to go far beyond mere pleasantries.

Javits and Pell, members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, arrived Friday in Havana for a four-day fact-finding visit.

"We are here to look, listen and bring back to our colleagues whatever information we can," Javits said on arrival.

They got a low key reception at the airport, but had a sumptuous dinner, then toured a Havana department store.

Public Health Minister Jose Gutierrez Muniz briefed them.

The senators said they were impressed by the advances Cuba has made in health care since the 1959 revolution.

"What they have done here is truly remarkable considering where they were 15 years ago," Javits said.

Pell suggested the possibility of future U.S.-Cuban cooperation in the health field, but said their talks with Gutierrez touched on this only indirectly.

The senators were the first members of Congress to visit Cuba since diplomatic relations were severed with the Communist-led Caribbean nation in 1961.

Their plane and a chartered plane carrying 29 journalists were the first U.S. aircraft to land in Cuba since 1961, aside from refugee flights and the more than 80 commercial airliners hijacked to Havana.

The arrival also marked the first time since 1961 that American newsmen were admitted to Cuba as a group.

Kissinger testifies on bugging conflict

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Henry Kissinger has testified that the late J. Edgar Hoover fingered the first four individuals wiretapped during a probe of national security leaks in 1969-71.

FBI records show, on the other hand, that requests for wiretaps on all 13 government officials and four newsmen originated outside the FBI.

The conflict was disclosed with the release Saturday of sanitized transcripts of Senate Foreign Relations Committee hearings in July on Kissinger's role in the wiretapping.

The hearings were undertaken at Kissinger's request after publication of excerpts from FBI documents in apparent contradiction of his testimony at his confirmation hearing a year ago that he did not initiate the wiretaps.

Kissinger, in asking for the review, said he would resign if his name was not cleared.

The committee concluded, on the basis of its review, that Kissinger had not misrepresented his role in the wiretapping and reaffirming its initial finding that it constituted no grounds to bar his confirmation.

The record shows that former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, in an FBI interview May 12, 1973, denied that he ever was asked to approve the wiretaps, yet his purported signature appeared on each of the memoranda concerning the 17 individuals tapped.

James B. Adams, deputy assistant director of the FBI, testified that Mitchell's signature on the documents had been examined by the FBI laboratory division and authenticated.

"So I cannot account for his failure to recollect having approved them because our records show he did in fact approve each one," Adams testified.

Kissinger, in his testimony July 23, 1974, stuck to his often-repeated story — surveillance, including wiretapping, to determine the source of news leaks was decided upon at a 1969 meeting in President Nixon's Oval Office between the President, Mitchell and Hoover.

Kissinger said he was told that wiretapping was necessary "and that I should cooperate by supplying the names of key individuals having access to sensitive information that had leaked."

"There was a discussion of specific individuals, and Mr. Hoover suggested that four persons be put under surveillance in the first instance, three of them people on my staff considered security risks by Mr. Hoover," Kissinger testified. "The fourth was a person the director (Hoover) suspected of (deleted.)"

Kissinger said one of the four identified by Hoover was a journalist and the other three were men Kissinger had hired for the National Security Council staff over the objections of the FBI and his own security officer.

"It was not necessarily the most flattering thing to me to have those three picked out," Kissinger said.

First Lady undergoes surgery for cancer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Betty Ford underwent a 2½-hour operation Saturday for removal of a cancerous right breast. President Ford said the First Lady "came through the operation all right" and doctors said they were optimistic she will fully recover.

The surgery was described as a radical mastectomy, involving removal of the breast, underlying chest muscles and part of the lymph system that extends under the armpit.

Navy. Capt. William Fouty, who headed the three-man surgical team, said the outlook for Mrs. Ford is favorable. "All of the gross tumor was confined to the breast," he said.

When asked whether Mrs. Ford, who is 56, will be able to live out her normal life, Fouty replied: "I would hope that she would."

Mrs. Ford went into the operating room at Bethesda Naval Medical Center at 8:05 a.m. EDT. Surgeons first removed a nodule from the breast, determined that it was malignant and they proceeded with removal of the breast.

Ford, who went to the hospital by helicopter in a driving rain, saw Mrs. Ford as she was wheeled from the operating room.

An hour later, he was addressing delegates at the windup session of his summit conference on the economy, telling them: "Betty would expect me to be here."

"I just returned from the hospital where I saw Betty as she came from the operating room," Ford said. "Dr. (William) Lukash has assured me that she came through the operation all right."

"It's been a difficult 36 hours," the President said. "Our faith will sustain us."

At a briefing for reporters, the doctors said they found no evidence the cancer had spread beyond the breast. A more authoritative judgment should be possible in three or four days after analysis of the removed tissue, they said.

The nodule had been discovered a day earlier in a routine examination.

She had shown "absolutely no symptoms" in two previous examinations, one a year ago and the other seven months ago, according to civilian consultant Dr. J. Richard Thistlethwaite, professor of surgery at the George Washington University Medical School, who was called in on the case.

He and the other doctors said the early detection raised the chances for Mrs. Ford's favorable recovery.

President Ford came to the hospital to be with his wife when she regained consciousness. Afterwards he kept his appointment at the final meeting of the economic summit before returning in the afternoon.

The President's voice shook when he spoke of his wife at the economic meeting, then grew firm again as he turned the topic of business. But when he walked out, said Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., "tears were streaming from his eyes.

"I feel so sorry for him," Humphrey said.

A White House spokesman said the President had curtailed his public schedule for the next few days. Vice President-designate Nelson A. Rockefeller will fill in for him on a planned three-day swing through the West.

Lukash said "Mrs. Ford withstood the surgery very well and the results and procedure was highly satisfactory. I am optimistic that the over-all prognosis will be excellent."

He reported that "throughout this ordeal, Mrs. Ford exhibited an atmosphere of confidence. I thought she demonstrated a kind of inner strength that sustained the First Family, her close staff, and I think the doctors."

Rockefeller still in ranks for approval

WASHINGTON (AP) — Aside from a determination to know more about his immense wealth, a week of Senate hearings has brought out little that could stand in the way of Nelson A. Rockefeller's confirmation as vice president.

Though several outsiders have denounced the former New York governor's pro-abortion stand and his handling of the Attica prison revolt, members of the Senate Rules Committee are hesitating only for an audit of his complex tax returns.

The financial probe means a delay, especially in the House, of weeks. The House Judiciary Committee is planning no formal action until after the November elections.

In the Senate, Homes Rules Committee members are pondering whether to ask Rockefeller to place some of his holdings in a blind trust. So far, no consensus has been reached.

"I am reminded of the biblical observation that it is harder for a rich man to enter the kingdom of heaven than for a camel to pass through the eye of a needle," said Chairman Howard W. Cannon, D-Nev.

Rockefeller already has disclosed that he and his wife have total assets of $64 million and a net worth of $62.5 million.

In addition he is the beneficiary of two trusts holding assets which were valued at $116 million at the end of August.

More than half of Rockefeller's personal assets consist of works of art, a collection that has an estimated market value of $33.5 million.

Courts return to work

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court, its historic confrontation with Richard M. Nixon's White House behind it, returns Monday to a calendar that will test the rights of ordinary citizens — but includes yet another challenge to presidential power.

The court will grapple with familiar questions of women's rights, abortion, freedom of the press and a host of issues over criminal procedure. The individuals involved range from high school troublemakers to rape victims to, once again, the nation's chief executive.

This time, the argument is over the President's authority to impound funds appropriated by Congress.

No case to be heard during the 1974-75 term is expected to be as dramatic as the court's order to Nixon last July to yield tapes and papers wanted as Watergate evidence.

But some could have more impact on the law, at least as it affects the average citizen.

Among cases almost certain to be accepted for early hearing is a challenge to the constitutionality of the Rail Reorganization Act passed last year to revive bankrupt railroads in the Northeast. A lower federal court has held that the act is unconstitutional.

On Oct. 15, the court will begin hearing cases it has already accepted, including two challenges to the methods used by school authorities in dealing with unruly students.

In a case from Columbus, Ohio, a three-judge federal court has struck down a state law which says a principal may suspend a student for as much as 10 days without a hearing. And in a case from Mena, Ark., a federal court ruled that the school board exceeded its authority in suspending two girls for spiking the punch at a home economics party.

Later in the term, the court will hear an appeal from a state court decision upholding a Georgia law which forbids broadcasters and newspapers from identifying women and girls who have been raped.

Two cases alleging sex discrimination, one against women and one against men, are also to be heard during the opening week of arguments.

The justices will review a decision striking down a Louisiana law which permits women to be chosen for jury duty only if they go to the courthouse and volunteer in writing. They will also review a lower court ruling that federal law on promotion of Naval officers discriminates against men.

Other cases of interest to women involve a Virginia ban on advertising of abortion services and a requirement in Connecticut that mothers on welfare divulge the names of the fathers of their illegitimate children. The court will also review Iowa's requirement of a one-year residence period for persons seeking a divorce.

Presidential impoundments of funds, which have been struck down by federal courts in a number of cases, will come before the Supreme Court for the first time in a case from New York City. The city challenged action of former President Nixon in withholding $9 billion appropriated for water pollution control.

Banich said a dance studio employe told him everything seemed to be okay when she left the building around 7 p.m. Friday. He told The Democrat-Capital that he and his brother had just recently finished some remodeling work on the third floor, site of the newly-opened dance studio. Banich said the work included painting and replastering as well as floor refurbishing. He also said Design Devices had shut down production a few weeks ago, due to excess inventory.

Missile commander lauds War Dads

The advantages of the proposed Air Force B-1 bomber over the existing B-52 bomber were explained Saturday night to some 200 members of the American War Dads and Auciliary by Col. William Kottas, commander of the 351st Strategic Missile Wing of the Strategic Air Command, Whiteman AFB.

Speaking at an evening banquet at the Ramada Inn, Col. Kottas said the B-1 "will be more flexible in either conventional or nuclear war, or show of force operations such as were employed during the Cuban Misse aiasis."

Citing specifics, Col. Kottas said the B-1 would be able to launch in four minutes, as compared to the 15 minutes necessary to launch a B-52. Also, he noted, the B-52 can carry a maximum of 12 offensive weapons, while the projected B-1 could carry 24.

The 20-year-old B-52, Kottas said, "has been a fine plane. But, like everything else, changes reflecting improved technology and modern skill can and should be made."

There are currently 1,051 Intercontinental Ballistic Missiles (ICBM's), Col. Kottas said. Because United States production of ICBM's has remained stable since the late 1960's, the Russian ICBM force now outnumbers the United States' by a margin of nearly two to one, he indicated.

Colonel Kottas also discussed the Air Force's new SR-71 plane which is capable of flying over the Atlantic Ocean in less than two hours.

"We've come a long way since Lindberg," Col. Kottas joked. "By the time he would have gotten his plane leveled out on his flight, the SR-71 would have already been across."

Col. Kottas accompanied his comments with a slide presentation featuring operational centers at Whiteman AFB. Included were pictures of the base launch control capsule burried 25 feet under the ground.

Describing his audience "as the true backbone of America," Col. Kottas lauded their involvement in the War Dads and Auxiliary. "It is groups such as these, which provide heart-warming and reassuring support for our nation's armed forces, that truly reflect the highest degree of patriotism and devotion," he said.

In other business, it was announced that Ed Bryant, Box 1291, was re-elected national president. Next year's convention, it was reported, will be held in Springfield, Ill.

Among those honored at the banquet was Mrs. Louise Schoening, 92, Springfield, Ill., who founded the Illinois chapter of the War Dads Auxiliary in 1946.

The three-day convention, which began Friday, will conclude today with ceremonies honoring Gold Star mothers. Addressing the group Friday night was U.S. Representative William Randall.

Question

My invalid mother is not old enough to qualify for Social Security benefits from my deceased father but she does receive a small veteran's pension. To your knowledge, are there any other sources of income available to her?

Answer

Although your mother may not be old enough to qualify for an annuity based upon her age she may qualify as disabled under either her own earnings or your Father's earnings. If she has ever been employed under Social Security request your local Social Security office to check her wage history. Ask them also to review your mother's situation for entitlement to disability benefits based upon your Father's employment history.

Recently Congress passed a bill implementing the amount received monthly by a veteran's widows if the widow is in need of regular aid and attendance. Since your mother is already receiving a pension she can receive an additional $50.00 each month if she is disabled to the extent that she needs home care or if she is in a nursing home.

Faulty home canning equipment is reported

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Federal agencies are invesigating complaints of faulty home canning equipment, following reports from some areas of the West that the lids don't seal properly, causing food to spoil.

An Associated Press survey showed the problems come on top of a nationwide shortage of canning equipment that is frustrating consumers trying to save money by putting up their own fruits and vegetables.

Officials of the major manufacturers of the canning jars deny that the equipment is faulty and claim consumers aren't following directions.

Jane Wyatt of the Oregon Department of Agriculture said complaints were pouring into her office about lids that fail to seal properly and result in spoiled food.

She said the department had asked the Kerr Glass Manufacturing Co. of Sand Springs, Okla., to recall its lids, but the company refused.

James Carney, head of the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission regional office in Seattle, Wash., said his agency could step in if the lids were proved defective.

Harold Metsker, a plant manager for Kerr in Sand Springs, said: "We had some problems. They seal for us, but the women in their homes have had some difficulty ... Most of the problems have been one of two things: either they don't screw the bands down tightly enough or they don't use enough heat."

A Utah representative of Ball Corp., another major manufacturer, said: "We find if lids aren't sealing, it's because people aren't following correct canning procedures."

Helen Sisson, California liaison officer to the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission, said she had 400 complaints from Los Angeles alone.

"Women have complained that they have had as many as 500 jars spoiled because of improper sealing," she said.

"Many of these complaints are from women who seem to know what they are doing, who have been canning for years."

Mrs. Sisson said she was worried about the danger of botulism from improperly sealed food, but Dr. George York, a microbiologist from the University of California at Davis, said that as long as the food is heated properly, botulism is unlikely.

Housewives won't accept statements that inexperience is responsible for the failures. "Everyone I know who has used this year's supply of Kerr lids is hopping mad," said Cleo Davis of Utah. "They just aren't sealing and it's not because they are using incorrect procedures."

Neal Custer, the assistant attorney general in charge of the Idaho consumer affairs agency, said he had received about 350 complaints, most of them from veteran canners.

In contrast, authorities elsewhere reported few problems.

The shortages of canning equipment stem from curtailed supplies of tin plate and soda ash at a time when demand is rising. A spokesman for Ball says: "We've produced more jars and lids than we ever have, but it hasn't been enough."

Economic plan will include mortgage costs

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford's economic plan will include a new program of subsidies to reduce the cost of home mortgages, administration sources say.

The effect will be to make it possible for people to obtain home mortgages at a lower interest rate than they otherwise would have to pay.

Housing and Urban Affairs Secretary James T. Lynn said he could support a program of up to $8 billion in mortgage subsidies, with $3 billion to be spent in the first stage.

Lynn indicated to newsmen at the economic summit conference Friday he favored such a program, but stopped short of predicting it would be recommended by the administration.

An informed source, however, confirmed such a program was in the works to aid the depressed housing industry and to encourage home-buying.

The housing industry has been hard-hit by the record high interest rates in the economy which have discouraged both home-building and home-buying. Housing starts in August were only slightly more than half the total of a year earlier.

Sen. Edward Brooke, R-Mass., told the economic summit conference Friday he favored a mortgage subsidy program of $10 billion, with $5 billion for new housing and $5 billion for old housing. He said it would support 350,000 homes.

The program being considered by the administration would be known as a tandem program.

A home buyer would obtain a mortgage at an interest rate below the going rate. The federal government then would buy the mortgage from the issuer, such as a savings and loan association, at the higher rate.

Lynn noted that a similar program for $3 billion was put into operation earlier this year, and the money was used up in two months.

A bill has been introduced in the Senate for the same kind of program, but Lynn said it lacks the flexibility that the administration wants.

It was learned elsewhere that Lynn has asked the Senate sponsors to delay action on their bill until the administration version is ready.

Lynn told newsmen that he should have the authority in a tandem program to make the subsidies available if interest rates stayed high and to suspend them if they began falling.

But he warned against expectations that such a program, or any other emergency support for housing, would turn the industry around from its depressed state this year.

"The die is cast for the rest of this year, no matter what we do now," he said. The long lead time required in planning and building homes means that it would take months for the impact of a program to be felt, he explained.

The government already has extended about $17 billion in various forms of aid to the housing industry this year.

Energy conference results in 'better understanding'

By GENE SCHROEDER
Associated Press Writer

DETROIT (AP) — The World Energy Conference, which opened with a call from President Ford for global energy cooperation, has ended with plans to pursue his idea for Project Interdependence.

The five-day conference ended Friday and about 4,200 delegates from 85 nations headed home with what sponsors said was a better understanding of the world's urgent need for joint action.

"President Ford challenged us and other international organizations to formulate Project Interdependence an energy program for the world," Wilson Campbell, program committee chairman, told the delegates in a summation of the conference.

"The next day — taking him at his word — several members of intergovernmental organizations taking part in our conference met with one or two from our national committees ... to discuss ... a conservation commission."

Campbell said such a commission could go far to provide the technical and economic basis for meeting the President's challenge.

He said a meeting would be held in London before Christmas to formulate a constitution and funding.

On Thursday the chief of the 34-member Soviet delegation called for more action and less talk by the conference, which is next scheduled to meet in Turkey in 1977.

Peter Neporozhny, minister of power and electrification for the Soviet Union, told newsmen that between its triennial meetings the conference could play a more active role by organizing technical groups and making technical decisions.

Gerrit Wagner, managing director, Shell of the Netherlands, warned that time was fast running out for finding a solution to the global problem of a massive transfer of funds from oil-importing to oil-exporting countries.

What is causing severe monetary problems, Wagner told delegates, "is not only the level to which oil prices have risen, but the speed with which they have done so, especially at a time when inflation and monetary instability are already causing enormous problems."

Federal Energy Administrator John C. Sawhill outlined U.S. energy plans being considered by the government. Included was a possible $1 billion, five-year research and development program for solar energy.

Also being considered was a $400 million program for geothermal energy demonstration projects, he said.

Millionaire to give money away

LONDON (AP) — Douglas McMinn turned his small store into a million dollar business in 28 years. Now, he has sold his firm for about $3.6 million and has decided to give his 205 employes most of the money.

"I was born broke and that's the way I'm going to die," said McMinn, 63. "Any success I had is almost entirely due to the men and women who have stuck by me all these years."

He said he planned to give the workers $2.4 million from the sale of his firm, which markets everything from nails to heavy industrial equipment. The remainder would go to charity.

Christian ironer

By ERMA BOMBECK

I saw an ad in the paper the other day that intrigued me. It said simply, "WANTED: Christian woman to do ironing."

Is there any other kind who irons?

If someone had told me before I got married that I would stand like a statue for six hours every week in front of a board with three pounds of steam and heat in my right hand and push it back and forth over a PRIMO beer sweatshirt, I would have called off the wedding.

I once lived next door to a Christian woman who ironed. Every Monday she would put her ironing board and wheel out one of those baskets on legs and iron each piece as it came. I could have watched her for hours.

She ironed sheets, dish towels, socks, belt buckles, underwear, the tongues in tennis shoes, the binding on blankets and even zippers. I never saw such a martyr. One day I couldn't believe my eyes. She pulled her husband's shirt out of the basket and after painstakingly ironing both sides of the collar and cuffs, she ironed the front and started to iron the back.

"Are you crazy?" I shouted, ripping the shirt off the board.

"Now you've gone too far."

"What are you talking about?" she asked.

"Ironing the back of a man's shirt. Are you bucking for canonization?"

It is just not woman's natural inclination to take to ironing. One of my friends hired a woman to iron after the birth of her fourth child. She still retains her and the kid is 35 years old now.

Some hold theories that the aversion to ironing is genetic. This would seem to be the case as both my sister and I iron only during the months when oysters are in season — off the coast of Thailand.

Our phone conserations run something like this:

"Joe needs a shirt."

"You going to iron one?"

"No, make one."

"When are you going to iron?"

"During the next space launch, providing the month has an R in it."

I'll tell you something, world. When you are as behind in your ironing as I am, you'd settle for a woman who worshipped avocados during a full moon!

Time passes

The 12-story clock tower atop the 81-year-old Illinois Central Station, Chicago, defied efforts of a wrecker to pull it down in August (left). Almost a month later, after battering it with a wrecking ball, the top of the tower fell to the ground. The initial effort failed when the cable being used in the attempt to pull it down snapped.

Economic summit suggestions varied

WASHINGTON (AP) — Suggestions given to President Ford at the economic summit conference Friday on how to fight inflation ranged from raising your own vegetables to government generation of 500,000 new jobs.

Principal suggestions offered include:

—Reductions in federal spending, although several speakers said belt tightening alone was not enough.

—Loosening of the tight money policy which has raised interest rates to record levels.

—Tax reform, closing loopholes and giving relief to low and middle income families.

—Tax credits and incentives to encourage activity from industrial expansion to more money in savings accounts.

—As many as 500,000 public service jobs to cut unemployment and provide services, such as building needed housing.

—Some kind of restraint on prices, although there was little support for wage-price controls.

—Energy conservation and an accelerated program to increase domestic energy production and bring less dependence on Arab oil.

—Federal support for construction of 500,000 new housing units for low and middle income families and a goal of 50,000 federal assisted housing starts per month for these groups by next April.

—Encourage production of food, including more exports of meat and poultry. Also more economical methods of packaging and marketing agricultural products.

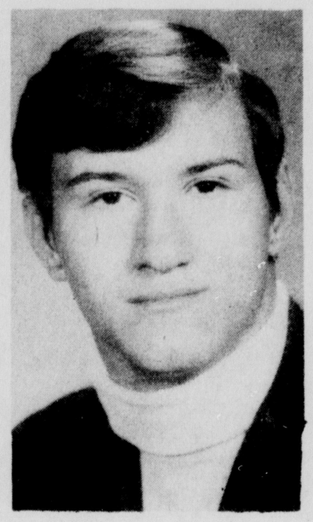

—Revival of the World War II "Victory gardens" to help the consumer with grocery bills.

—That President Ford fire the holdover economic advisers from the Nixon administration and get new ones "who understand that a jobless America is a person, not a statistic."

Damage suit is dismissed

EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill. (AP)— A federal court jury has dismissed a $68,000 damage suit against 13 narcotics agents who were accused of wrecking a woman's home during a 1972 search for drugs.

Dorothy King of East St. Louis had filed the suit in U.S. District Court, contending that agents of the now-dissolved Drug Abuse Law Enforcement Agency severly damaged her home during a raid June 13, 1972. Mrs. King's husband, Gene A. King, was arrested with two other persons during the raid and is now serving a 10-year prison term on his conviction of possession of drugs.

New position

Keith A. Owen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gene Owen, Route 4, begins Monday as a computer programmer intern at the Fort Leavenworth, Kan., Data Processing Field Office. Owen, a 1974 economics graduate of Central Missouri State University, has been employed in recent years as a reporter and night editor for The Democrat-Capital. His new civil service position involves a two-year training program prior to employment at the GS-9 level.

Peter Sellers is granted a divorce

LONDON (AP) — Actor Peter Sellers has officially been granted a divorce from his third wife.

Sellers, 49, was not in court Friday when Amanda Quarry, 27, was granted a divorce.

The pair was married in August 1970 and parted a little over a year later.

NOTICE to the parents and students of the
SEDALIA ACADEMY OF DANCE

I am sure that most of you already know that the Banich Building, which housed our school, burned Friday night. We are trying to call all students, but if we have not yet contacted you please let me assure you that we intend to continue the school. We will have to postpone classes, but only until we find a new location. Please do not send in Oct. payment until we resume classes. Then discount the lessons missed. I am hoping this will be satisfactory to you. Let me assure you that this financial loss to me will definitely not be reflected in higher fees. In my mind the dance school is not just a place but rather our people. Our teachers, their years of training, their skill and most importantly, their desire to impart their knowledge to our most valuable asset — our students.

Plutonium approval expected

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Atomic Energy Commission is about to precipitate a national crisis with a decision to allow the nuclear power industry to use plutonium as fuel, say two senators and a group of scientists.

"This is perhaps the most dangerous single product known to man," Sen. Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn., said Friday at a joint news conference with Sen. Philip S. Hart, D-Mich.

They said the commercial use of plutonium could dramatically increase the dangers of cancer and terrorist activities.

J. Gustave Speth, a scientist with the Natural Resources Defense Council, said an atomic bomb could be fashioned from a grapefruit-sized lump of plutonium with comparatively little technical difficulty.

Plutonium is a man-made element produced from uranium as a by-product of nuclear reaction. It is capable of being processed and recycled for use as fuel in reactors.

Uranium, the fuel now used in nuclear reactors, is not extremely toxic and is not sufficiently rich in uranium-235 to be fashioned into nuclear weapons, according to the council.

Hart, Mondale and the council scientists asked that a decision to permit the use of plutonium as a fuel in commercial nuclear reactor plants be delayed for several years so further studies can be made.

An AEC spokesman said the agency's regulatory staff concluded in a tentative environmental impact statement "that there are no safeguard-related issues which should delay the decision to permit the use of plutonium."

Judge halts NFO action

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP)—A U.S. District court judge Friday issued a temporary restraining order halting Clayton County court action started by trustees of the National Farmers Organization (NFO) Iowa Grain Trust.

Judge W. C. Stuart said the county court action should not continue, and that the Iowa Grain Trust was a part of lawsuits filed in his court against the NFO by the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC).

The SEC filed suit in June charging the farm organization had violated federal securities law in obtaining loans "in excess of $7 million" from its members and others, and that it had fully informed the lenders of its true financial condition.

The federal agency filed a second action Sept. 5 related to the Clayton County petition filed by the trustees of the financially troubled NFO Iowa Grain Trust.

The trustees had sought approval for a three-year delay in repaying a reported $15 million to NFO members for grain sold through the NFO.

The SEC sought to stop the Clayton County court action, and asked that a receiver be named to take charge of "all assets and property" of the NFO as well as the Iowa Grain Trust.

Action by the SEC prompted NFO president Oren Lee Staley to call an "emergency meeting" attended by 11,000 in Des Moins a week later where a reported $5.2 million was raised.

Judge Stuart said Friday in issusing the temporary restraining order that the SEC "had made sufficient showing of inextricable involvement between the NFO and NFO members' custodial account (Iowa Grain Trust) that it would be highly inappropriate to allow further prosecution of the state action by the trustees of this account at this time..."

In court memorandums filed this week, the SEC claimed that the action by the NFO Iowa Grain Trust trustees in the Clayton County court "should be viewed as mere subterfuge to remove from this (Judge Stuart's) court its appropriate jurisdiction over the NFO trust as part of the assets of NFO..."

The SEC said the Clayton County court action "serves to continue the fradulent course of dealings of the defendant trustees."

In addition, the SEC said that the NFO Grain Trust "is only a banking arm or a bank account" of the NFO.

Oil firms rebate overcharges

WASHINGTON (AP) — Seven oil firms have voluntarily rebated almost $40 million in alleged overcharges, the Federal Energy Administration reports.

Meanwhile, the FEA announced it has accused Standard Oil Co. (Ohio) of gasoline overcharges amounting to $10 million and has ordered Sohio to make appropriate refunds. Sohio denied the charge.

The seven companies that agreed to the rebates are:

—The Charter International Oil Co. refunded $650,000 to Southland Oil Co. of Savannah, Ga., after the FEA found that Charter had incorrectly computed its maximum permitted price for gasoline.

—Pace Oil Co. reduced gasoline prices in May and June to make up for $3 million in alleged overcharges and has agreed to compensate for another $700,000 by Sept. 30.

—Champlin Petroleum Co. reduced gasoline prices by six cents and distillate fuel oil prices by five cents last June, for a total rollback of $1.9 million.

—ARCO (Atlantic Richfield) rolled back prices a total of $1.1 million and dropped $10.1 million from its account of costs to eventually pass through in the form of higher prices.

—Delta Refining Co. cut gasoline prices a total of $300,000 and dropped $520,000 from its account of recoverable costs.

—Koch Industries reduced gasoline prices by 2.5 cents from May 20 to June 30 for a total rollback of some $10.8 million.

—Kerr-McGee reduced gasoline prices a total of $10.7 million last June.

In addition to their voluntary rebates revealed Friday by the FEA, Charter was ordered in August to rebate $15.8 million and Koch was ordered to rebate $9.9 million.

Sohio said it is appealing the FEA order that was dated Sept. 20 but just made public Friday. It requires Sohio to recompute its crude oil costs for a four-month period and to submit plans "by which Sohio will compensate for the effects of the violations . . ."

Another arrested in kidnaping

WINTER PARK, Fla. (AP) — An engineering consultant was arrested here in connection with the kidnaping of a Cincinnati broadcasting executive's 4-year-old daughter, the Orange County sheriff's office said today.

Officials said Clifford J. Kroger, a 38-year-old father of five, was arrested Friday night at his apartment near here by Cincinnati and Orange County detectives.

Kroger is being held without bond.

Kroger is accused of abducting Allison Mechem, daughter of Charles Mechem Jr., chairman of Taft Broadcasting Corp., earlier this week. The girl was released unharmed but no ransom was paid.

Meanwhile in Cincinnati, Frank Wiechman, 26, remained in maximum security under $128,000 bond.

James Beckman, 27, a close friend of Wiechman, said friends and lawyers were seeking to have Wiechman released. Beckman insists Wiechman, a parolee from Florida, had nothing to do with the crime.

Wiechman is scheduled for arraignment Monday in Hamilton County Common Pleas Court. Police said he was charged with kidnaping.

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Surplus crops next year are entirely possible if everything goes right, says grain specialist Morton Sosland.

Higher prices will "encourage the planting of every acre of available cropland in the United States and in any other country where farmers are being stimulated by present markets," Sosland said Friday at a Midwest Research Institute program on the world food situation.

Sosland is editor and publisher of Milling and Baking News, which first reported the Soviet Union's massive purchase of U.S. grains in 1972.

Because of the effect it had on other countries, the Soviet Union's purchase ended the "era of cheap food," Sosland said.

"It was a message that said to governmental leaders that, if the USSR, the world's strongest police state, no longer believes it acceptable for poor crops to be a cause of lowering the standard of eating, then those countries had better adopt a similar policy," he said.

Excessive demand last year and disappointing crops this year precipitated food price increases, Sosland said.

"It now appears that wheat production (in the U.S.) will be off nearly 400 million bushels, corn production is down a disastrous 1.7 billion bushels and the soybean crop will be more than 200 million bushels less than hoped for," he said.

Sosland suggested that "the current bothersome effect of prices could be moderated through adoption right now of a conscious reserves program—a program not designed to weigh on farmer prices, but one created to provide some assurances against interruption to long-term demand growth."

Belly dancer treat for lunch crowd

HONOLULU (AP) — A Greek belly dancer, complete with see-through veils, treated a lunch hour crowd in Honolulu's financial district to some sinuous gyrations Friday.

It was all part of a program to bring working people in the downtown area together and have some good old fashioned fun, said fashion designer Jolen Farkas, who heads a merchants' group that staged the event.

"It's our plan to bring a lot more fun to the downtown area, you know, kind of like the old block parties of the '50s and '60s," she said.

Food prepared by chefs from a Greek restaurant was served with Greek wine to about 500 persons. Greek music serenaded the gathering for about an hour.

Delegates agree shortages restricting food production

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Delegates to an inflation conference in Chicago two weeks ago voted overwhelmingly in a poll taken then that shortages of fuel, fertilizer and other farm inputs are restricting the production of food.

The Chicago meeting, billed as an Agriculture and Food Conference on Inflation, was one of a series held in preparation for White House economic summit talks Friday and Saturday.

A summary of the Chicago meeting's poll results was released Thursday by the Agriculture Department. Other areas of strong agreement among the delegates included:

—Inflation reduces the opportunity and ability of young farmers to get started in farming.

—The anticipation of controls leads to higher food prices.

Officials said delegates showed disagreement on the following questionnaire statements:

—Returns on commodities whose production is contracted or integrated with processors or retailers are higher than commodities traded freely.

—Farms are over-capitalized.

—Adequate capital is available for investment and operations to all segments of the food industry.

—Too much of our farm and food output moves into foreign trade.

—Agricultural production is over-specialized.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department, noting that frosts have occurred recently in the Midwest, said Thursday that the farm-price of soybeans may average about $8 per bushel this fall and probably will go up further later on. the 1973 season average was $6 per bushel.

The report, however, did not speculate on how much damage the freezing weather may have caused to the soybean crop. It said new production estimates would be announced Oct. 10.

This year's soybean crop was estimated as of Sept. 1 at less than 1.32 billion bushels, down 16 per cent from 1973's record.

Looking ahead, the report said farmers are likely to hold on to beans since they have adequate storage and have seen prices go up later in the season the past two years.

WASHINGTON (AP) — First Lady Betty Ford and Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz are not seeing rib-eye to rib-eye on beef prices these days. Mrs. Ford said Thursday she has the problem of stretching her family's food dollar just like everyone else and shops for bargains.

"We are buying less beef and more fish and believe it or not—casseroles have become quite popular in the White House," Mrs. Ford said at Mayor Washington's consumer food dollar conference.

Butz has advocated eating more beef to help cattlemen recover from recent financial losses and insists Americans will continue to add even more to their menus in the future.

Mrs. Ford, however, apparently referred to family meals and not the White House dinners for foreign visitors. Those still feature high-priced and lavish foods, including chateaubriand Wednesday night for Italy's visiting president.

Greenspan scorns short-term solution to inflation problem

NEW YORK (AP) — Wall Street brokers, said Alan Greenspan, have probably suffered more from inflation on a percentage basis than anyone else. He said that to union leaders and others concerned with problems of the poor.

Greenspan, the new chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, is either lacking in political savvy or simply is doing what he feels must be done, that is, talk bluntly.

Any recovery from inflation is going to be painful, he has stated time after time. Inflation cannot be defeated quickly, he states flatly. And he scorns short-term solutions, blaming them for creating long-term problems.

He has suggested that inflation is primarily a financial problem, and some critics think he might believe everything to do with inflation can somehow be reduced to a mathematical equation.

This provokes the question: What role does leadership play? Many economists believe that part of the job of licking inflation is belief you can do it. Greenspan seldom, if ever, refers to that route.

His solutions are, in the opinion of many economists, businessmen and labor leaders fighting to understand the problems, straight from the book, devoid of innovation and political appeal.

Many of the proposals suggested by legislators, economists and others already have been discounted by Greenspan, almost automatically, as if by reflex rather than reflection.

The allocation of credit, for instance, would cause "distortions," in Greenspan's view, although some proponents claim it would help balance the distribution of funds, especially to housing.

A proposal to encourage people to spend less and save more by reducing the income tax bite on interest was received by him with little enthusiasm. It won't change habits, he suggested.

Greenspan's program would begin with cutting government spending, an approach that perhaps a majority of economists favor as a theoretically pure route to the solution, but which politically minded legislators fear.

How can you cut spending without slicing a program dear to someone's constituency? You can't, and that in effect is what Greenspan has been telling congressmen, that the anti-inflation battle must hurt.

While Greenspan's fundamentalist, long-term and unimaginative approach has appeal to theoreticians, it is apparently beginning to grate on the nerves of legislators.

Beautiful in theory, they say, textbook economics doesn't always apply in a real world. The world is made up of people, not numbers. Numbers might be manipulated, and people too, but the latter are far less predictable.

Nobody knows this more than politicians.

Bus rider educated on trips

Watts, 66, has spent nearly 400 hours traveling almost 20,000 miles on cross country buses in the last two years.

He just packs up and heads for the bus station and parts unknown whenever he has the time and the money.

Using a $150 monthly pass, he logged 10,399 miles in three weeks last year for only $199, including meals and lodging. The pass allowed for unlimited rides and transfers inside the United States.

"I don't know why I do it, really," said Watts, a maintenance man at a hospital in Janesville, about 50 miles southwest of Milwaukee. "I think it has something to do with my lack of schooling."

Watts said he dropped out of school in the seventh grade, but finally passed a high school equivalency test 49 years later.

"I had become interested in history, and people had always told me things about other places that I wanted to see but never had," he said. "I finally just decided to go, as a treat to myself for getting that high school diploma."

Spots he has visited include Salt Lake City; Butte, Mont.; New Orleans; Savannah, Ga.; and Toronto.

Watts, who leaves his wife behind because she gets carsick, travels mostly on weekends and short vacations.

Ann Landers

Mother has solution to problem

Dear Ann Landers: The letter from "Boxing Brigade" prompted me to write. I had the same problem until I finally got smart, four year ago. Our dinners were a horror. Every night there was a fight at the table and somebody cried. My husband was constantly harping at the children, correcting their manners. But worse yet, the children used dinnertime as tattle sessions. The quarreling and sometimes punching undid me. Someone always managed to spill something and when I say mealtime was nightmare, you can believe it.

One day I decided I'd had it. I sat the family down and made a new set of rules. Dinnertime would be family-talk time and there would be no tattling of any kind. Also, if my husband felt the need to correct a child's table manners he would do so in an objective manner and not attack the child, but merely suggest that Billy not reach across the table but ask that the potatoes be passed, or that Suzie not talk with a mouth full of food. I made it clear that anyone who broke the rules would have to leave the table. Nobody did. It worked out beautifully.

From that day on, dinnertime has been a pleasure. We are not only a happier but a healthier family. I'm sorry I didn't think of the New System sooner. — Peace, It's Beautiful

Dear Peace: Beautiful is right. I hope thousands of parents will take a page from your book. It's an excellent solution to a common problem.

Dear Ann Landers: The old virginity bit — to lose or not to lose, that is the question. Here's a word to those jilted, heartsick dames who are sorry they gave in because afterwards all the magic was gone. What about the Puritans who waited for marriage, and THEN all the magic was gone? You don't think magic is real, do you?

Look at the zillions of married couples who are bored silly with each other. I'll bet some of them were virgins 'til the honeymoon — both of 'em! The real reason most guys drop the girl after the "Preview of Coming Attractions" is that some men can't stand the idea that a woman might have just as strong a sex drive as he has or, heaven forbid, know what it's all about. In self-defense, he looks for a shrinking violet, someone he can "teach" and "be in charge of." Such a female is less threatening. In the meantime, the "why did I do it" dolly is agonizing over her guilt because that's how society says she is supposed to repent for her "sins." — A Witness.

Dear Witness: You make some valid points, but insofar as the central issue is concerned, the real evidence is on the other side.

And where do I get it? From hundreds of girls who have also been "witnesses." I've had a tremendous number of letters from deflowered teenagers who wish they had said no — and would give anything if they could turn the clock back.

Dear Ann Landers: Almost everyone has a headache at one time or another, but not my sister-in-law. SHE has "migraines." Last week I asked her, "What's the difference between my headache and your migraine?" She promptly told me that migraine sufferers are members of the intellectual elite and migraine is a disease of the super-intelligent. True or false? — Two Aspirins, Please.

Dear Two: False. Migraine is found among patients at every level of intelligence, among people of all types of genetic and environmental backgrounds.

It's not always easy to recognize love, especially the first time around. Acquaint yourself with the guidelines. Read Ann Landers' booklet, "Love or Sex and How To Tell the Difference." For a copy, mail 35 cents in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Ann Landers, P. O. Box 3346, Chicago, Ill. 60654.

Strikes crippling auto industry

DETROIT (AP) — Strikes affecting all four major U.S. auto makers are crippling production and prompting layoffs of thousands of workers.

General Motors faces a parts shortage stemming from a local contract dispute, and American Motors Corp.'s car production is shutdown by a national strike. Ford has already shut down plants, and Chrysler plans to because of a walkout at a key parts supplier.

Potentially, the most serious is a strike at a key parts-making complex in Indiana which threatens to cause a shut-down of all GM assembly facilities within a week.

The strike, by 14,000 members of United Auto Workers Union Local 662 at GM's 14 Delco-Remy plants in Anderson, Ind., entered its third day today.

Union officials reported progress in substantially reducing the number of issues in the local contract dispute. Remaining issues were not revealed.

Company spokesmen said a lengthy strike could force a gradual closing of GM's 117 plants beginning early next week. The auto maker employs 400,000 hourly workers.

Meanwhile, Ford Motor Co. and Chrysler Corp. said they will have a total of nine plants shut down and nearly 25,000 workers laid off because of a strike at a key parts supplier in Franklin, Ind.

The strike by the Carpenters and Joiners Union Local 2553 at Arvin Industries has created a shortage of catalytic converters for pollution control and exhaust systems for Ford and Chrysler.

Union officials said a tentative agreement on a new contract was reached and striking workers in Franklin were to vote on the proposals Sunday.

Ford said it will lay off 6,350 workers Monday when it shuts its truck plants in Wayne, Mich., and Oakville, Ont., and car plants in Louisville, Ky., and Mahwah, N.J. Ford sent 9,800 workers home Friday after closing plants in Dearborn, Mich., Norfolk, Va., and San Jose, Calif.

Chrysler said it would shut its Detroit Lynch Road and Windsor, Ont., plants and lay off 9,300 workers for at least a week starting Monday.

The firm said it would be forced to shut another Detroit-area plant and lay off 9,500 workers on Oct. 7 if the Arvin strike continues.

Production lines at American Motors plants in Milwaukee and Kenosha, Wis., and Brampton, Ont., remained shut for the second straight week Friday in a national strike by 15,000 UAW workers.

Talks in Milwaukee on a new national pact between AMC and the union broke off Wednesday.

AMC has laid off 3,600 workers, not covered by the national agreement, at its Toledo, Ohio, Jeep plant because of a parts shortage resulting from the strike.

Oil meeting this weekend

CAMP DAVID, Md. (AP) — The foreign and finance ministers of the United States, Britain, France, Germany and Japan are meeting at Camp David to discuss a common strategy to reduce the fuel bills of the major oil-consuming nations.

The meeting this weekend, which U.S. officials call "an informal gathering" where no decisions will be made, was initiated by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger. He is widely believed to have his own "game plan," including how to recycle the rapidly increasing surplus monies of the oil-producing countries.

The finance ministers include William E. Simon for the United States.

The foreign ministers conclude their conference this evening with a dinner given by Kissinger at Camp David. The finance ministers stay overnight for another round of conferences on Sunday.

As a prelude to the conference, President Ford and Kissinger in separate speeches last Monday warned that continued high oil prices may cause the breakdown of world order. The speeches were immediately labeled as threats by the oil producers.

Also some of the Western allies were upset by what they regarded as a thinly veiled threat against the producers in the two speeches.

What the ministers will discuss is one of the best kept secrets. Moreover, U.S. officials warn that no announcement should be expected after the meeting.

There is no doubt, however, that the French decision on Monday, setting a $10.1 billion ceiling on spending for oil imports in 1975 will be one of the topics.

Another question to be discussed is what to do with the gush of oil money, the so-called "petrodollars," the producers are pouring into some of the industrialized countries of the West.

Specialists say the problem is that the money is not going to countries which really need it, some like Italy on the brink of bankruptcy because of the four-fold increase in oil prices in the last year.

The question of how to help the developing nations most seriously affected by the oil price hikes will inevitably come up at the Camp David meeting.

Though stressing that the Camp David conference has no agenda, officials seem to agree on two general issues on which the ministers may come to an agreement. One is the energetic search for sources of energy other than imported oil. The other is stepped-up efforts to save fuel and the French example might be a good one to follow, officials say.

Ford aloof on clemency petitions

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford has signaled his intention to stay aloof from clemency petitions submitted by Watergate figures.

Departing from past practice, Ford's attorney has told Charles W. Colson to take his request for a pardon and commutation directly to the Justice Department rather than the White House.

In a letter to Colson's lawyer, presidential counsel Philip W. Buchen made it clear that the White House would not perform even the routine step of delivering the Colson petition to the Justice Department's pardon attorney, Lawrence M. Traylor.

Deputy White House Press Secretary John W. Hushen released Buchen's Sept. 15 letter on Friday as he corrected his earlier statement that the Colson petition had been sent to Traylor.

Colson, political adviser to former President Richard M. Nixon, was sentenced to one to three years in prison after pleading guilty to obstruction of justice for spreading derogatory information about Pentagon Papers defendant Daniel Ellsberg.

Prosecutors then dropped the charges against Colson for his role in the Watergate cover-up.

Ford's aloof posture may have lessened Colson's hopes for a presidential pardon or an order reducing his sentence. Although Buchen's letter was sent to Colson's attorney, Charles H. Morin, more than a week ago, the request had not been renewed with the Justice Department by Friday.

Department regulations would prevent any action on a pardon until three years after Colson completes his sentence.

Atty. Gen. William B. Saxbe could waive those regulations, but he indicated he is not inclined to do so.

In the letter to Morin, the President's lawyer acknowledged receiving the clemency request on Sept. 16, eight days after Ford granted Nixon an unconditional pardon for Watergate crimes. The Nixon pardon was not channeled through the Justice Department.

Buchen wrote, "The President has decided that all applications for executive clemency should be submitted through the appropriate procedures of he Department of Justice."

Hushen explained that his "earlier incorrect statement was caused by a misunderstanding in the press office." He said Buchen sent the Colson request back to Morin "to permit Mr. Morin to make whatever changes he believed were necessary in the letter if he planned to contact the pardon attorney."

Department spokesman Robert Havel said Saxbe remarked that Colson's pardon request "does not fit into the normal pattern." Saxbe recently has spoken against special treatment for white-collar criminals.

Conditional amnesty plan opposed by most

DEMOCRAT- CAPITAL SURVEY

QUESTION — Gov. Christopher Bond has announced plans for Bothwell Lodge that would involve buying additional land to turn the area into a state park. The lodge itself would become a museum and educational center for use by state officials. Do you approve of these uses?

Comments and signed letters are appreciated.

Name will not be used if checked here. ☐

YES ☐ NO ☐

Clip and return to: The Sedalia Democrat-Capital, Seventh and Massachusetts, Sedalia, Missouri, 65301.

President Ford's conditional amnesty plan for Vietnam era draft evaders was opposed by nearly two-thirds of those replying to last Sunday's Democrat-Capital survey question.

Sixty per cent, or 12 or 20 persons replying, were opposed to Ford on the following question: "President Ford has decided that draft evaders and those who deserted the armed forces during the Vietnam conflict should be granted conditional amnesty. Under his plan, those who return to the U.S. would serve as much as 24 months of non-military service, such as in a hospital or nursing home, swear allegiance to the U.S. and face no criminal punishment. Do you agree with this plan?"

Mrs. Sam Jackson Sr., 1511 East Fifth, voted "no" and wrote, "I am definitely against amnesty conditionally or unconditionally for draft evaders and deserters during the Vietnam conflict. I have three sons that served 15 months each in Vietnam and they never questioned whether or not the U.S. should be there, but went because ... it was their duty. Let the evaders and deserters stay wherever they ran off to. That's what they chose to do. They're not deserving of the opportunities of a country they didn't feel obligated to stand behind."

Mrs. Georgia Gillum, LaMonte, wrote, "No I don't feel the draft dodgers and deserters should ever be allowed back in the United States. My son was in service during the Vietnam war ... and, although he never went to Vietnam, he at least was no coward."

An unidentified reader replied, "Yes, this (conditional amnesty) is the only way acceptable to all."

United Way collections near $5,000

A total of $4,708 has been collected thus far by local United Way volunteers, it was reported Friday at a meeting of the United Way board of directors.

Distribution of campaign donation packets began Sept. 9.

"This has been the best start, in terms of organization of the various divisions, that it has been my experience to be associated with," commented United Way president Tom McCully.

The goal for the 1974-75 United Way fund-raising effort is $99,460, which is $3,460 more than last year.

Reports were given by divisional chairmen Ivan Stewart, John Kenny, Bill Mills, P. S. Sillers, and Mary Alice Malmo. In addition, Tully read several divisional reports on behalf of absent chairmen.

All chairmen indicated that their campaigns were running smoothly, with information and donation packets having already been distributed.

Student reports

John Evans, son of Mrs. Maxine Sailor, 403 West Fourth, has been pledged into the Central Missouri State University chapter of Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity.

Evans is a 1574 graduate of Smith-Cotton High Schoo.

FULTON — John Gray, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Gray, 1022 West Seventh, has been designated as a distinguished military student in the Westminster College ROTC program here.

Gray, who holds a two year $8,000 ROTC scholarship, became the first Westminster cadet to attend and complete both the Ranger and Airborne Schools conducted by the U.S. Army at Ft. Benning, Ga. Gray is a Smith-Cotton graduate.

Fair leases will have clauses

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — All future lease agreements involving the state fairgrounds in Sedalia will have a clause allowing cancellation should there be evidence of potential safety hazards, Missouri Agriculture Director James Boillot said Friday.

Boillot, appearing berore the State Fair Advisory Committee of the Governor's Advisory Council on Agriculture, also said all lease agreements will have a clause to allow the state to review and approve advertisements of functions on the state fairgrounds.

And the attorney general's office will be consulted on all contracts, he said.

Boillot told the committee there is a need for an investigation into the backgrounds of persons leasing the fairgrounds and that he was assured of full cooperation by the Department of Public Safety and the Highway Patrol in making the background checks.

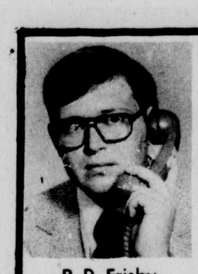

Investigation by a state Senate committee has shown that drugs were sold openly, that it was advertised as a hard rock festival while state officials were told it would feature bluegrass and country and western music, and that the state could not cancel.

According to testimony, about 1,500 persons were treated for drug-related illnesses, one youth died of a drug overdose, two youths were seriously injured, and because of the costs of cleanup and repair to the fairgrounds, the state made only about $4,000 on the $40,000 lease agreement.

Hannibal man drowns in river

HANNIBAL, Mo. (AP)—A 42-year-old Hannibal man, Milford W. Rouse, drowned Friday after he either jumped or fell from the Mark Twain Bridge over the Mississippi River, police reported.

Wheat farmers have wedge to force prices upward

By DAVE BARTEL
Associated Press Writer

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — The Kansas wind had coated Tony Leis with dust as he hustled the tractor up and down the 80-acre field sowing next year's winter wheat crop.

"Well, I'll tell you," he said through dust-gritted teeth, "the farmer has got to take care of himself in this wheat deal. If we plant too much wheat, you know what's going to happen to the price we get for it."

In short, Tony Leis is not going "all out" for the 1975 wheat crop as urged by Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz. But then, Leis isn't leaving a lot of ground idle.

"I'm planting about 600 acres in winter wheat," said Leis, who farms the flat prairies south of Wichita. "That's about what I planted last year."

He smiles a dusty grin when asked about government exhortations for fencerow-to-fencerow cropping. The federal "set-aside" requirements that idled thousands of acres to prevent overproduction are gone. So are the huge government-owned grain surpluses that fed Russia for a year.

He said the Department of Agriculture's parity price—the break-even point where wheat prices will match the expense of producing the crop — is now $4.05 a bushel.

Tony Leis and other Kansas farmers understand that the wheat market is watching them as seeding begins for the crop that will be harvested next July.

For the first time in decades, the farmer has a wedge to force wheat prices upward, say farm leaders like Tom Ostrander, president of the 8,000-member Kansas Association of Wheat Growers.

Tony Leis is using the wedge all he can. All of the wheat he harvested in July still is in storage, waiting for the market to meet his price.

"I haven't sold any because the price isn't right," Leis said. "All of the costs we have to pay for a crop are way up. Fertilizer, fuel, machinery repair bills, everything's gone up and $4 wheat just ain't going to cover it all."

Ostrander, another south-central Kansas farmer with 2,700 acres near Wellington, agrees. He said he has received "some mighty rough feedback" from consumers who think farmers are exploiting the wheat market for high profits.

"That just isn't true," Ostrander said. "Four dollars a bushel is the bare break-even point. This isn't a get-rich-quick proposition for the farmer."

To plant 2,200 acres of winter wheat, which yielded about 30 bushels an acre this year, Ostrander said he will invest more than $250,000 from one harvest to the next.

In order to pay himself a $12,000 annual salary for labor and management he puts into a crop, Ostrander said, wheat would have to sell at about $4.24 a bushel.

"I guess I just have to say the labor's free and the management isn't worth a damn," he said with a laugh, "or I wouldn't be in this business."

Ostrander acknowledges that the turn-around in the wheat market which saw the average price of wheat jump from $1.68 a bushel in 1972 to $3.60 a bushel in 1973, has brought some prosperity to farmers.

After a decade of growing wheat that never sold for more than $2 a bushel, many farmers made money last year and now are fighting to maintain what Ostrander calls "the only clear money we've had in 15 years.

"We're trying to plant a crop with money we made from the last one," he said, "rather than borrowing the money and hoping we can pay it back when the crop is harvested."

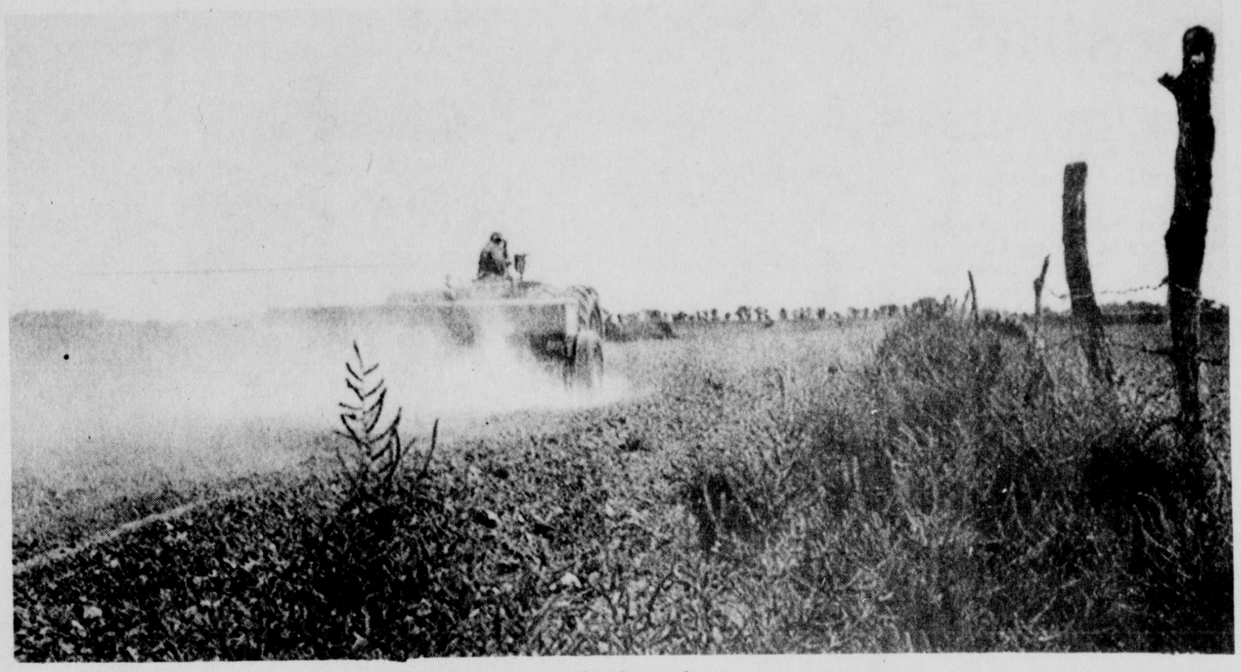

The taste of prosperity, and higher wheat prices, are the best incentives for 1975 wheat production, the KAWG president added.

"I don't know that farmers are going to go 'all out,'" he said, "But we're going to plant a lot of wheat. I think we'll plant as much as we did last year and the acreage might be up some in places."

If plantings equal last year, Kansas farmers will seed about 12 million acres in winter wheat, again setting the stage for a record crop that was waylaid this year by bad weather and plant diseases.

However, Leis and Ostrander say they aren't counting the bushels before they're harvested. Planting is only the beginning of the 10-month wheat-cycle gamble that won't end until early July.

"There are a lot of things that can go wrong in this business," Ostrander said. "But that's one thing about being a farmer. There's always something brewing."

New cycle begins

The Kansas winter wheat cycle is beginning again as farmers across the state seed the 1975 crop. Tony Leis, who farms south of Wichita, says he isn't going "all out" for 1975 wheat production, as urged by the government, but is planting about the same number of acres as last year. Statewide, farmers are expected to duplicate last year's planting, which was estimated at 12 million acres. (AP Wirephoto)

Experiment is successful

ADAROUCH, Morocco (AP) — The rolling, grass-covered hills look like Texas cattle country. But the cowboys wear turbans, and at sundown many of them kneel down in the direction of Mecca to recite their prayers.

Morocco's King Ranch, was started as an offshoot of the great Texas ranch in 1971. It was an experiment to save the local breed of cattle from extinction and has proved a spectacular success. Moroccan businessmen are so impressed that they are investing their own money to establish new ranches on 125,000 acres of neglected pastureland in other parts of Morocco.

Small local farmers, who viewed the experiment with distrust and skepticism at first, now bring up their cows at dead of night to "steal" the precious seed of King Ranch's Santa Gertrudis bulls.

"We suddenly find Santa Gertrudis strains all over the countryside," said Raoul Estrade, French manager of the Adarouch King Ranch which now has more than 10,000 cattle and has become by far the largest farming enterprise in North Africa.

"When we flew in the first Santa Gertrudis bulls and cows from Texas and Argentina, the local farmers could hardly believe their eyes. They had never seen such big, healthy cattle."

Estrade's Moroccan ranchhands patrol the 155 miles of wire fencing surrounding the 30,000-acre ranch in jeeps and on horseback. In more than three years of operations, only seven animals have been lost to cattle rustlers, ranch spokesmen claim.

Adarouch is an Arabic word meaning coyote track. The uninhabited valley was a preserve of coyotes and foxes when Estrade persuaded King Ranch owner Robert J. Kleberg Jr. of Texas that it was the ideal site for the Moroccan experiment.

The French army used the area long ago as grazing land for its cavalry horses, and nomadic Moroccan herders came on occasional visits.

But the grass was sparse and dry, and the Moroccan cows were a feeble, disease-ridden caricature of their ancestors, introduced by Portuguese settlers in the 16th Century.

"The Moroccan breed of cattle has become degenerate as result of inbreeding, disease and sheer hunger," Estrade said. "There is no doubt that, without outside help, the whole breed would soon become extinct."

King Ranch replanted the valley with rich Lucerne grass imported from Australia. Some 800 pure Santa Gertrudis cattle were interbred with 5,000 specially groomed local cows. The first generation of the new breed has proved well adapted to Moroccan conditions, where temperatures range from near zero fahrenheit in winter to more than 100 degrees in summer.

GM delaying rotary engine

By STEPHEN H. MILLER
AP Business News Editor

NEW YORK (AP) — The Wankel rotary engine suffered a setback in the United States this past week when General Motors Corp. said it was indefinitely delaying its introduction.

GM is the only American automaker which had announced plans to build and use the engine, which produces power through a rotating central core rather than conventional pistons. GM said the Wankel wasn't able to meet antipollution standards without using excessive amounts of fuel.

Ford Motor Co. and American Motors also hold licensing rights to the engine, but Ford has shelved its Wankel plans and American Motors has never announced any. Chrysler hasn't gotten involved with the engine.

While GM's decision may have set back the engine's use in this country, it didn't appear to rule but later use.

General Motors has already paid $35 million for licensing rights to the engine, is to pay another $10 million this December and another $5 million in December 1975. Indications were that the remaining payments would be made.

Brokers on the New York Stock Exchange need an 8 per cent hike in commission rates to ease their problems with the sagging stock market, NYSE Chairman James J. Needham told the Securities and Exchange Commission this past week.

The increases would apply to rates on trades worth between $5,000 and $300,000. Rates on trades below $2,000 and more than $300,000 are already set by negotiation, as the SEC wants all rates to be set by next May.

Needham argued that the hike, along with an increase in trading volume, could bring some $130 million in new revenues to brokers that belong to the Big Board.

One move aimed at picking up some new trading volume—and money—comes this Tuesday when the NYSE, American Stock Exchange and a variety of other markets extend their trading hours from 3:30 p.m. to 4 p.m. EDT.

At week's end, Federal Energy Administrator John C. Sawhill announced that the government was considering a massive investment in solar energy.

Sawhill told the World Energy Conference in Detroit, "The United States is considering a $1 billion research program on solar energy over the next five years."

Sawhill said, "It appears possible that by the year 2000, solar energy systems might be capable of supplying 5 to 10 per cent of total U.S. electricity requirements," adding, however, that alternate energy sources would have little impact before 1985.

Emergency landing is made by jet

CLINTON, Okla. (AP)—A burning engine forced a giant Air Force C5 cargo jet to make an emergency landing near here shortly before midnight Friday.

Eight persons aboard the craft walked to waiting ambulances to be taken to a Clinton hospital for routine checkups, the Highway Patrol said.

By 1:45 a.m. the plane, loaded with about 10,000 gallons of fuel, was reported burning out of control and firefighting units from Altus Air Force Base, Clinton, Weatherford and several other southwestern Oklahoma communities were standing by. The plane went down about a mile south of Clinton Airport, the Patrol said.

The C5 is the largest military aircraft in the world with a length of more than 300 feet and a tail section which stands taller than a six-story building.

Bicentennial groups to be introduced

A 10-member local Bicentennial observance committee and 10-member committee advisory board will be introduced at a breakfast to be held at 7:30 a.m. Thursday at State Fair Restaurant, Mayor Jerry Jones has announced.

Jones and Larry Melton, Chamber of Commerce executive manager, have been working on establishing the two groups for several weeks.

It is hoped a member of the State Bicentennial Commission will be present at the meeting, Jones indicated.

The two groups will be responsible for formulating and implementing a series of programs designed to qualify Sedalia as an official "bicentennial city."

Public wants Ford to beat economy problems

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (AP) — The American public is "desperately eager to see President Ford succeed" in overcoming the nation's economic problems, George Gallup Jr., pollster, said Friday night.

The economy is the major issue facing the nation and President Ford, Gallup told about 75 persons at the Drury College Candidates' Forum.

Gallup said the polls showed Ford was doing well with the public until he pardoned Richard Nixon Sept. 8 and then Ford "found he had to pacify angry constituents."

Americans generally are far ahead of their political leaders in thinking on such things as amnesty, Gallup said. And the polls show Americans generally are pessimistic about governmental institutions, and they want better moral leadership.

"But I think it would be wrong to present the situation as a portrait of gloom," Gallup said.

Despite the pessimism, Americans generally are less bitter than they were several years ago, he added.

The Candidate's Forum will continue Saturday. Various candidates will take turns presenting statements from the stage, then each will have a separate booth whre they can present their views more fully to interested citizens.

Regular bread is best

The Phoenix Nest

Edited by Martin Levin

By DERECK WILLIAMSON

I wish I knew why housewives were so fond of those awful little loaves of "special" bread. In the supermarket last week, everybody was reaching for the stubby packages of thin-sliced unpalatable material. Women seem to take grim delight in bringing the loaves home to their families.

I've learned the hard way that the healthier the ingredients, and the more complicated the baking process as listed on the wrapper, the worse the bread will taste. If the label says the flour was ground with broken millstones in New England, mixed with mountain water and cornmeal mush down South, and then roasted 500 times with natural soy seeds added, it will be inedible.

It will have the consistency and taste of an old inner tube. (If you've ever eaten an inner tube, you'll know what I mean. Kids nowadays don't have that opportunity because of tubeless tires.)

The only advantage the stuff seems to have over regular bread is its convenience as a child-pacifier. You can give a kid one of the little slices and he'll gum it all day without harming it. The slice can be used over and over.

If I try to make a man-sized sandwich out of the bread, the meat and cheese hangs out. And the bread absorbs nothing. Jam, mustard, or mayonnaise squirts out when I bite down.

The other morning I got up early and tried to toast a piece of skinny miniature diet bread. There was nothing else in the house; my wife had seen to that.

I pried out a slice from the thick waxed wrapper. The bread looked, and felt, already toasted. I dropped the brown slab into the toaster, and waited.

After a while, smoke curled up. Then the toaster went "click!"

Nothing appeared.

I found a flashlight and peered into the toaster, not my favorite way of starting a day. I could see the little slice down in there, bracing itself against the heating elements. The edges were burnt.

I tried sticking a knife in. Sparks came out. I decided not to stick a knife in there anymore.

I unplugged the toaster and turned it upside-down. Nothing happened. The bread remained wedged inside. I held the toaster over my head, looked up, and shook it.

I went into the bathroom and washed the crumbs out of my eyes. Then I took off my shirt and removed more crumbs with a stiff whisk-broom. I went back to the kitchen, got out a long fork, and slowly chipped out all of the bread, piece by piece. The job was difficult, but shouting obscenities made it a little easier.

When I'd finished, I had a large plateful of crums. I carried them outside and spread them on the ground. The birds shook their heads, and flew away.

Contest theme 'responsibility as a citizen'

The 28th annual Voice of Democracy radio scriptwriting program features "My Responsibility as a Citizen" as its theme this year. The contest is sponsored locally by VFW Post 2591 and its auxiliary.

Open to sophomores through senior high school students, the contest features a $10,000 scholarship as top prize.

Deadline for submitting the three to five minute taped entries is Nov. 28. A local VFW spokesman revealed that 27 local youths participated in the national contest last year.

Those interested in participating should contact Leslie Sturms, 826-0711, or Evelyn Miller, 826-7338.

GM to select new president Monday

By OWEN ULLMANN
Associated Press Writer

DETROIT (AP) — A moustached engineer who has helped General Motors design and sell automobiles since he was 18 is the odds-on favorite to become president of the world's largest manufacturer next week.

On Monday, when members of GM's board of directors emerge from special session in New York, auto observers are betting that Executive Vice President Elliott M. "Pete" Estes, 58, will be the man named to succeed retiring Edward Cole.

Estes' closest competition for the presidency comes from Richard L. Terrell, 55, also an executive vice president, who has been with GM for 37 years.

At that same meeting, the directors may name a new chairman to succeed Richard C. Gerstenberg, who retires in November. Vice Chairman Thomas A. Murphy is expected to be moved up to the top spot.

Cole, who became president in 1967, and Gerstenberg, chairman since 1972, are stepping down under the company's mandatory retirement at age 65 policy.

Estes, one of three senior vice presidents who occupy the second rung of the GM hierarcy, is favored in the presidential sweepstakes because he has extensive background in GM's bread-and-butter automotive divisions.

Terrell, by contrast, rose through the nonautomotive ranks in GM's Electro-Motive and Frigidaire divisions.

GM's third executive vice president, Oscar A. Lundin, one of the firm's top financial officers, is considered an outside shot for the presidency, principally because of his age. Lundin turns 64 in November, and thus would be forced to retire in 14 months.

Murphy, now 58, became chairman-heir apparent in 1972, when as a vice president he was catapulted over several higher-ranking officers to the vice chairmanship, a post previously occupied by Gerstenberg.

But trying to call the succession sweepstakes at GM is a risky business. Auto watchers caution that the directors, who include some of the top corporate officers in the nation, can be unpredictable in naming new chief officers.

Estes' career at GM parallels that of Cole, a highly respected engineer who has been GM's chief proponent of developments such as the catalytic converter, air bag and rotary engine.

Estes joined GM while still a student at General Motors Institute in Flint.

He was named group vice president in charge of GM's overseas operations in 1970, two years before ascending to his current post as head of the entire operations staff.

Although Terrell's advancement has kept pace with Estes', he hasn't Estes' direct contact with the automotive end of the business. This is considered by some as a drawback at a time when GM is combatting a prolonged auto sales slump which began late last year.

Terrell's GM career began in 1937.

Under the present GM corporate hierarchy, it is the chairman who spearheads the company's direction.

Murphy has spent 32 years with the financial staff — the traditional grooming grounds for previous company chairmen.

Propane probe by FEA is reported

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Energy Administration in Kansas City is investigating propane manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers to see if they violated price regulations, Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., said Friday.

FEA required a rollback to the May 15, 1975, level of propane prices, but allowed additional costs related directly to propane production.

Symington said he wanted to make sure prices were reduced in Missouri to meet the regulation.

Quotable women

By The Associated Press

Here are some quotable quotes from women during the week:

"I will do everything I can to help save the Lambs and develop the new Lambs club, which is a much-needed and exciting concept for the nation's first private club for the fine and all the performing arts." Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis, second woman member of the century-old theatrical group, in a statement in New York.

"I think it's a great adventure. When is a seaplane going to go around the world again? I'll have my camera clicking all the way." Actress Maureen O'Hara who, with her pilot husband, Capt. Charles Blair, began a 12,000-mile flight across the Pacific Ocean from Sydney, Australia, on a World War II flying boat.

"Any time and place I meet Americans, I tell them my gratitude and admiration for what their country has done for us." Vittoria Leone, Italy's First Lady, speaking of surgery performed upon her son years ago in Los Angeles which enabled him to walk, and preparing to visit the United States with her husband, Italian President Giovanni Leone.

"We've had criticism before. If you're in politics, you have to learn to live with it. You don't belong in politics if you don't." Betty Ford, speaking in Chicago about criticism of her husband's decision to pardon former President Nixon.

September ceremonies unite

Anders-Atkinson

Miss Marilyn Sue Anders and Louis Alan Atkinson were married at 8 p.m. Friday at Sacred Heart Catholic Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Anders, 620 South Massachusetts, and the groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. John Atkinson, Smithton.

The Rev. Mark Miller performed the ceremony before the altar decorated with white flowers. Debbie Eckhoff was the organist and Stacy Trotter was the vocalist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white Georgette crepe gown styled with a yoke of Chantilly lace, stand up collar and Gibson girl sleeves. Pearls edged the pleated trim on her collar, yoke and cuffs. Her skirt, with attached cathedral length train, was hand-appliqued with lace roses and trimmed with seed pearls. A clip of Chantilly lace and sata peau petals highlighted with seed pearls secured her elbow length illusion veil.

Miss Gail Capps was the maid of honor and Toni Atkinson, sister of the groom, was the bridesmaid. Karen Anders, sister of the bride, was candlelighter. They wore long yellow crepe gowns styled with empire waists, ruffled necklines and cuffs.

John Atkinson, brother of the groom, was best man. Randy Stevenson was the groomsman. Seating the guests were Robert Lindsey, cousin of the groom, and Allan Zimmerschied.

Following a reception in the school cafeteria, the couple left on a honeymoon to the Lake of the Ozarks. The bride wore a green pantsuit.

The couple will be at home in Smithton where the groom is employed at Missouri Mable Co. The bride is employed as a secretary at State Fair Community College. The groom holds an associate of arts degree from SFCC and the bride has received an associate of science degree from SFCC.

Hampy-Oelrichs

SMITHTON — Miss Shirley Hampy and David Oelrichs were united in marriage at 7:30 p.m. Sept. 20 at the United Methodist Church here.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Hampy, Smithton, and the groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Robert Oelrichs, Mora.

The Rev. Jerry Moon performed the candlelight ceremony before an altar decorated with palm leaves, multicolored carnations and gladioli. Blanche Sawford was the organist. Robbie Griffin and Kathy Price were vocalists.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a sheerganza gown with Chantilly lace edged in a delicate scallop pattern at the high neckline and cuffs of her Bishop sleeves. The lace also accented her skirt front, chapel length train and edged her mantilla of bridal illusion.

Mrs. Eugene Mahnken, sister of the bride, was the matron of honor. The maid of honor was Miss Brenda Oelrichs, sister of the groom. Bridesmaids were Miss Donna Oelrichs, sister of the groom, and Mrs. Ken Hampy, sister-in-law of the bride. They wore long crepe gowns with matching hair bows in pink, yellow, green and lavender.

Kim and Jan Howard, cousins of the groom, were candlelighters. Carrie Jo Brauer, cousin of the bride, was the flower girl. Brian Mahnken, nephew of the bride, was the ringbearer.

John McCutchen was best man. Serving as groomsmen were Mike Ackerman, Mike Hampy and Randy Oelrichs, cousin of the groom. Seating the guests were Ken Hampy, brother of the bride, and Fred Oelrichs, cousin of the groom.

Following a reception in the church basement, the couple left on a honeymoon; the bride wore a white pantsuit trimmed in red.

They are at home in Vallejo, Calif. The bride is a 1973 graduate of Smithton High School. The groom, a 1972 graduate of Smithton High School, is stationed with the U.S. Navy at Mare Island, Calif.

Wed 50 years

Mr. and Mrs. Kelly Aldredge, Warsaw, will celebrate their golden wedding anniversary with an open house from 2 to 4 p.m. Oct. 6 at the First Baptist Church, Warsaw. They were married Oct. 4, 1924, in Sedalia and have three children, Raymond Aldredge, Denver, Colo.; Mrs. James Greene, Aurora, Colo.; Mrs. Bill Bottcher, 1106 West Fourth; and seven grandchildren.

Reynolds celebrate 50th anniversary

KNOB NOSTER — Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Reynolds, Knob Noster, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary with an open house from 2 to 5 p.m. Sept. 22, attended by 150 friends and relatives. It was hosted by their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Reynolds, Warrensburg.

Mr. and Mrs. Reynolds were married Sept. 20, 1924, in Sedalia. The couple has one grandson.

Couple honored with open house

Mr. and Mrs. Don Duffer, Knob Noster, were honored with an open house Sept. 22 in celebration of their 25th wedding anniversary. The event was planned by Mrs. Roy Epple, Mrs. Gene Dale Thompson and Miss Rhonda Duffer.

The couple was married Sept. 24, 1949, at the home of the officiating minister, the Rev. O. A. Blaylock. They have two children, Randall and Rhonda Duffer; and two grandchildren.

The unglamorous potato

By TOM HOGE
AP Newsfeatures Writer

In the 17th century, it kept the Irish going, and after World War II it helped stave off famine in devastated Germany. But it took years for the upper classes in the Western world to accept the graceless potato on their dinner tables.

By itself, the potato possesses little glamor, but it is probably the most important vegetable on earth and today serves as the main source of nourishment in many lands.

The Spaniards discovered the potato in the 16th century during their conquest of the Inca empire in Peru and introduced the tuber to Europe.

For more than a century, the potato was grown mainly in flower gardens in England and on the continent. But by the end of the 17th century the improverished Irish had realized the nutritional value of the potato and made it their main crop.

Irish immigrants brought the potato to America with them; hence its oldtime name, the Irish spud.

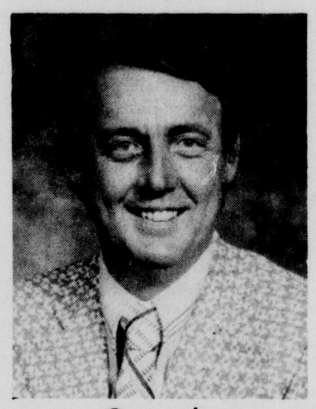

The potato made its debut in high society in the 18th century, when Louis XVI and Marie Antoinette of France began serving the robust vegetable at their royal court banquets. That did it. Soon famous chefs of France and Germany were outdoing themselves with dishes like Pommes Marguerite or Snow Potatoes with Sour cream.

By the late 1800s the potato had reached its epicurean peak in France with the creation of the Francillon Salad which became the rage of Paris. Basically, it consisted of hot sliced potatoes cooked in bouillon, then marinated in champagne and blended with poached mussels, an assortment of herbs and shallots. To make it still more costly, the final result is blanketed with sliced truffles and served in a fine crystal bowl.

The Germans have a knack with potatoes, from pancakes to German fried cooked in butter and sprinkled with paprika. One of their best concoctions, in my opinion, is a potato omelet which goes under the sprightly name of Hoppel Poppel. Try it with some black bread and a Bloody Mary for Sunday brunch.

3 medium potatoes
¼ cup butter
1-3rd cup diced onion
1 cup diced ham
6 eggs
2 tablespoons cognac
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
Dash worcestershire
1 tablespoon chopped parsley
½ cup grated Swiss cheese

Peel and cube potatoes. Melt butter in an 11-inch frying pan. Add potatoes and onions and saute till potatoes are light brown, stirring occasionally. Add ham and saute a few minutes more. Beat eggs with cognac, salt, pepper and Worcestershire, and pour over potatoes and ham. Sprinkle with parsley and reduce heat. With a spatula, lift cooked egg mixture from the edges of pan so that the liquid part can run down and cook. When omelet is nearly set, sprinkle with grated cheese and place under broiler till cheese melts. Cut into wedges. Serves 4.

Speaker

Don Willingham, an experienced broadcast media person from Tulsa, Okla., will speak on motivation at the annual Public Relations dinner meeting of the Sedalia Business and Professional Women's Club at 6:30 p.m. Thursday. Anyone interested in hearing Willingham should contact Shirley Wilson at 826-5669.

Brownfields observe silver anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Jess Junior Brownfield, Green Ridge, celebrated their silver wedding anniversary Wednesday. They were married Sept. 25, 1949, in Sedalia by the Rev. Walter P. Arnold. The couple has four children, Richard, Linda and Danny Brownfield, all of the home; Mrs. Raymond Hays Jr., 652 East 15th; and one grandchild.

Traditional attitudes are changing toward rape

Rape scene

This apparently quiet block in upper Manhattan harbored a rapist this past summer who is still at large. The victim, one of 3,000 persons reported raped in New York in the past year, was attacked in the street and dragged into the light colored building at right center where she was raped and slain. (AP)

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Jane M. is 22 years old with long, dirty blond hair that she's thinking of cutting "just for a change, you know."

She is attractive without being a knockout, the kind of girl mothers describe as "pleasing, such a nice person."

Jane M. also is a statistic in the New York City police records, one of some 3,000 persons who reported being raped last year.

She does not want her real name used and says she still has not completely recovered from the attack in her apartment hallway last November. The rapist has not been caught and Jane still feels a lump of fear in her throat when she enters her apartment building on Manhattan's West Side. She would like to move, but can't find a place she can afford on her salary as a clerk in the research division of a large insurance company.

The FBI says there is one forcible rape every 10 minutes in the United States, and the total during the first six months of 1974 increased 10 per cent compared with the same period last year. In the past 13 years rape has increased 119 per cent, according to the FBI. By comparison, murders and nonnegligent manslaughter went up 116 per cent in those 13 years.

The FBI statistics show 51,000 reported rapes in 1973, a total that works out to 47 rapes per 100,000 women. Officials of several of the nation's major cities cite several reasons for the dramatic rise in reported rape cases: a general crime increase, better statistical reporting methods, less reluctance to talk about sexual crimes.

Prodded by feminists, police and public officials in a number of states are beginning to change their attitudes about rape and how to deal with its victims. Laws requiring corroboration of a rape and proof that the victim fought the attacker are being changed.

California Gov. Ronald Reagan, for example, recently signed legislation changing the state's 100-year-old rape law to reduce the embarrassment and intimidation some rape victims claim they face. The bill limits courtroom interrogation of rape victims and prohibits many questions about a victim's prior sex life.

A bill pending in Michigan would provide a complete overhaul of the state's century-old rape law. It would extend the law to cover assaults on men, would define four separate categories of sexual attacks, would revise requirements for proof of rape and would eliminate the requirement that a rape victim prove she had defended herself at every stage of the attack.

Massachusetts lawmakers have been considering two measures. One, which has passed both houses of the legislature, redefines rape in terms of persons instead of women. The other requires police to set up special "rape reporting and prosecution units" with 24-hour hotlines for victims. The bill proposes that these units make special efforts to hire women officers, as well as counselors, attorneys and medical personnel to help rape victims.

Illinois State Rep. Peter P. Peters, a Republican from Chicago, heads a bipartisan Rape Study Committee established by the General Assembly to look into possible changes in the rape law.

Thus far, the group has reached no conclusions, but Peters said it has concentrated on several areas:

—What constitutes rape?

—How much resistance should the law require from the victim?

—What sort of care should authorities provide?

Feminist groups, working independently or with the cooperation of officials, already have set up special rape centers in many cities, including New York, Philadelphia, Chicago and Miami.

New York City established a sex crimes analysis unit in December 1972 and the group has expanded from five to 125 staff members. Headed by Lt. Mary Keefe, the unit is trying to find out more about rape and the people who commit it.

Jackson Memorial Hospital in Miami has opened a full-time Rape Treatment Center where rape victims can get counseling and medical help from specially trained professionals. City and county police also began a training program and Gov. Reubin Askew signed a law designed to make rape convictions easier.

The womanly art

Susan Murdock, who teaches women how to defend themselves at the Women's Martial Arts Center in New York, uses a neighbor as her target in an aggressive demonstration of self-defense techniques. She believes many young women who are victims of rape lack confidence in their ability to defend themselves and see themselves as physically weak and helpless in the face of attack. (AP)

The number of rapes in Miami and Dade County rose steadily through 1972 when 290 sexual assaults were reported. The figures declined slightly last year, but seem to be rising again in 1974, with 132 rapes reported in the first four months.

Why should women be reluctant to report a rape?

Police attitudes, for one thing, say feminists, who complain that authorities often treat the victim like the criminal, suggesting she led the attacker on or provoked him and didn't fight hard enough to stop the assault.

Officers react by "seeing rape as exciting, thinking it is the woman's fault," said Carol Bowner, director of the Feminists Women's Health Clinic in Los Angeles.

Diane Hoxmeier, information officer for the Los Angeles Commission for Assaults Against Women Rape Crisis Hotline, said that part of police work is establishing credibility, and questions designed to do just that often offend the victim. "We have to remove that stigma of 'Did you ask for it?'" she said.

A St. Louis rape squad was established after 1973 crime statistics showed a 10 per cent increase in forcible and attempted rapes. Officers assigned to the squad — initially set up on a six-month pilot basis — were given special training with psychologists, legal experts, laboratory technicians and juvenile officers.

Sgt. Celeste Ruwwe, an 18-year police veteran who heads the rape squad, said one of five two-member teams is called as soon as a sexual assault is reported and, if necessary, will accompany the victim to a hospital.

Polly's pointers

She sees red over yellowing plastic

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve is with the makers of women's dresses who use thread "eyes" for the hooks at the necklines. The thread breaks, the hook catches in one's hair and soon they have to be replaced. I cannot see why they do not use metal eyes, particularly the thread-covered ones that look so nice.

Plastic tops off coffee cans are great separators for chops, patties and things that are to be frozen but must be separated for cooking. Stack and wrap them in waxed paper and you can easily remove as many or as few as needed.

I sprinkle talcum powder on my mattress before putting on a clean bottom sheet and also inside the pillowcases just after fresh ones are put on. This gives the bed such a clean, fresh and luxurious feeling for sleeping. — AGNES.

DEAR POLLY — Barbara will have no more trouble threading a needle with polyester thread if she will cut the thread on an angle instead of biting, tearing or cutting it straight across. When cut on a slant it threads easily.

I make small pillow covers from my old sheets and use them as extra protection for my pillows. They go on under the regular pillowcases. — MRS. E.S.

DEAR POLLY — If several of the many keys on your key ring look somewhat alike, mark the grooves in the top of the keys with different color felt-tipped pens so they are easy to identify. — MARGARET.

DEAR POLLY — When in doubt about what to give new parents as a baby shower gift use typing paper to make a book of "checks" made out in different amounts (50 cents to $5) and later redeem them for baby-sitting services. — LEWIS.

DEAR POLLY — When washing wood-paneled walls I save money by doing the job with about two cups of vinegar added to each gallon of warm water. Dip rag or sponge in warm solution, wipe. You'll find it cuts dust, dirt and best of all, grease. This also leaves a nice bright shine. — MISS R.J.B.

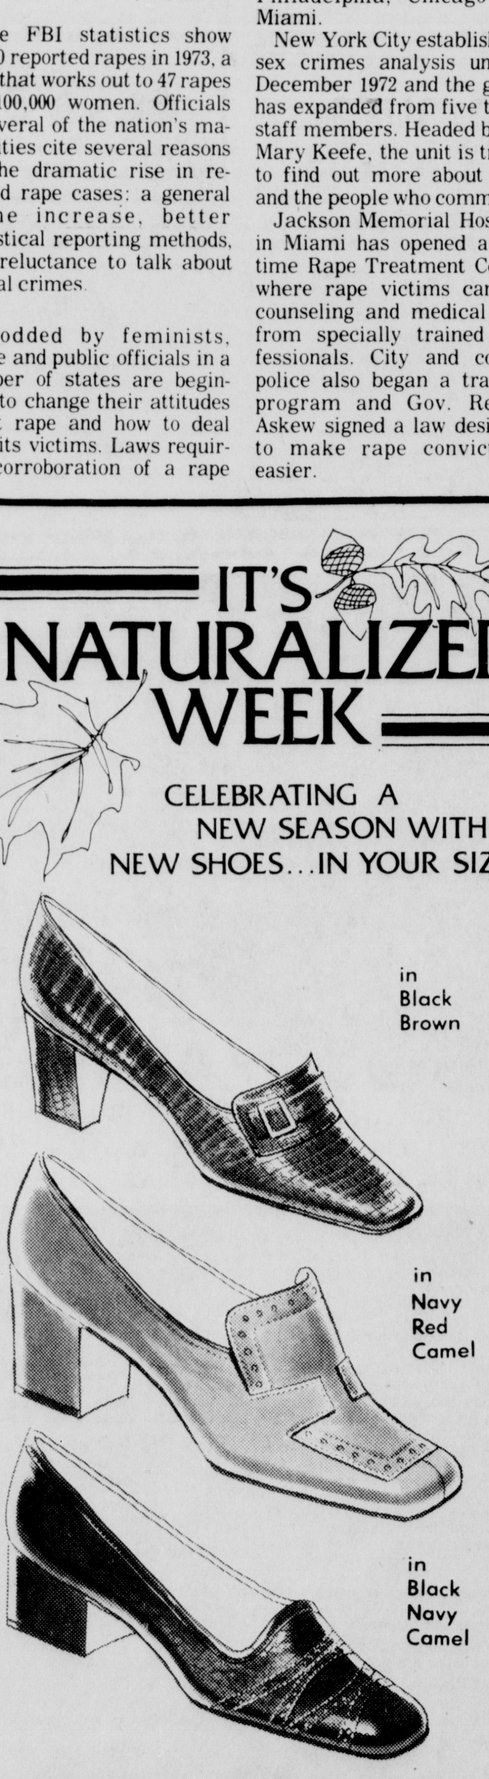

DEAR GIRLS — I have done this in the past and most successfully but do test a small inconspicuous spot first. Different woods and different finishes may make a difference in the results. — POLLY.

I'm Joe Bode at the Third and I want to be your banker!

Next to savings and checking, the reason most people use a bank is to borrow money. Usually, it's for something they need or want pretty quickly, and they'd like an answer as soon as possible.

That's why, when you come to the Third for a loan, we try to tell you immediately either yes or no. It's not a long drawn-out process, there's no checking with a supervisor or headquarters, no double talk — just straight answers. Our bank is people helping people, and it's demonstrated every day in the small loans department where I work.

If there's something you need, but don't have the ready cash, come and see me. If the loan's for a worthwhile purpose, I know we can work it out. I'm looking forward to meeting you.

Endangered species listing no protection

Who's afraid?

"She likes to play rough," admits Orin Benson of Eagle, Wis., shown here with Chinook, one of the eastern timber wolves he has raised for study. Wolves were once abundant in nearly every state east of the Mississippi, but are now found in less than one per cent of their former range. Though anti-wolf feelings run deep, protectionists are convinced of the species' ecological importance and are battling to save it. (AP)

By TIMOTHY HARPER
Associated Press Writer

MILAWUKEE, Wis. (AP) — Almost crackling with energy, Chinook skittered down the wooded path, lunging to the end of her leash and whirling in a cloud of gray-black fur and flashing teeth.

"Ah, she got me again," shrugged Orin Benson, sucking the trickle of blood from the bright red scratch on the arm holding the rope. "She likes to play rough."

Chinook is an eastern timber wolf — extinct in most of the 48 contiguous states; a source of bitter controversy in the few areas with remnant populations.

Dancing nervously on long, slender hind legs, she snapped and pawed playfully at Benson's head and shoulders. Her long tongue lolled, but she took in every movement out of slanted yellow eyes.

Benson has raised several litters of wolves at his rural Eagle, Wis., sporting dog kennels since becoming fascinated with the beast's manners and morals several years ago.

"I study them and they study me," he said. "There's really no way to tame them. They get wild even when you let them out for a little bit."

The once-proud ruler of the forest has been on the federal government's endangered species list since 1967. There are several reasons:

—The wolf needs virgin wilderness to survive — 40 square miles per animal, scientists say. But today a wolf is fortunate to have 10 square miles of uninterrupted forest in which to roam.

—Hunters are competing with the wolf for the white-tail deer, a staple in a wolf's diet.

—Farmers worried about attacks on their livestock oppose the efforts of conservationists to protect America's remaining wolves.

—And there is little public support for measures to save the wolf. That's because of an ingrained fear of the animal fostered in fairy tales, children's cartoons and horror movies.

John Harris, a Hayward, Calif., protectionist who has raised two dozen wolves, says the public is ignorant about them.

"There has never been a documented instance of a wolf attacking a human on this continent, Red Riding Hood to the contrary," said Harris, who travels the country, exhibiting his wolves and lecturing about them. Last summer, two on exhibit were poisoned in New York City.

Wolves number 3,000 to 5,000 in Alaska, but only between 300 and 1,000 still roam northern Minnesota, according to the latest estimates by biologists.

There are about two dozen on Michigan's Isle Royale in Lake Superior, but only a dozen or so — including four transplanted from Minnesota for study last winter — in the rest of the state.

Wisconsin, with an estimated 40,000 wolves in 1835, has fewer than six today.

There are no timber wolves in the rest of the United States. New England once had tens of thousands, but none has been sighted in the northeast in 30 years. Nationally, the wolf is now confined to less than one per cent of its original range.

The U.S. Interior Department classifies the wolf as "a species whose prospects of survival and reproduction are in immediate jeopardy." But this status provides no actual protection.

The Interior Department recently ordered Minnesota to scrap its predator control program, which allowed limited killing of wolves. That leaves Alaska as the only state paying wolf bounties. The wolf has had complete protection in Michigan since 1960 and in Wisconsin since 1967.

Scientists claim the wolf is vital to the survival of the deer — even though the normal adult wolf kills 20 deer per year — by culling out the weaker deer to improve breeding strains and preventing deer herds from overbrowsing.

"Deer would not be deer if wolves weren't around," said Dr. William Robinson of the University of Northern Michigan in Marquette. "The deer is a swift, graceful animal, and it's gotten that way through selective pressures brought by predators, and the wolf is the main predator."

"They say wolves are needed to thin out the deer," scoffed Arvid Haurunnen, head of the antiwolf Virginia (Minn.) Sportsmen's Club. "Hunters can do it just as well. The deer herd is down, and it's all because of the wolves. How about protecting the deer?"

Haurunnen, 71, has been hunting and trapping in the Minnesota wilds for 60 years. He's one of many woodsmen who does not believe the wolf is vanishing.

"I know for a fact there's over 4,000 wolves in northern Minnesota alone," he said. "They'll never be extinct. We've been hunting, trapping and poisoning them for 100 years and there's more now than ever."

Northwoods residents are especially critical of such groups as Help Our Wolves Live (HOWL) in Minneapolis and the celebrity-studded Fund for Animals in Washington. "We resent it when people in Los Angeles and New York try to tell us about wolves," said Dick Maw, a Lutsen, Minn., outdoors writer and Forest Service worker. "The wolves have wiped out sheep farming in northern Minnesota."

Many scientists explain that the greatest problem for wolves is not hunters, but the deteriorating deer habitat. They say that the maturation of northern forests has deprived the deer of the low shrubbery and other browse that sprouted after fires leveled the woods at the turn of the century.

"The wolf considers man either equal or below him," said Joan Gehr, whose family is raising nine wolves near Shawano, Wis. "He's not subservient like a dog."

Controversial character

To some she's just a big bad wolf. To others she's a noble animal sadly in danger of elimination in the U. S. Chinook, this eastern timber wolf raised by Orin Benson of Eagle, Wis., is one of a species on the federal government's endangered list. Farmers worried about their livestock and hunters competing with the wolf for white tail deer are the main opponents of conservationists who are trying to keep the species alive in the U. S. (AP)

Will of the people didn't always prevail

By this time everybody has read 10 times over that the nation has an "unelected" president and will shortly have a ditto vice president.

As one foreign observer has remarked, it seems an odd way for Americans to re-establish the legitimacy of their government. But if any great numbers of Americans are disturbed by the oddity, their concern is not very apparent.

Actually, while Gerald Ford may be, as he puts it, our first "instant" president, he is hardly our first "unelected" chief executive — not by a long shot — if by that term one means not having been chosen by popular vote.

Two U.S. presidents were chosen by the House of Representatives: Thomas Jefferson in 1800 when he tied with Aaron Burr in the Electoral College; and John Quincy Adams in 1824, even though Andrew Jackson had the most electoral votes (though not a majority).

It could be argued, of course, that Jefferson and Adams had run in national elections so their cases are not comparable to that of President Ford. Yet what kind of elections?

In Jefferson's day, the vast majority of the adult population could not vote — not slaves, nor women, and not men who failed to meet certain property qualifications. Only with the gradual adoption of universal manhood suffrage by the states in the early decades of the 19th century could it be said that "the people" (still excluding blacks and women) elected the president.

Even then, there was the blatant subrogation of the will of the majority in the contested election of 1876, when an Electoral Commission appointed by Congress took the victory away from Samuel J. Tilden and handed it to Rutherford B. Hayes — in return for certain considerations, like the removal of Union troops from the South.

Those who profess to see cause for alarm in the fact that the nation's 38th president never ran in a national election underestimate the basic strength and resilience as well as the complexity of American democracy, which has survived far worse crises of government "legitimacy." (NEA)

"BREEDING IS MY BUSINESS—FEEDING IS YOURS."

Merry-go-round

Johnny A's search for new identity

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — In past columns, we began the story of Eugene Ayotte, a former Detroit mobster with the moniker "Johnny A," who dared to testify against the Mafia.

He is now a frightened, lonely man, on the run from the Mafia, neglected by the Justice Department, which had promised him protection.

"You have no idea," he told us, "how many times I got discouraged and thought the hell with it. You've got to know and understand how it is to go against organized crime. The code is death. Let me ask you: Would you have, if you were me?"

Johnny A's story helps to explain why the Justice Department has trouble finding witnesses against the Mafia. For after he had spent a year testifying against his former Mafia associates, a Justice Department attorney turned him loose, with this remark to an aide: "Don't worry about this guy. I'll give him $50 and put him on a plane."

He married a girl who befriended him and settled down in Connecticut as a car salesman. Then someone out of his past dropped by and he moved on.

Once he was called back to Detroit for more testimony. "We got a motel with a kitchen," he recalled. "My wife was pregnant, unhappy."

After his testimony was taken, he was handed $500 and sent to Tulsa "to find a place to live, get settled and to have my teeth fixed." Later he was paid another $2,500 to begin a new life.

It wasn't enough. "I had to sell most of my clothes and all of my jewelry so that my wife could return to her mother's to have a doctor's care and to have the baby," he said.

Once they were apart, the marriage broke up. The "last time I heard about my wife," said Johnny A, "she was going on welfare to pay her doctor and hospital bills."

The Justice Department ultimately gave him a whole new identity, complete with false birth certificate, service discharge, driver's license and Social Security card. He was even furnished with another set of fingerprints so some future lawman, unaware of his cover, wouldn't turn up his criminal record.

Elated, Johnny A. began a new life in a faraway town. He found a good job and met a nice girl. But just before their marriage, he recounted, "my luck ran out." One dark Friday, he encountered a man from his past.

The former acquaintance looked, blinked and then blurted: "Hi, Johnny Ayotte. You remember me. I'm surprised to see you here."

Ayotte was stunned. "I believe you have made a mistake," he stammered. "I am not who you think I am."

"Aren't you from Detroit?" the man persisted.

Johnny A excused himself and phoned his employer that he was sick. He never went back.

Once again, he was on the move — another town, another job. The Justice Department meanwhile, had no more need for his testimony. His contacts told him they were "cutting him loose."

Low on funds, haunted by thoughts of Mafia killers searching for him, he began to take tranquilizers to calm his nerves — 10 milligrams a day. If they would find him, he feared, his new wife also "would be hit" — murdered — "as they wouldn't want any witnesses."

Yet he couldn't bring himself to tell her about his past and her possible danger. "I was so damn scared and mixed up, and I couldn't tell her the truth. I couldn't sleep. I felt lousy telling her one story after another."

As a final indignity, the Justice Department refused to continue subsidizing him after he ran out of money. His contact "suggested I go on welfare. This was the last straw."

Johnny A never finished grammar school, but his seething passions have given him eloquence. "I still wonder," he said, "do things like this matter to anyone? . . . I know I will have to move on somewhere soon. But I don't care; I just wanted you to know the way it is.

"I must have been out of my mind to try to help the government . . . I (did) my best to become a law-abiding citizen. I didn't break a single law. The government knows a person like myself with no education and all his life in the rackets has no useful way of making a living."

FOOTNOTE: A Justice Department official acknowledged there is a need for more funds and manpower to help Mafia defectors back into ordinary life. At present, little more than subsistence is ever paid, in part because federal law bans paying a witness for his testimony.

"We try to get them a job and give them protection," he said. But, in the end, it is up to the "new" citizen to make his own way. "We have prevented them from getting killed and gotten them out of jail. They're pretty much on their own as far as work is concerned, just like the rest of us."

A major problem, said the official, is that ex-mobsters are accustomed to big money and "it's a serious dislocation" for them to live modestly. "Some are satisfied with what we do, some are not," he summed up.

The spider

A spider's on my back storm door,
She has been there now for days
And through the glass I've watched her
In all her spider ways,
Her body seems very large
And sometimes it looks green,
Her long legs are a dark red,
Her web has silky sheen,
The first time I saw her
Her web just hung in air
And I hated to disturb it,
Still I had to get out there
So I had to spoil her fancy work
Of rainbow silky threads
For on one side the web came loose
Where wide across it spreads,
But she held on as one by one
The flimsy threads came loose
Then the next day she had mended it,
I would have said: "Oh, what's the use?"
For now I needed to go out
Again that old storm door
And still there in the center
She watched it as it tore,
But she's a clever spider,
Just determined as can be,
She said: "Now that's the last time
'I'll let you do that to me."
And so she spun another web
She labored long once more
This time, though, she defied me
She wove it on the door,
thus when I go out now
She hangs securely in her web,
I do not hurt a thing;
Today as I stood watching her
A flash of reddish brown
Flew passed to my shrubbery
And then down to the ground,
"She sees my spider there," I thought,
Then two male cardinals came,
One cocked his head and looked at her,
That spider was his aim,
But on the ground the female bird
A bug was trying to kill,
Her male companions flew away
And with the bug in her bill
She, too, flew away and so
I looked back at the spider then
And saw her very busy
In her fragile web again
But this time she was trying
To reach something with her feet,
A tiny insect had got caught
So now 'twas time to eat.

Lots of talk on problems of inflation

By CYRENE DEAR

WASHINGTON — Inflation is the number one problem in this country. President Ford has acknowledged this fact.

Both the President and Secretary Kissinger lit into the Arab oil countries in their recent speeches in Detroit and at the United Nations. Both told their audiences that the oil exporting nations are not going to be permitted to tip the rest of the world into economic chaos through constantly escalating prices.

In his State of the Union message Aug. 12, the President stated, "No segment of our population is more severely affected by inflation than the elderly, who live on fixed incomes which do not increase with a rapidly rising cost of living. Consequently I am seeking to bring together the best minds in the country to examine ways in which the inflationary spiral can be broken without imposing hardship on the poor and the elderly."

But inflation is even more widespread than that. A young office worker came home with a big brown bag saying, "This cost $17, and I didn't even buy any meat, just toilet paper, paper towels and other dispensables and some protein products and a few fruits and vegetables." such is the chief topic of conversation wherever one goes.

What are the best brains in the country doing about the economy and inflation? President Ford's first gathering of the nation's economists resulted in nothing but differences of opinion. The people are urged to "tighten their belts," but in some cases even in this country many persons don't have small enough belts to tighten because they are already too thin from lack of proper diet and not having enough food, let alone enough money to buy a belt.

Senator Humphrey suggested that people "eat one less hamburger a day." This, he said, would help the world grain shortage, if the American meat eaters would make this sacrifice. Most people can only afford one hamburger a day, and even more can't afford that. When Secretary of Agriculture Butz heard this he immediately suggested that we cut down on the dog and cat population which likewise "would suddenly release more grain for the world."

The economic brains will gather again for a summit meeting beginning tomorrow. Perhaps it will come up with some practical answers, but the present attitude is that we don't know what to do about inflation, so let's talk about something else.

This is my latest pipe dream:

Buchwald

A man comes into my office with a large suitcase. "Hi," he says. "My name's Nelson Rockefeller, but my friends call me Rocky."

"I'm sorry," I say. "I'm not interested in buying anything."

"No, you don't understand. I'm going to be vice president of the United States and, in order to prove there is no conflict of interest, I've decided to give up all my worldly goods."

"That's very nice, but why come to me?"

"Well," Rockefeller replies, "I just don't want to give my worldly goods to ANYBODY. I want to give my fortune to a person who has a responsibility toward the public and will not abuse the power that money brings — someone who won't just throw it away on wine, women and song."

"I can see that," I say.

"Happy and I were talking the other night with some friends and your name came up. They said you would be the only person who would know what to do with great sums of wealth."

I blush. "That's very nice, Rocky, but I just couldn't accept your money. After all, I hardly know you."

"Look," Rocky says, opening up the suitcase, "I've talked it over with my brothers and they are in complete agreement. They want to make you an honorary member of the family. They can't think of anybody they'd rather share their empire with."

I hold up my hand. "I'm sorry, but taking another man's fortune is out of the question. Just for curiosity's sake, though, what are we talking about?"

"Roughly $182 million, including trusts for all the children."

I whistle. "It's very tempting, Rocky, but if this ever got out my colleagues in the press corps would think you were trying to buy me."

"No one will ever know," he replies as he takes a large stack of securities out of his suitcase and throws them on my desk.

"What are those?" I ask.

"Three hundred and eight thousand shares of Exxon. And here are 206,000 shares of Standard Oil of California, and here is a stack of tax-free municipal bonds worth $10 million."

"Please," I tell him, "you're getting my desk all messed up."

Rocky keeps going back into the suitcase. "You want IBM stock, I have IBM stock; you want Caterpillar Tractor, I've got Caterpillar Tractor. Here, take my 17,000 shares of Dow Chemical."

"Look," I tell him, "I'm awfully busy. I have an appointment with my barber in 15 minutes. Perhaps you could come back another time."

"Don't send me away," Rocky begs. "You're the only one who knows what to do with inherited wealth. How can I go back to Happy and my brothers and tell them you turned me down?"

"This means a lot to you, doesn't it, Rocky?"

He's practically in tears. "I've wanted to be vice president of the United States all my life. The only thing that has stopped me has been my personal fortune. Give me a break."

"Well," I say as I start stacking the stocks and bonds neatly on my desk, "I'll take the money this one time. But don't let it happen again."

"Happy and I will be eternally grateful," he says.

I'm embarrassed. "Please get off your knees, Rocky. I would have done it for anybody. Maybe you can do a favor for me sometime."

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

The road runner is a ground cuckoo native to the arid regions of the United States, Mexico and Central America. Though the bird can fly, it prefers to run swiftly on the ground, using its long tail for balance and steering, The World Almanac notes. The road runner's reputation for killing small rattlesnakes and its "clown-like" behavior have won it many human friends.

Opening lead—6♥

By Oswald & James Jacoby

The code word "ARCH" can work for defenders as well as declarer. Analyze lead. Review the bidding. Count your winners and losers. And finally, "How can I beat this contract?"

East analyzes the opening lead as either a singleton or the top of a doubleton. In either event he is glad that he stuck in his miserable heart overcall. His review of the bidding tells him that South has two heart stoppers.

A first count of his winners tells him that he can be sure of just one heart and one club. A further review of the bidding shows that West will probably have exactly one king and maybe a jack. There aren't any queens unaccounted for and South certainly holds that heart ace.

Then East asks himself the $64,000 question: "How can I beat this hand?"

He finally finds the answer. If West's king is the king of clubs and he will cooperate, a fancy play will set declarer. So East plays his eight of hearts.

South can do no better than win the trick with the jack and lead a club. West hops up with the king and leads a second heart. East gets his hearts set up and the defense winds up with three hearts, two clubs and a clear profit of 100 points.

Smith-Cotton wins last-second thriller

ST. JOSEPH — A two-yard touchdown pass with 10 seconds remaining and a do-or-die two-point conversion gave Smith-Cotton its first win of the season, 29-28, over St. Joseph Lafayette here Saturday.

Trailing 28-21 with two minutes remaining in the game, the Tigers started the game-winning drive on the Lafayette 49-yard-line.

Four plays got the ball to the Lafayette 35 and a first down. Quarterback Rick McRoy completed a pass to the Lafayette 10. Two runs by halfback Marvin Spruel got the ball to the two-yard-line.

With 10 seconds remaining, McRoy hit back Bob Trautman with the touchdown pass. McRoy then passed to Ray Newbill in the end zone for the two-point conversion.

The Tigers, 0-3 coming into the game, came to life offensively, largely on the running of Spruell. He picked up 231 yards on 20 carries. Lafayette had a 2-0 record prior to the game.

Smith-Cotton got on the scoreboard first with an 11-yard-run by Spruell with 5:01 remaining in the first quarter. The drive began after a recovered fumble on the Lafayette 45. Spruell carried the ball four straight times before the touchdown run. McRoy kicked the conversion to make it 7-0.

Lafayette bounced back with 10:55 remaining in the first half on a nine-yard run by fullback Danny Ezzell. Joe Lackie's kick evened the score at 7-7.

On the ensuing kickoff, a 15-yard personal foul penalty against Lafayette gave the Tigers the ball 40 yards from the end zone. On the first play from scrimmage, Spruell, sprinted the entire distance. McRoy's kick made it 14-7.

After each team had drives that fizzled, Lafayette recovered a Bob Trautman fumble. A 15-yard penalty on the play moved the ball to the Smith-Cotton 35. Four plays later quarterback Terry Landess passed 18 yards to end Bill Davis. Lackie's kick made it 14-14.

Smith-Cotton had a chance to make the score 21-14 before half ended, but a 35-yard touchdown run by Spruell was called back on an illegal procedure penalty.

The only scoring in the third quarter came on a two-yard run by the Tigers' Ray Newbill. The eight-play, 58-yard drive was highlighted by Spruell's 23-yard run. McRoy's conversion made it 21-14.

Lafayette stunned Smith-Cotton with two touchdowns in about 10 seconds.

On the first play of the fourth quarter, Landess again hit Davis with a touchdown pass for Lafayette. This one covered 61 yards. Lackie's conversion tied the score at 21.

On the Tigers' first play from scrimmage after the kickoff, Ezzell intercepted a McRoy to Trautman lateral and ran about 20 yards for the touchdown. The conversion was good and the stage was set for the Tigers' last-minute heroics.

Clear sailing ahead

Purdue running back Pete Gross breaks through the Notre Dame line and goes 52 yards for a touchdown in the first quarter of Saturday's game. Purdue's Jeff Stapleton (78) moves to block the Fighting Irish's Mike Fanning (88). Purdue scored three touchdowns and a field goal in the first quarter and then held on to defeat heavily-favored Notre Dame 31-20.

Robinson, Doby await word

CLEVELAND (AP) — Frank Robinson and Larry Doby were considered the prime candidates Saturday to become major league baseball's first black manager, succeeding fired Ken Aspromonte as pilot of the Cleveland Indians.

General Manager Phil Seghi said Saturday he would name the new manager in the next two weeks.

"I have no timetable," Seghi said. "but it will be sometime prior to the World Series because I would like to have the new man with me at that time."

Seghi added that a clubhouse confrontation Friday night between Robinson and ace pitcher Gaylord Perry would have no effect on the decision.

Perry and Robinson clashed over the pitcher's comment to a Cleveland writer that he would demand $1 more than Robinson makes next season. Robinson's annual salary is $173,000 while Perry makes $85,000.

"When I make the decision of who it will be, money will not make the difference or players' attitudes will not make the difference," Seghi said. "I will pick the man because I think he is capable of leading this club to the championship."

Aspromonte told the Indians in an emotional clubhouse meeting Friday night he had been told by Seghi that he would not be rehired for next season.

There were strong indications that Seghi is ready to break baseball's managerial color barrier by hiring a black. If he does, it will be either Robinson, the veteran slugger acquired from California three weeks ago, and Doby, the Indians' first base coach and first black player in the American League when he joined Cleveland in 1948.

Rumors had dogged Aspromonte that he was on the way out as soon as the Indians acquired Robinson, the only man to win Most Valuable Player awards in both leagues and long considered a top candidate for a major league managing job.

Smith-Cotton runner beats all competition

Despite Fisher's performance, Lee's Summit High School came in first with a low score of 64 points. Smith-Cotton finished fifth with 115 points.

Second place went to Kansas City O'Hara, 76 points, while Marshall and Jefferson City finished third and fourth respectively with team scores of 100 and 104 points.

Smith-Cotton's Jeff Mittelhauser took sixth place with a time of 10:04. Other Tiger finishers were John Moore, 29th-place, 10:36; Tony Dabney, 38th-place, 10:47; Rick Hunter, 42nd-place, 10:51; Craig Faubion, 59th-place, 11:10; and Doug Slagel, 71st-place, 11:25.

In junior varsity action, Smith-Cotton took seventh place while Lee's Summit again captured the team title.

Smith-Cotton's Victor Dabney finished eighth with a time of 11:15. Other finishers were Bartley Ives, 26th-place, 11:45; Scott Gardner, 33rd-place, 12:10; Scott Miller, 58th-place, 13:58; Tim Bryant, 59th-place, 14:15; and Jim Page, 60th-place, 14:50.

The cross country team's next action is 10 a.m. Saturday at the Marshall Invitational Meet.

S-C Booster Club to see grid film

Films of the Smith-Cotton, St. Joseph Lafayette football game will be shown at a breakfast meeting of the Smith-Cotton Booster Club at 7 a.m. Wednesday.

The meeting, which will be held at State Fair Restaurant, is open to the public as well as members of the organization.

A club official said in making the announcement Friday that hopefully the meetings can be held weekly during the school year, featuring highlights of football, basketball, baseball and other activities sponsored within the high school.

There will be no charge for Wednesday's meeting except for those persons wishing to eat.

The meeting will be over by 8 a.m.

(Democrat-Capital Service)

WARSAW — Cole Camp has emerged as the lone undefeated team in the Kaysinger Conference baseball race as a result of Friday night's 16-6 shelling of Warsaw here.

The two teams entered play with unblemished 3-0 records.

The pitching of Kim Gooch, along with the batting of Mike Case, Burton Bormann and Jim Shireman sparked the Bluebirds' victory.

Gooch, who ran his strikeout total to 56 in 26 innings, mowed down 11 batters. Case banged out four hits, while Bormann and Shireman had two hits apiece.

Cole Camp struck for four quick runs in the first, but Warsaw knotted the count at 4-all in the third, scoring all their runs on four Cole Camp errors.

Cole Camp moved ahead 7-4 in the fifth, and put the game away with nine in the seventh.

Tipton upends Lakers

(Democrat-Capital Service)

CAMDENTON — Tipton took its first big step toward the Tri-County Conference championship here Friday night with a 32-22 win over defending football champion Camdenton.

Tipton gave up an early touchdown to the Lakers, but scored on its first play from scrimmage to set the tempo of the game.

Kirk Koechner hit split end Wesley Williams for a 60-yard touchdown pass. Dan Kuttenkuler added the two-point conversion to tie the game at 8-8.

Koechner gave Tipton its second touchdown of the game with a 10-yard run in the second half; Kuttenkuhler added the two-point conversion, but the Cards trailed at half time, 22-16.

The Cardinals stiffened up their defense in the third and fourth quarters, holding the Lakers scoreless and sllowing them only six yeards of total offense.

Kuttenkuler added Tipton's third score of the game on 12-yard run. Koechner ran for the conversion.

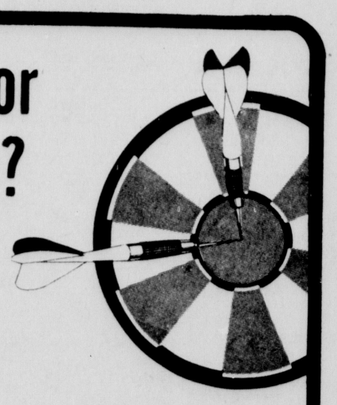

Tipton's last score came on a broken punting situation, when Koechner picked up the bad snap and ran 67 yards for the score. The conversion failed, but the Cardinals had built a 30-22 lead.

Tipton's final two points came on safety rung up by Brian Huhman.

Koechner led all rushers in the game with 183 yards on 22 carries. Camdenton's Kurt Dickerson picked up 139 yards on 20 carries. That represented the bulk of Camdenton's total offensive figure of 165 yards.

Tipton rushed for 263 yards and added 80 more through the air.

Truckers: Can a retread outwear a new radial?

Fleets across the country are reporting better wear with Bandag patented process retreads than with new tires, including radials. Bandag's amazing patented process assures:

- Tougher tread
- More miles
- Less downtime
- Longer casing life
- Better resistance to cuts, punctures, road hazards
- Better balanced, truer running tires
- Choice of over 100 combinations of latest tread designs and sizes

Find out why the country's biggest full service truck leasing company uses Bandag patented process retreads. Why out of the 25 biggest freight lines in the nation, the one with the rock-bottom lowest cost per tire mile is a 100% Bandag user. And why thousands of fleets in 63 countries are using Bandags to cut tire costs a good 20% and more.

Missouri stuns Sun Devils, 9-0

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Mark Miller hauled in a second quarter touchdown pass and Tim Gibbons kicked a fourth quarter field goal, lifting Missouri's inspired Tigers to a 9-0 upset over seventh-ranked Arizona State on a soggy field Saturday.

The Tiger triumph, boosting Missouri's record to 2-1, pinned the first shutout defeat on ASU in 97 games, extending to a 13-0 loss in 1965 by Utah State. Arizona State has won two this season.

The Sun Devils' Don Breunig intercepted a Smith pass late in the opening period but fumbled on the same play and Miller recovered at the ASU 37.

On the next play, Miller took a handoff from Smith on an end-around for a 19-yard gain and two plays later he scored on the Smith aerial.

Missouri was also bolstered by the running of fullbacks Ray Bybee and Tony Galbraith. The Tigers missed an early opportunity to score when freshman back Joe Stewart fumbled at ASU's 9.

Purdue 31, Notre Dame 20

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Quarterback Mike Terrizzi, playing with a badly bruised shoulder, directed unheralded Purdue to 24 first-quarter points and the Boilermaker defense held off second-ranked Notre Dame for a 31-20 victory Saturday, ending the nation's longest college football winning streak at 13 games.

A touchdown on a six-yard run by halfback Mike Northington with 9:23 remaining followed an interception deep in Notre Dame territory by linebacker Jim Wood and sealed the upset for the Boilermakers.

The Fighting Irish never recovered from a 24-0 first-period deficit, the most points ever scored in the opening quarter against Notre Dame. The Irish failed repeatedly to capitalize on good field position in the final three periods and were halted four times on fourth down thrusts deep in Purdue territory.

Terrizzi, a doubtful starter because of a bruised left shoulder suffered in last week's 7-7 tie with Miami, Ohio, was forced to leave the game with 8:42 remaining in the second quarter, with substitute Mark Vitali taking over.

Vitali directed the final Purdue scoring drive on five plays, hitting key passes good for 16 yards to Larry Burton and 14 yards to Paul Beery.

The triumph was reminiscent of a 28-14 Purdue victory on the same Notre Dame Stadium field in 1950, which ended a 39-game unbeaten string for the Irish.

Big 8

Colorado 24, Wisconsin 21

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — Fired-up Colorado, which earlier blew a 10-0 lead, bounced back behind the running of sophomore tailback Billy Waddy to upset 11th ranked Wisconsin 24-21 in college football Saturday.

The victory was the first of the season for the Buffaloes after being trounced by Louisiana State and Michigan on consecutive weekends. Wisconsin's record fell to 2-1.

Waddy, a sensation as a freshman but a disappointment so far this season with just 41 yards rushing in the first two games, skirted left end from five yards out for the winning touchdown early in the fourth quarter.

For the game, he carried 25 times for 151 yards.

Iowa State 34, BYU 7

AMES, Iowa (AP) — Tailback Mike Strachan set an Iowa State career rushing mark Saturday as the Cyclones defeated Brigham Young 34-7 before a record home-opener crowd of 32,000.

Strachan carried 28 times for 118 yards to eclipse the 13-yearold mark of 2,562 yards held by all-American Dave Hoppman. It was the 13th time in his Iowa State career that he surpassed 100 yards in one game.

The Iowa State defense—which had yielded nearly 900 yards in losses to Texas Tech and Washington—held the Cougars, 0-3, to 56 yards, including minus 11 total yards in the first half.

K-State 38, Pacific 7

MANHATTAN, Kan. (AP) — Reserve quarterback Arthur Bailey scored twice and Kansas State turned two mishandled punt attempts by Pacific into easy touchdowns in routing the injury-crippled Tigers 38-7 Saturday.

Bailey, a freshman subbing for injured regular Steve Grogan, rolled out for the Wildcats' first touchdown. It came after K-State got the ball at the Tiger eight following a fumbled center snap on a Pacific punt try.

He then guided the Wildcats 69 yards for 17-0 lead early in the second quarter, scoring himself from the two.

Kansas State, winning its first three games for the first time since 1939 also scored on Gordon Chambliss' 18-yard pass interception return for a 24-0 lead before Pacific scored.

Kansas 40, Fla. State 9

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) — Kansas parlayed the pinpoint passing of sophomore Scott McMichael with the powerful running of Laverne Smith and Robert Miller for a 40-9 intersectional football victory over Florida State Saturday.

The defeat extended the Seminoles' string of losses to 15. Kansas is 2-1 and Florida State 0-3 this year.

McMichael, whose big target was Emmett Edwards, threw an 18-yard pass to Bruce Adams for one touchdown. Smith, a sophomore, romped 25 yards and Miller, a senior, 24 for two more.

Kansas coach Don Fambrough played reserves much of the second and fourth quarters, and sophomore Calvin Prince responded with an 11-yard touchdown run, and freshman Bill Campfield with a 27-yard sprint good for six points.

The victorious Jayhawks utilized three different place kickers. Monty Hobbs kicked a 22-yard field goal and two extra points, and Mike Love converted twice. Bob Swift failed on a 47-yard field goal effort.

With Kansas leading 7-0, Ahmet Askin booted a 42-yard field goal for Florida State in the first quarter, and the Seminoles were never able to threaten seriously thereafter until Leon Bright scored from 6 yards out in the last minute.

Oklahoma 72, Utah State 3

NORMAN, Okla. (AP)—Joe Washington bolted for two touchdowns as third-ranked Oklahoma scored a school record 42 points in the first quarter and blitzed previously unbeaten Utah State, 72-3, Saturday.

Five interceptions by the swift Sooner secondary contributed to the fiasco with two pass thefts returned for touchdowns. A northwest wind in excess of 20 miles per hour did not help the Aggies' dilemma.

Oklahoma scored on each of its five possessions in the initial period and also tallied when safety Randy Hughes picked off a Tom Wilson pass and sped 32 yards into the end zone.

Utah State was playing without its leading rusher, tailback Louie Giammona, who injured his leg when he ran into a chair at the airport at Salt Lake City.

The remaining Aggie runners had about the same luck against the Sooner defense, gaining only 48 yards rushing— this despite liberal Sooner substitution after the early stages of the game.

Quarterback Steve Davis hit Tinker Owens on a 26-yard touchdown pass to start the scoring barrage 3½ minutes into the first period.

Hughes' interception was sandwiched between scoring spurts of three and six yards by Washington. Washington, a Port Arthur, Tex., sophomore went into the game as the nation's leading rusher but ran only one play after intermission and had only 55 yards in seven carries.

Nebraska 49, Northwestern 7

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP)—With a healthy Dave Humm at the helm, Nebraska's 10th-ranked Cornhuskers pounded out a 49-7 victory over outclassed Northwestern in a non-conference football game Saturday.

Humm, injured in Nebraska's loss to Wisconsin last week, guided the Huskers to their first four touchdowns, then went to the bench while his teammates worked over the visiting Wildcats. He was a doubtful starter until minutes before the game.

Freshman Monte Anthony led all ground gainers as he picked up 111 yards on 14 carries. Anthony also scored one touchdown as he paced the Husker substitutes that showed no mercy to Wildcat Coach John Pont's proteges.

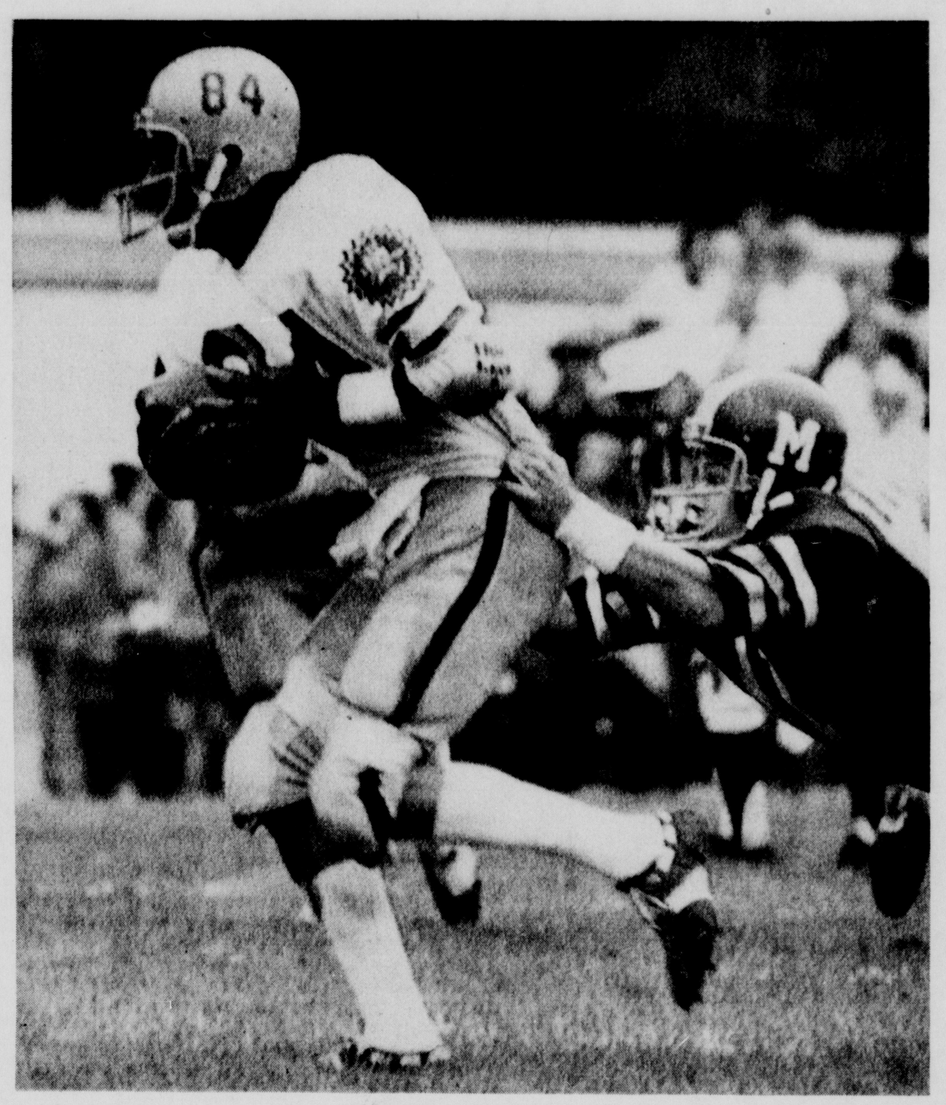

Northwestern, 0-3, couldn't score until the opening play of the fourth quarter when tailback Rich Booth capped a 48-yard drive by plunging over from the one.

Northwestern suffered from fumbleitis in the early going as Nebraska's first two scores were set up by Wildcat miscues.

Quarterback Steve Moor, a junior playing in his first varsity game, fumbled the ball on the Northwestern 20. Nebraska, which had given up a fumble earlier in the game, took advantage of the break and marched 20 yards in four plays with wingback Don Westbrook carrying over from the five on a counter-play. It was the third straight game in which Westbrook opened the Huskers' scoring with the same counterplay.

That fumble was a sign of things to come as fullback Jim Trimble coughed up the ball on the first play from scrimmage after the Wildcats took the ensuing kickoff and Husker middle guard John Lee pounced on the ball at the Northwestern 40-yard line.

Onofrio says revenge was factor in victory

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Coach Al Onofrio, whose Missouri's Tigers Saturday upset seventh-ranked Arizona State 9-0, said revenge played at least a part in the triumph.

"Our players had a special look before the game," said Onofrio, whose team was a 49-35 victim of the Sun Devils in the 1972 Fiesta Bowl, "and at no time was there anything but fire in their eyes."

Onofrio's assessment was confirmed by Mark Miller, a swift senior slotback, who scored the game's only touchdown on an 18-yard pass from quarterback Ray Smith.

"This game was a long time coming for me," said Miller, whose home is Mesa, Ariz. "I wanted so bad to beat them and I'm glad I didn't choke."

Missouri's ability to shut off Arizona State's inside running was seen as the key by the Tigers' defensive secondary coach Clay Cooper.

And safety Tony Gillick, who picked off two passes thrown by ASU freshman Dennis Sproul, said the efforts of linemen Mark Johnson and Tom Cooper, and linebackers Lynn Evans and Scott Pickens "made our job easy in the secondary."

"Our offense came through when it had to," said Onofrio, whose team sloshed its way to 267 yards on treacherous footing to Arizona State's 232.

Missouri played ball control and put us in bad filed position," ASU Coach Frank Kush noted. "We never could get untracked and our defense also let us down."

Denied by Kush as a factor in the outcome was the condition of the field following heavy pregame rain.

"The muddy field was no factor," he insisted. "It was muddy at both ends. Give Missouri credit. They just beat the heck out of us."

Pirates take over first as Cubs defeat Cardinals

CHICAGO (AP) — Bill Madlock's bases-loaded triple in the sixth inning vaulted the Chicago Cubs to an 8-3 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals Saturday.

Pitcher Dave LaRoche opened the sixth with a single and Rick Monday singled off first baseman Joe Torre's glove. Don Kessinger walked to load the bases. Billy Williams, who had homered in the third, popped out before Madlock delivered his triple to right center off loser Lynn McGlothen, 16-12.

The Cardinals had taken a 3-0 lead in the fourth inning, scoring all their runs with two out and after a 29-minute rain delay.

Chicago starting pitcher Rick Reuschel walked Ted Simmons and Torre before the rains came. Reuschel did not return because of a blister on his right index finger. Laroche walked Bake McBride to fill the bases. Ken Reitz singled home two runs and Mike Tyson followed with a a run-scoring double.

The Cardinal defenses collapsed in the seventh when the Cubs struck for four unearned runs on a pair of singles and three successive Cardinal errors.

Pirates 7, Mets 3

NEW YORK (AP) — Richie Hebner hit a three-run homer and Richie Zisk lashed a two-run shot Saturday, leading the Pittsburgh Pirates to a 7-3 victory over the New York Mets.

The victory moved the Pirates into a one-game lead in the National League East over the St. Louis Cardinals, who lost 8-3 to the Chicago Cubs. Each club has four games remaining.

Hebner's three-run blast off loser Tug McGraw, 6-11, broke a 1-1 tie in the third inning. It was Hebner's 18th homer of the season. Hebner also scored a run in the eighth on Rennie Stennett's single.

Zisk chased McGraw with his 17th homer in the fifth with Al Oliver aboard via a double.

After the Pirates took a 1-0 lead in the first inning on Oliver's run-scoring double play bouncer, the Mets tied the score in their half of the inning on Rusty Staub's RBI grounder.

Expos 3, Phillies 1

MONTREAL (AP) — Steve Renko hurled a seven-hitter and Gary Carter clubbed his first major league home run and singled, driving in another run as the Montreal Expos downed the Philadelphia Phillies 3-1 Saturday.

Carter homered off Phillies starter and loser Steve Carlton, 16-13, in the second.

Carter singled with two out in the sixth, scoring Bob Bailey from second. Bailey singled and moved to second on a hit by catcher Barry Foote.

Reds 13, Giants 6

CINCINNATI (AP) — Dave Concepcion's three-run homer in the seventh inning snapped a 6-6 tie and led the Cincinnati Reds to a 13-6 victory over the San Francisco Giants Saturday.

The victory kept alive Cincinnati's slim hopes of overtaking the Los Angeles Dodgers in the National League West race. The Reds were 2½ games behind the first-place Dodgers, who played a night game at San Diego Saturday.

The Reds took a 2-0 lead in the first when Pete Rose opened with a walk, moved to third on a single by Joe Morgan and scored on Johnny Bench's single. Morgan came in to score on Concepcion's two-out pop fly single to right.

The Giants got three runs in the third, two of them on a homer by Dave Kingman, then tied the score when relief pitcher Ed Halicki led off fourth inning with his first major league homer.

The Reds got three runs in the third, two of them on a homer by Dave Kingman, then tied the score when relief pitcher Ed Halicki led off fourth inning with his first major league homer.

The Reds broke the game open with four runs in the eighth. Rose tripled, Bench was intentionally walked and Tony Perez drove home Rose with a double for his 100th RBI of the season. Ray Knight then cracked a two-run double, his first hit in the major leagues, and Ken Griffey drove in the fourth run with a single.

Yanks top Indians, sweep doubleheader

CLEVELAND (AP) — Two-run homers by Ron Blomberg and Roy White highlighted a five-run outburst in the eighth inning that carried the New York Yankees to a 9-7 victory over the Cleveland Indians and a sweep of their Saturday doubleheader.

The sweep lifted the Yankees into a first-place tie with the Baltimore Orioles in the American League East race. The Orioles played host to the Milwaukee Brewers in a night game.

Blomberg belted a pair of two-run homers and Graig Nettles hit another two-run blast, powering the Yankees to a 9-3 victory in the opener.

Orioles 7, Brewers 1

BALTIMORE (AP) — Mike Cuellar scattered six hits to notch his 22nd victory of the season and Don Baylor and Paul Blair belted two-run doubles, leading Baltimore to a 7-1 decision over the Milwaukee Brewers Saturday night that kept the Orioles in first place in the American League East.

Baltimore has posted a 24-6 record, an .800 pace, since Aug. 28 and is 87-71 with four games left to play in the regular season. New York is 87-72 with three games remaining.

Baylor doubled to the opposite field for two runs in the third inning. A similar shot in the fourth by Blair, the ninth Baltimore hit, chased loser Billy Champion, 11-4.

The first two Baltimore runs scored in the opening inning when catcher Charlie Moore threw wildly past third base as Blair and Bobby Grich worked a double steal. Both runners crossed the plate on Moore's error.

A's 6, White Sox 5

OAKLAND (AP) — Gene Tenace smashed a three-run homer in the first inning. Joe Rudi added a two-run shot in the third and the Oakland A's held off the Chicago White Sox 6-5 Saturday.

The victory went to Vida Blue, 17-15, who pitched the first five innings, allowing two runs.

Red Sox 7, Tigers 2

DETROIT (AP) — Fred Lynn's triple and Bob Montgomery's double keyed a five-run outburst in the fourth inning that carried the Boston Red Sox to a 7-2 victory over the Detroit Tigers on Saturday.

Boston took a 1-0 lead in the first when Cecil Cooper walked and Jim Rice tripled, but the Tigers took a 2-1 lead in the bottom of the first.

ATLANTA (AP) — In a few days, Henry Aaron can look back on the 1974 baseball season with fond memories of home runs hit and records broken in a brilliant career.

But, for the Atlanta Braves' star, the last days also will be tinged with sadness.

On Wednesday, Oct. 2, when the lights in Atlanta Stadium have dimmed after the last out against the Cincinnati Reds, Aaron will have made his last appearance as a player, retiring after 21 years as a Brave.

"I've got mixed emotions about retiring," says the 40-year-old Aaron. "I know it won't be easy walking away from the game after playing it all of my teen-age and adult life. But you can't play forever."

A crowd of about 40,000 is expected for Aaron's final game which probably will bring back memories of opening night on April 8 when he became baseball's all-time home run king, cracking No. 715 off Los Angeles' Al Downing and surpassing Babe Ruth's mark.

"When the final curtain comes down, my record will speak for itself," he says. "I'm not trying to make anyone forget the Babe, but only to remember Hank Aaron."

He will be remembered, not only for No. 715 but for the 25 National League records and 18 major league marks he holds.

Aaron has been promised a front-office position with the Braves and also has a $1-million contract with a television manufacturer.

"Naturally, I want to remain in baseball in some capacity," he says. "But that hasn't been discussed in detail yet."

As for his records, Aaron says he never really thought about them.

"Not even the home run record, until such was made of it. To tell you the truth, I don't know where I stand with all those other records. I never look at them."

Of his 25 National League records, 18 are also major league marks.

They include: most career home runs; most career at bats; most career games; most years with 30 or more homers, 15; most years with 100 or more runs scored, 15; most years leading league in total bases, eight; most years with 300 or more total bases, 15; most years playing in 150 or more games, 14; most years with 100 or more extra bases on long hits, 19; most years with 20 or more homers, 19; most consecutive years with 20 or more homers, 19; most career total bases; most career sacrifice flies; most career intentional walks; most career extra base hits; most career runs scored; most career extra bases on long hits, and most career total plate appearances.

The seven other NL records are: most years with 40 or more home runs, 8; most years with 600 or more at bats, 10; most years with one or more homers in all parks, nine; most years with 100 or more RBI, 11; most consecutive years with 100 or more runs scored, 13; most career RBI, and most career grand slam homers, 16.

Double main event set on mat card

Two main events have been scheduled for Tuesday's professional wrestling program at Convention Hall in Liberty Park.

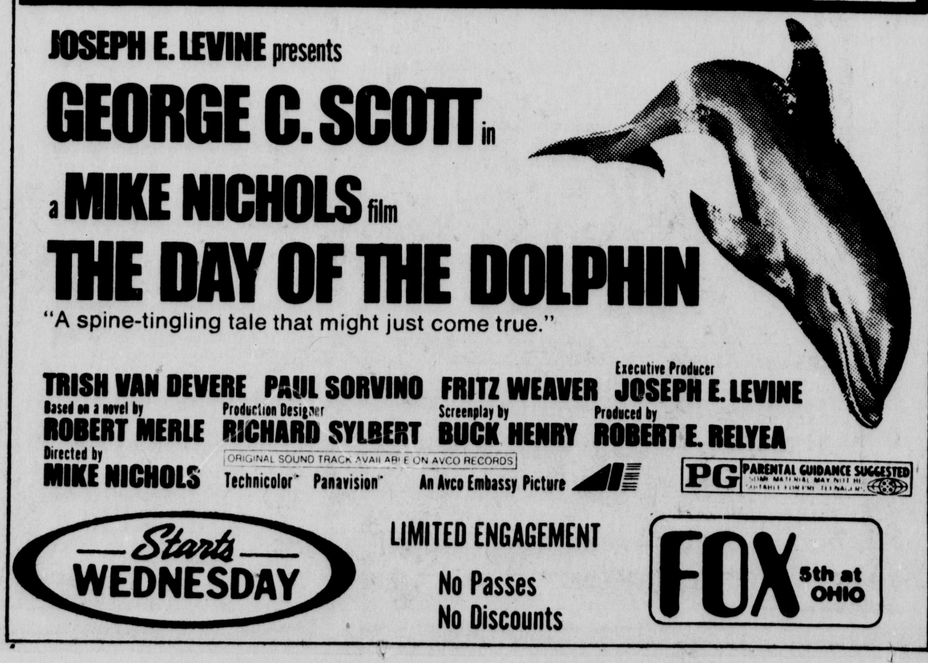

One of the pairings pits Jerry Oates in a return match with Bob Brown in a lumberjack match. The other end of the double-main event finds the tag team of Ronnie Etchison and Mike George facing Karl Krupp and Lord Alfred Hayes.

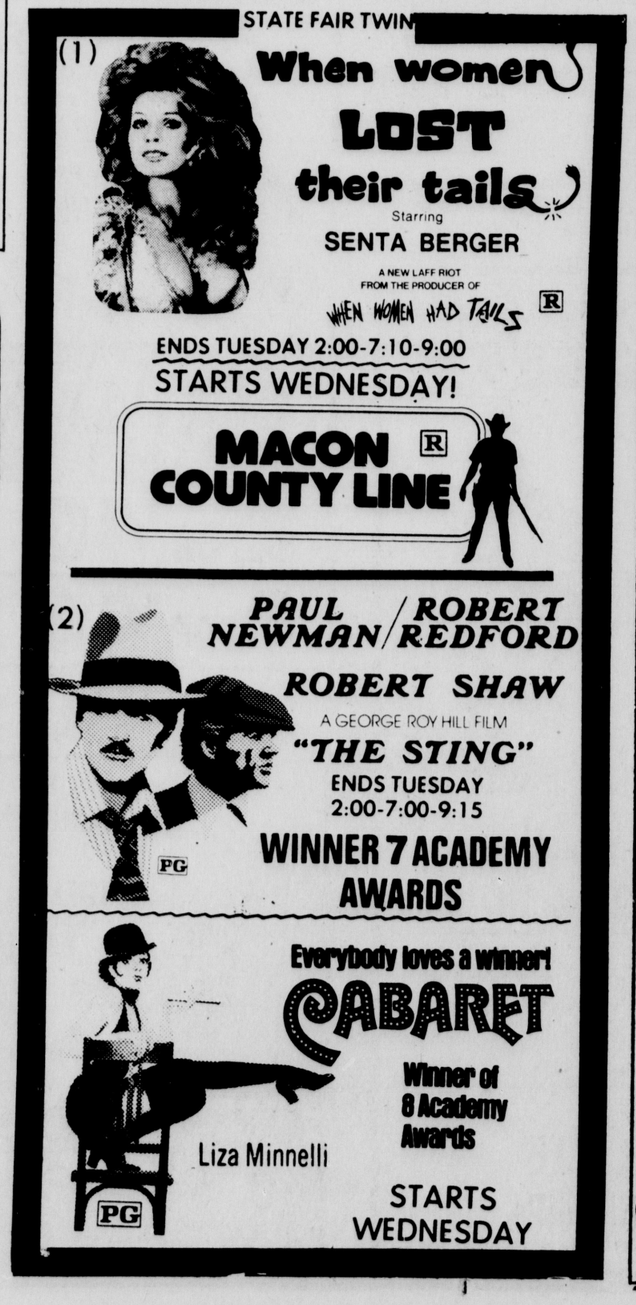

Frank Diamond will meet Bad News Beach in the semifinal, while Etchison and Hayes open the four-event show at 8:30 p.m.

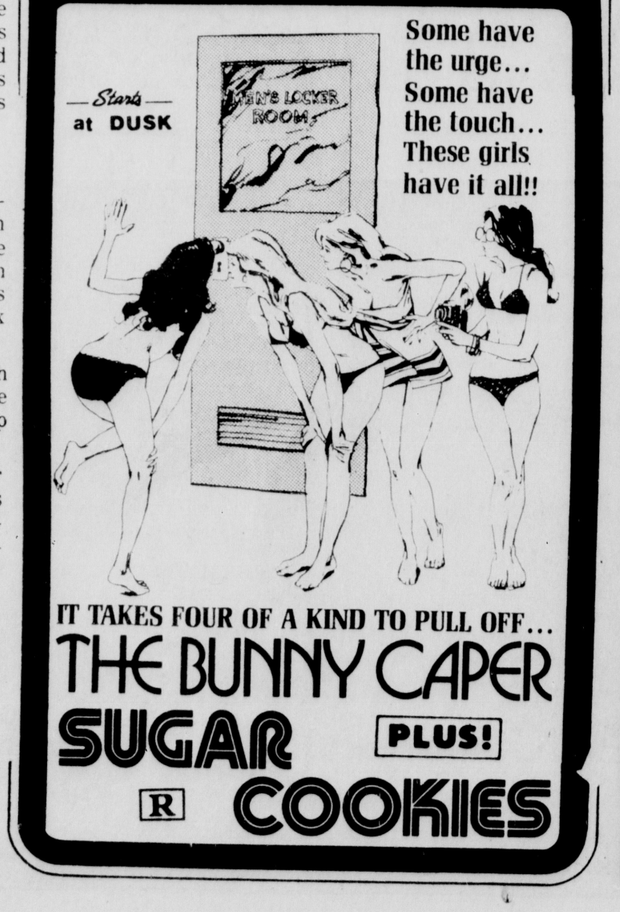

Advance tickets may be purchased at Zip's Drug Store or the Coffee Pot Cafe.

Rockefeller lost money on stocks

WASHINGTON (AP) — The slumping stock market cost Vice President-designate Nelson A. Rockefeller more than $20 million in just two months this summer, according to comparative figures for the principal trust from which he gets income.

On June 28, its portfolio, the bulk of it in a dozen common stocks, was worth $126.8 million.

On Aug. 23, they were worth just $106.2 million.

And since then, they may have dropped another $5 million.

The comparisons were made possible when New York magazine published the June 28 figures, which a reliable source later confirmed, and the former New York governor presented the Aug. 23 figures to the Senate Rules Committee.

The Rules Committee is studying the figures as it seeks to compile the mass of material it has received on the former New York governor.

Any further action, however, will have to await audits of Rockefeller's taxes being prepared by the Internal Revenue Service for the Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation.

Though chairman Howard W. Cannon, D-Nev., expressed hope they would be ready to permit the Rules Committee to proceed on the Rockefeller nomination next week, informed sources said it would take longer, probably until mid-October.

House Judiciary Committee hearings won't even start until then.

3—In Memoriam

IN MEMORY OF DELBERTA F. WILSON who left us two years ago September 29th, 1972.
If ever she spoke to you,
you never forgot her.
If ever she touched your life,
she became a part of you.
She was a friend of ours and loved by many.
For if you knew her, you loved her.
The tenderness and beauty that followed this woman should guide the rest of the world to a better understanding of selflessness.
Yes, she was beauty.
She was kindness, she was soft spoken and gentle.
She is missed.
God knows we miss her, but perhaps, He did too.

Sadly miseed by her Children and Grandchildren.

CHEVROLET MAKES SENSE FOR AMERICA IN EVERY WAY.

MONZA 2+2. OUR NEW SMALL CAR.

The small car of tomarrow will be a little more of everything. It'll probably be more advanced and economical, probably a little more powerful, fun to drive, handier to load with packages, a little more comfortable to be in.

The 1975 Monza 2 + 2 approaches this today, right down to the neat new rectangular headlights. Order your's with our new 4.3 litre V8. Standard features include turbo-hydramatic transmission, a deluxe interior with bucket seats, soft grain vinyl trim, carpeting, sport wheels, radial tires, and a hatchback rear door, opening up the entire back of the car for wagon-type loading.

BILL GREER MOTORS INTRODUCES THE ALL NEW 1975 FORD CARS AND TRUCKS

NOW ON DISPLAY in our showroom

The Design:

Ford Granada is designed to help deal with such problems as crowded roads, increased fuel cost and maintenance. Granada is about 2 feet shorter and a half ton lighter than most standard-size cars. So you can expect excellent gas mileage. Yet there's family-size room inside.

The Economics:

A luxurious car today has to earn its keep. Granada doesn't back away from that fact. Its trim design helps reduce needless weight and excessive fuel consumption. Granada's base engine is a Six that's economical and easy to maintain. Gas-saving radial ply tires.

GRANADA 4-DR. GHIA

The Comforts:

Granada is planned for riding comfort and durable good taste. Appointments have such a rich look you'll wonder whether you're admiring the top-of-the-line. Supple vinyl trim is standard, and both front seats recline. Granada Ghia provides extra styling and elegance.

Ford announces two cars in the best tradition of luxury. Sized and priced for today.

1975 Ford Elite

A new mid-size car in the Thunderbird tradition.

Ford Elite combines the operating economy of a mid-size car with styling and luxury in the Thunderbird tradition. And Elite comes to you complete with twin opera windows and standard features like power steering, power front disc brakes, automatic transmission and steel-belted radials. Its big 26½ gallon fuel tank gives you good cruising range. The personal luxury mid-size built for the way you drive today. Ford Elite.

1975 Ford LTD Landau

Designed to replace longer, heavier, more expensive luxury cars like Buick Electra Limited and Oldsmobile 98 Regency.

We think that if you'll not only compare the workmanship in this new automobile but also compare it for size, comfort and luxury, you'll find that you can get the things you want from a traditional luxury car, but sticker priced hundreds of dollars less. LTD Landau special features and appointments that make Landau so distinctive include: □ Hidden headlamps for distinctive styling □ Color-keyed vinyl bodyside moldings □ Front cornering lamps □ Flight bench seat with center armrest □ Lush knit cloth and vinyl trim □ Vinyl roof □ Electric trunk lid release □ Right- and left-hand remote control mirrors □ Automatic seat back release (2-Door).

The main thing you don't get is hundreds of pounds of extra weight and almost a foot of extra length. The new Ford LTD Landau advantage is the security of a solid well-made automobile but with sensible size and weight.

By WILLIAM GLOVER
AP Drama Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — "If you live with a sense of wonder, life becomes full of joy," says Doug Henning whose gasp-provoking talent qualifies him as Broadway's wonderful new Wizard of Ahs.

The nimble young master of illusion arrived unheralded, just as the summer doldrums were beginning, in "The Magic Show," a long-shot prospect for Main Stem durability.

Henning's wizardry at a dozen feats, such as turning an actress into a cougar or escaping from a trap of steel spikes while a 300-pound bed hurtles downward, magically transformed zero box-office advance into the sturdiest SRO around.

The triumph was strictly a one-man coup. The surrounding story and music were dismissed as less than marvelous by critics, several of whom cheekily suggested he make the ho-hum trimmings vanish.

"I haven't had a chance to see it," the star politely sidesteps comment. He expresses far more concern over the efforts of the producers to have him write a manual of instructions so that road companies can be sent out to duplicate his mysteries. Just as though it were all a play text or musical book.

His favorite description of his Merlin skill is: "The difficult must become habit, habit become easy, and the easy beautiful."

The 27-year-old entertainer has been honing ability at elegant deception ever since he saw a levitation act on the Ed Sullivan TV show back in Winnipeg, Canada, at age 6. By 14 he was sufficiently adept to charge $5 for appearances at birthday parties and Cub Scout meetings in Oakville, a Toronto suburb.

He used the fees to buy books on the arcane art and now has more than 1,000. At McMaster University, Hamilton, he majored in psychology, wrote his degree thesis on hypnotism. Along the way the Canada Arts Council provided a $4,000 grant to travel the world "to find magic that people can't detect."

His research also has taken him deep into Oriental religions, familiarity with the psychokenetic research of Buckminster Fuller, telepathy, and an unshakable belief that "UFO's intellectually make more sense than a cure for cancer."

He feels only a handful of other performers are his peers today: Kio, a Russian; Tihany, in Mexico; Spain's Ricciardi; Mark Wilson of Los Angeles; and the "greatest of all," the team of Siegfried and Roy who have been using lions and tigers in legerdemain in Las Vegas for five years.

"They baffle me, and I don't care," he says of the latter. Meanwhile, with enough material already on hand "for five sequels" he is at work on more illusions, particularly for an upcoming television special.

Instead of the dinner jacket or white tie garb fancied by most necromancers, wispy 5-foot-7 Henning opts for mod jeans and jersey. Sports long hair and a mustache.

"I don't look like a magician," he argues, "and that increases audience surprise."

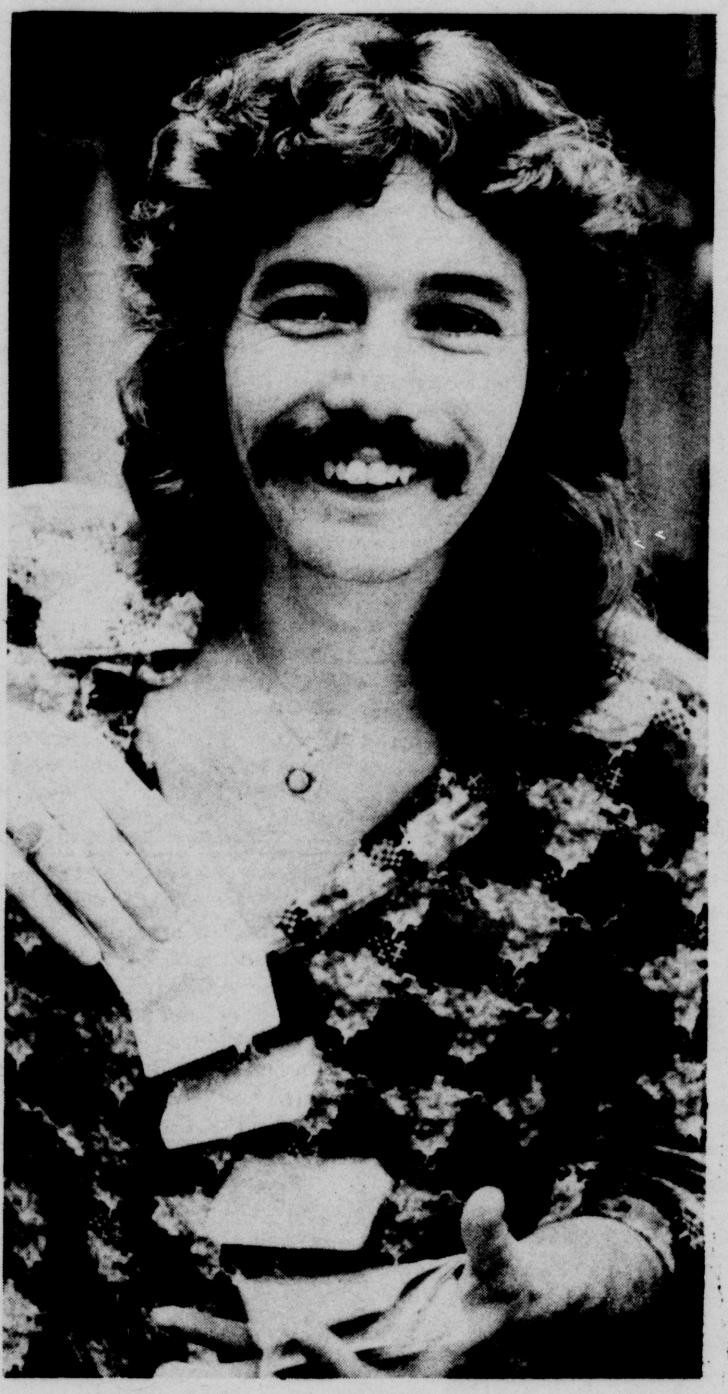

For a while after college, Henning was "almost starving as a magician." Then he borrowed $5,000 from a bank, with a friend raised $90,000 to produce "Spellbound," a combination of magic, plot and music.

An interim two-week booking at the Royal Alexandra Theater in Toronto "broke the house records that had been set by 'Hair,' 'Godspell' and 'Gypsy' — which showed that people really like magic."

The success attracted the attention of Broadway's Edgar Lansbury and Joseph Beruh, who brought it to the Cort Theater with a new story line by Bob Randall and songs by Stephen Schwartz.

During his apprenticeship, Henning got used to people confronting him with "How's tricks?" Since arriving in New York he has been abashed at another recurrent line tossed by fans who come to see him after a show.

"Men say to me — and it's awful — 'make my wife disappear.' If people only knew how often I get that. Usually the poor woman is standing there and looks half-dazed. I try to make them feel good and say 'why would you want to make such a beautiful person disappear?' I feel sorry for them. It's something I didn't hear in Canada at all. I hear that line about 10 times a day. I wish somebody would write a line to help me."

Master of illusion

Doug Henning is the nimble young master of illusion whose gasp provoking talent has turned "The Magic Show" into one of Broadway's biggest audience pullers. It has been a one-man coup for the 27-year-old entertainer, born in Canada; the surrounding story and music were dismissed by critics. Now Henning is at work on more magic, in particular for a television special coming up soon. (AP)

TV Scout Reports

On the set of "The Hepheusus Plague," the science-fiction film being produced by William Castle with stars Bradford Dillman and Joanna Miles (who won an Emmy for her performance in "The Glass Menagerie"), director Jeannot Szwarc, a TV veteran, was heard to yell, "We're falling apart. We should put music to this picture and call it 'The Merry Earthquake.'"

Castle, who can be seen as an actor in "The Sex Symbol," says Joanna Miles will be a big, big star. "I'm writing a picture for her," he adds.

Linda Blair, the star of "The Exorcist," is wrestling with the problem about whether or not to accept a big TV offer. She's tempted by the money but she wants to finish school first. Wait and see what develops on this.

Why so much violence on TV and in movies? Dino De Laurentiis, the great Italian producer now operating here, says he knows.

"The movies mirror the times," De Laurentiis says, "and unfortunately we are living in violent times, in a violent era. We who make movies must give the public what it sees."

Robert Culp is starring in 3M's historical series about America — but he's no history buff. Culp says history always bored him in school.

Lois Nettleton, divorced after a six-year marriage, is once again one of the leading ladies of Hollywood night life. With Lois, there is never any shortage of suitors.

About any future marriage, Lois says this: "It's God's will if I get married again but I think I probably will because that's the way I'm made."

Sinatra makes another comeback

By MURRAY OLDERMAN

STATELINE, Nev. — The last time black tie was de rigueur at a main event was when they held some fight down in Atlantic City more than a decade ago. And at least the promoter had the foresight to haber-dash the denizens of the press section in After Six outfits.

These came in handy, even with the smell of mothballs, for the recent main event here at Harrah's on the shores of beautiful Lake Tahoe — the comeback of Ol' Blue Eyes, more euphemistically titled, "Ol' Blue Eyes Is Back." The old tux had narrow lapels and a short center vent, but what the hell, Ol' Blue Eyes isn't exactly a younger challenger any more either.

After a suitable repast of crableg cocktail supreme (frozen), chicken broth with matzo balls, filet mignon with sauce madeira (minimum charge $25 per person) the evening's card was about to begin at 10 o'clock.

The ring announcer came out in appropriate black tie and short sideburns and he looked suspiciously like a replica of the main attraction.

It turned out that he was The Son and would not only make the introductions, announcing the return of "that infalus character, Ol' Blue Eyes," but appear as a preliminary himself. The kid, who's been fighting prelims around the country's boites for the last half dozen years, still needs seasoning.

After he lost his decision he mused, "Who's turn is it in the barrel now?" And out came a clean-cut young man named Hugh Lambert who was the promoter - producer of the evening's card. Lambert did a little shadow boxing himself, tried some vocal sparring and retained his amateur standing. His presence was explained by the fact that he's The Son-in-Law. He exited on a Lambert waltz.

And on next with her own set of seconds — called Nancy's Sweet Things — came The Daughter, looking like a demure long-haired version of Gorgeous George. The Daughter showed a lot of good footwork in the semi-main but no knockout punch.

"My husband says he's not producing the show," she explained. "He's refereeing it."

The penguin-cloaked audience was getting itchy. Out came a guy who looked like one of the judges. His name was Pat Henry and he talked a good fight. "The last time I saw this many tuxedos," he proclaimed, "the Godfather died."

He also was Italian, like Ol' Blue Eyes, and didn't want to cramp the champ's act. He brought the ring clock out with him. When the alarm went off at 11:19 p.m., so did Henry.

Finally, with little fanfare and sweeping The Son out of the ring with a wave of his right fist, Ol' Blue Eyes emerged for his latest return to action. He has now made more comebacks than Sugar Ray Robinson.

Ol' Blue Eyes is a legendary scrapper and he brings out the big action. In the outer lobby of the velvet-draped arena, Bill Harrah, who was paying the bill for this singular main event, had installed special 100-minimum blackjack tables to go along with the normal two-buck felt-covered tables for the proletariat.

There was, at Ol' Blue Eyes jogged briskly to the center of the ring, in the glow of the main spotlight, an electric anticipation you always get at a heavyweight championship extravaganza.

Ol' Blue Eyes didn't let 'em down. He skipped the early sparring and came out punching with "Leroy Brown." He went nimbly, if sometimes scratchy, through 10 fast-paced rounds, the "Herd" of Woody Herman in the background urging him on with a solid beat.

Ol' Blue Eyes isn't the same guy who walloped them in the Paramount back when zoot suits were in style. Time has undoubtedly eroded some of his skills. And physically, despite the emotional binge of his female admirers, he's just a middle-aged man going to pudge in the jowls and middle who combs his hair, what there is of it, forward.

"Don't Worry About Me," he wailed in mid-ring, adding apropos lyrics, "why cling to some fading thing that used to be."

Between rounds he sipped out of a mug, noting that the liquid contents were both hot and refreshing.

About halfway through, he let his arms down and jumped off into his version of the Ali shuffle, leering at the press, vocally berating some old opponent he called Rona Burstein, "an ugly broad."

Frank, Nancy and Frank Jr.

"If I had a newspaper," he said abruptly, "I would bury those bums who tell lies about people in show business."

The verbal steam dispersed, Ol' Blue Eyes swung back to legitimate action significantly with, "I've Got You Under My Skin."

He closed pointedly with what he called the "new national anthem" — "I Did It My Way."

At 12:02 a.m., he took off the gloves, threw down the microphone and walked off. No encore. No hands raised in exultation. Just another professional gig.

Ol' Blue Eyes was back.

Epilogue: Coming up soon is an ABC-TV special, "Sinatra — The Main Event — Madison Square Garden." Well, those old After Six duds aren't too wrinkled. (NEA)

Joanna Miles headed for stardom

By JOAN CROSBY

HOLLYWOOD — Joanna Miles, say the industry's top executives, will be the next major female star.

She is beautiful, cultivated and talented, and she has been acting since 1961. "But no one ever knew who I was," she said.

"The Glass Menagerie," and her performance as Laura, Katharine Hepburn's crippled, lonely and shy daughter, changed all that, especially when she won an Emmy.

"It's been unbelievable since the Emmy," she added. "People think an Emmy doesn't mean anything but that's bunk. Too many people are afraid to admit someone is good unless it has been verified."

She has had many offers since winning the award and she smiles as she says, "I'm tired. But it's better to be tired from working than tired from not working."

She'll next be seen on television in "Aloha Means Goodbye," a CBS-TV movie set for Oct. 11, filmed in Hawaii which she says "is very beautiful." It was a more cheerful location than that for her earlier TV movie, "Born Innocent," which was filmed in a girls' dentention home, where the cast lived.

"Those girls just didn't believe they could be saved. To them dope and guys are what it's all about. What upsets me is that the worst thing many of them had done is run away from home."

Joanna was on a lunch break, looking delicate, feminine and smelling of a soft perfume, and trying not to remember that earlier in the day a huge cockroach had been walking on her. It was for a scene from William Castle's "The Hephaestus Plague," a film about an earthquake which opens up the earth and disgorges these creatures who have the power to start fires.

Joanna was born in France to an American mother and a French father. She has lived in 22 of the United States while growing up. Her traveling has continued with her acting career.

"No one told me acting would be like this. I've traveled 86,000 miles this year for my work."

"The Glass Menagerie" was filmed in London and Joanna says she was sure when they got her to London, it would be discovered a mistake had been made. "I kept thinking, 'They couldn't have hired me.' "

Because she is a fine actress who will submerge her own personality and good looks into whatever is required for the role she is playing, Joanna is not easily recognized.

"I guess it will be my thing not to be recognized. I was at a supermarket once and I saw Susan Hayward with an awful red wig and a suit. She was picking out fruit. Then she made her purchases, left and was driven away in a chauffeured limousine. That's a star."

Joanna's a star, too, even though everywhere on the Hawaii locations of "Aloha Means Goodbye," it was costar Sally Struthers who was recognized.

"The public goes crazy when it sees her. I was beginning to think it was a setup. Whatever remote location we were on, someone would come along and recognize her."

She paused, then smiled and said, "Sally's got —" and someone at the table interrupted with "class."

Help

I have a problem. I have an incredible letter to send to The Girl in My Life. I've watched the show since I've been out of school and they never give out the address. Could you please help me reach the show? — Julie Ann Gutzmer, DesPlaines, Ill.

Gilr in My Life is a Metromedia Production, carried on ABC-TV. Send your letters to the show at ABC, 4151 Prospect Ave., Los Angeles, Calif. 90027.

Male mail call

Could you please tell me where to write to George Peppard and Telly Savalas. — Greg Dalchm, Great Falls, Mont.

Both gentlemen work at Universal Studios, so write them there, Universal City, Calif. 91608.

Three-quarter question

Will "The Strauss Family" ever be repeated on TV? — E.F., Aurora, Minn.

There are no plans at the present moment, but in TV, as in life, it's never safe to say it never will be repeated. I'd like to see it again. The series was a special favorite of mine.

Oh Lord

Could you find out why Jack Lord has never been on The Merv Griffin Show? He is my favorite star and a fantastic actor. Also, are James Franciscus and Fred Holiday related? — Denise Wilson, Virginia Beach, Va.

Jack Lord lives in Hawaii and very seldom visits the mainland, which is at least one good reason why he hasn't been on Merv's show. No, Jim and Fred are not related.

The reason Rhoda married

By DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD — When The Mary Tyler Moore Show spawned its spin-off, Rhoda, the wise money in Hollywood said that this was going to be a landmark show — they predicted that it would be the first situation comedy in which a girl and a boy would be living together, without marriage.

Shows you how smart the wise money is. On the 10th show of the new CBS series, Rhoda will get married. And that's fine with Valerie Harper, the sensible and beautiful girl who plays Rhoda Morgenstern.

Val says she isn't sure whether the network would have permitted a non-married relationship anyhow. It's an academic question; the program decided on a wedding.

"They just decided to let her get married," Val says. "I'm glad they did. I think Rhoda is the marrying kind of girl."

So is Valerie Harper, who admits she isn't sure where Val Harper ends and Rhoda Morgenstern begins. The two have a lot in common — both warm, witty and wise.

She says there had been talk for a long time about her own show. Since The Mary Tyler Moore Show began, five years ago, people have been saying that one day the Rhoda character would be the basis of another show.

Val says she heard the talk but never did anything to encourage it. She was happy where she was. She thoroughly enjoyed being Mary's second peach. But, in August of last year, the talk suddenly became a reality.

She's happy about that, too — she's basically a happy-type lady — except for one thing. Having her own show means a lot more work. On Mary's show, she had a lot of free time, but on her own show she's in virtually every scene.

The Val-Rhoda relationship is very close. It begins with the two girls both being the marrying kind. Val is Mrs. Richard Schaal, and has been for 10 years.

Schaal is a fine actor and he's about to start his own little theater in the Westwood section of Los Angeles. But she is, of course, a much better-known performer than he. Many show business marriages have foundered on that rock but Val doesn't believe theirs is in any danger from that particular problem.

"If we ever do split up," she says, "it won't be because of that. We're not into that 'his-money' or 'her-money' thing — it's all our money."

When they married, Dick had a daughter, 10. Val's helped raise her. And her sister's children usually come down from Seattle and spend the summer with her. So there have usually been plenty of children around the house.

Still, lately, Val has been thinking more and more about having a child of her own.

"I never wanted children," she says, "but lately I've felt it would be nice. Pretty soon now, I'd like one."

So Rhoda may become a mother, as well as a wife.

TV scout reports

Ben Murphy, who is making a pilot for Universal and NBC-TV called Hickok, plays tennis all day, every day when he is not working as an actor.

"I have to line up a lot of people," he says. "I keep picking up new partners all day long as I wear out the old ones."

Pprducer Norman Rosement, viewing the ancient French prison, the Chateau d'If, which is being used for location scenes for the forthcoming TV special, "The Count of Monte Cristo," starring Richard Chamberlain, said the old edifice looked like "the wiltin' Hilton."

Would you say Rosemont has an edifice complex?

Joe Wambaugh, the outspoken Los Angeles cop turned best-selling author, lets it be known when he is not happy with something on Police Story. He gave a great tribute to the opening episode of the new season. Wambaugh personally sent out letters saying he was particularly proud of the segment which starred Ed Asner and dealt with "that most fearful of all policemen's diseases — suicide."

Richard Arlen, who was a silent star and also a top talkie star via the motion picture classic, "Wings," apparently can't get away from airfields or airplanes. In "Ragwing," a two-parter to be telecast next January on The Wonderful World of Disney, Arlen has a cameo role of a man who sells an airlines ticket to a young boy.

Television sports boom is noted

By HAROLD STERN

NEW YORK — Though the TVS Television Network plans to experiment with regular entertainment specials, basically its life and death depend on its sports schedule. And, as everyone knows, sports on television has been mushrooming with the impact of a nu clear bomb in recent years.

Eddie Einhorn, president of TVS, doesn't believe for a moment that television has become oversaturated with sports.

"To me," he said, "oversaturation means you can't get it on. You can't sell it and nobody will watch it. And that's not true. Not now.

"Television is flooded with sports. Ratings are dropping and people are becoming more selective. But, more people than ever are watching televised sports. Sports are a form of entertainment and we're in the midst of the most entertainment-prone era in history."

TVS is certainly contributing to the sports explosion by televising the games of the new World Football League. Despite the fact that the WFL has made dubious attendance claims and the league has several weak franchises, the ratings of the nationally televised games have been surprisngly strong considering that the teams, the players and even some of the rules were unfamiliar.

"It's a solid league," Einhorn insisted, "and it will get better as more and more National Football League stars join it. We intend to televise the WFL games as long as we're able to. And bear in mind, when we televise sports, we do it only for the money we can make. We can't afford the luxury of doing things for prestige. That's something only the three major networks can do. They can make the money up elsewhere."

As far as Einhorn is concerned, television's problem is not the oversaturation of sports so much as televising the wrong sports. Soccer and hockey are having audience problems. In his opinion, team track and team tennis are doomed. Golf doesn't draw through some have claimed that the audience demographics couldn't be better.

"In this country, baseball, basketball and football draw," he said. "Everything else is a loser. Boxing would draw but where are you going to get the good fights? The heavyweight championship bout is the premiere sporting event in the world but that's tied up with closed circuit theater television."

Eddie Einhorn

Any league formed with the expectation that it will be subsidized by television hasn't a chance, as far as Einhorn is concerned. He scoffs at the notion that any posrt can be invented for the television cameras. He also debunks the rumor that a competitive major baseball league is likely to emerge.

"Impossible," he said. "There are no facilities available, certainly not in the big cities. The facilities are vital. That's true even in the WFL. The cities with the good stadia draw, the others do not."

Though Einhorn bet correctly that the WFL games would attract a large viewing audience, even he was surprised at how large.

"We expected to die during our first year while the WFL was suffering its growing pains," he said. "We thought we had very little to sell and we sold it too cheaply. Next year, we should have a solid league and I think we'll do extremely well. The WFL has applied plenty of pressure on the NFL. Not only have WFL teams picked up a lot of the NFL's best players, the NFL has been forced to change its rules to try to make the NFL game as exciting as the WFL game. Next I'll bet the NFL will be forced to go to a competitive 20-game schedule (from its present 14 games plus six exhibition games). The country is pro football crazy."

With his company's success so involved with the success of WFL, I wondered how much pro football he watched.

"None, if I can help it," he said. "Personally, I hate it. I like to watch baseball and, secretly, I'm a pro wrestling nut."

Burr-don

Please tell me if Raymond Burr is really confined to a wheelchair. — Mrs. H. B., Waupun, Wisc.

No, Burr's wheelchair confinement only extends to the role he plays on Ironside. He can walk fine otherwise.

Haunted

These questions have been haunting me. What is the name of the boy who played Oliver on The Partridge Family? I saw him in the pilot of Lucas Tanner and was wondering if he is going to star in the series. Is he related to John Denver? They look so much alike. Also, was David Carradine in the movie, "Maybe I'll Come Home in the Spring?" — T. King, North Adams, Mass.

Robbie Rist played Oliver and he will be a regular in Lucas Tanner. Yes, David played oposite Sally Field in the TV movie you mentioned.

What's my name

There was an old movie that starred Robert Taylor and Janet Gaynor. It was one of his early films and I would like to know its name. — R.F., Chicago, Ill.

The only film they made together was "Small Town Girl," a 1936 MGM release.

Playing the game with a natural grace

Meta Rosenberg

By JOAN CROSBY

UNIVERSAL CITY — The lady is petite and pretty and looks as if she should be playing a continuing role in a series.

Well, she is, in a way, but behind the camera and not in front of it. She is Meta Rosenberg, the executive producer of The Rockford Files, James Garner's new NBC-TV series out of Universal Studios. She is a power in the industry. And she is very feminine and believes that if a woman knows her job, she doesn't have to play either sexy or butch to work alongside men.

She was an gent, and an important one, who handled actors known for their stage work. She convinced some of them that they should do films. She convinced producers, too. Because of her Robert Redford, Alan Arkin and Richard Benjamin all made their first films.

Prior to that, Jim and Meta turned out the successful movie, "Skin Game."

She's a widow (her husband had an agency which, after a few mergers, became the giant International Famous Agency, Inc.), who loves animals and seeing green growing things.

"I have a room which I pretentiously call my garden room and I love to just sit there and look at the plants," she says.

The motion picture industry is often chided for not having many women in executive positions. "But I'm sure there aren't many at General Motors," she says.

"I have found that if you are a qualified professional, doing a good job, and you accept yourself as a woman, men will also accept you in that light."

Meta (it's a diminutive of Margaret) continued. "There are ways of being tough without raising your voice or putting on masculine airs. Women who are sure of themselves as women don't have to be militant. And women who are sure of themselves as women are the ones who have the most fun anyway."

DECORATING PRICE GUIDE

OTTAWA (AP) — When decorating a new home, keep the costs of furnishing between one-third and one-half the cost of the house, says the Consumers' Association of Canada.

TV Scout Reports

Robert Stack, who will be seen in an NBC-TV World Premiere, "The Strange and Deadly Occurrence," recently played summer stock theater-in-the-round in Philadelphia.

"There was nowhere to hide if you blew a line," he said. "And you're so close to the audience they think they can talk to you during the play. It's an eerie feeling."

Alex Trebek, the popular MC of High Rollers, is a Canadian who was popular on Canadian TV before he invaded the U.S. And he says he's having problems adjusting to U.S. working habits — because the work is too easy.

Trebek says the hours and the work load in Canada are much heavier. But he does a week's worth of High Rollers in one day, giving him six days to do nothing.

Van Johnson did a guest role on McMillin and Wife. Even though you may not see him too often on your home TV screens don't feel sorry for him.

It's been a couple of years since The Mod Squad called it a career, but Michael Cole, one of its stars, says he still can't walk around freely, because he gets mobbed.

"Most people," he says, "are pleasant and respectful. When somebody comes up and says, "I really enjoyed your work,' you can ride on that for a few months."

Producer Norman Rosement, viewing the ancient French prison, the Chateau d'If, which is being used for location scenes for the forthcoming TV special, "The Count of Monte Cristo," starring Richard Chamberlain, said the old edifice looked like "the wiltin' Hilton."

The publication of Vincente Minnelli's autobiography, "I Remember It Well," written with Hector Arce, was the occasion for a lovely party at Greystone Mansion. Liza Minnelli was the hostess for her father's big night.

Liza was hand-in-hand with Jack Haley Jr. — and this was a few days before the announcement that they would get married. Their wedding finally took place in the El Montecito, Calif., Presbyterian Church Sept. 15.

Phyllis Diller, Rock Hudson, Mervyn LeRoy, Ross Hunter and Rouben Mamoulian were some of those who came to honor Minnelli, father and daughter.

Roger Moore, who has gone from The Saint to James Bond (his new one is "The Man With the Golden Gun"), says he has a pet way of squelching feminists. ("Im a male chauvinist pig and proud of it," he says.)

Carol says she let Lyle go because he felt that after all these years he could and should find bigger parts.

"But I won't replace him," Carol says, "at least not with a copy, another handsome guy. I hope eventually somebody different and interesting comes along I can use."

Ross Martin is another actor feeling the pinch. He says he hasn't been able to get a part in a long time — "Zilch going on," is the way he puts it.

He took an offer to do something educational — the producer said he'd find it "challenging and experimental". Ross says he found himself reading a course in accounting to the camera. End of that experience.

Movin' On, the trucker show starring Claude Akins and Frank Converse, had a show in which a central figure was a girl who shot craps. The scene required that certain dice combinations come up. You might think they'd roll the dice until they got what they wanted. No way.

What they did was order 22 pairs of dice, each pair loaded to come up a different way. That way they could always get the combination required by the script. (And, yes, there is a company that makes loaded dice.)

Ted and Pat Derby are the owners and trainers of Murgatroyd, the bear who plays Cruncher in NBC-TV's Sierra. They train lots of animals for films, TV and commercials (they also own Chauncy, the Mercury cougar). The animals are kept in Buellton, Calif., in the Santa Inez Valley above Santa Barbara on a ranch they call Love Is An Animal.

Pat and Ted are always taking in orphaned or sick animals. They once rescued a bear from a circus. The bear had attacked his trainer (who had been cruel to the animal, they say) and was due for destruction. The Derbys bought the animal and spent one year being kind and loving to him. He wound up extremely gentle — so much so that they did an act where a child would hold a cookie in his mouth and the bear would remove it, without ever touching the child.

He says he said, "Let's run away together," and she said, 'No. You go.'"

Max Morath, the ragtime expert, says he heard a new diet called "the dollar a day diet." He says, "At today's prices, I think they expect you to eat the dollar."

It's like this for sportscasters today. Curt Gowdy was in Los Angeles recently for an exhibition football game telecast. Then he flew right back to his home in Massachusetts for a weekend, only to return to Los Angeles for a baseball telecast from Dodger Stadium.

Patricia Neal enchanted everyone connected with Kung Fu when she was a guest in the two-hour episode that opened the season. Before she goes to work, she tells people that she is slow and has trouble remembering lines. "Then," said an onlooker, "she goes on the set and devastates everyone."

Sometimes it pays to write a letter. A woman in St. Clemens, Mich., wrote to a Detroit TV station on behalf of her widowed and aging mother — whose one wish in life were to see Truth or Consequences and to meet Bob Barker. Letters like that usually wind up in the waste basket, but this one somehow found its way to Barker's desk. The two women will now fly to Los Angeles and be Barker's guests for the first show of the 18th year of Truth or Consequences.

Dirty deal

Our entire family fell in love with Jeanette Nolan in Dirty Sally. Her program was such a refreshing change and she was a sweetheart we would have loved to know. Please tell me were we can write to voice our feelings that the show is no longer on TV. — Mrs. M.S., Great Falls, Mont.

Loved that actor

I saw an old movie on TV recently, starring Dorris Day, Danny Thomas and Frank Lovejoy. I idolized Lovejoy and remember some good movies in which he appeared. When will we see others? Tell me, is he married and where does he live? I guess he isn't in pictures anymore. — Mrs. J. K., Crete, Ill.

Lovejoy died in 1962 at the age of 48. As far as the scheduling of his pictures, that is purely local, so your best bet is to check your local station on that point.

Frank question

I would like to know if Frank Sutton is dead, when he died and the cause of his death. — M.S., Great Falls, Mont.

Sadly Sutton, who was a regular on Gomer Pyle, U.S.M.C., died of a heart attack a few weeks ago as he was preparing to go on for a stage appearance.

Real not reel

What are the real names of the actors who starred in I Dream of Jeannie? — J.S., Chicago, Ill.

Trekking

How old is the TV series Star Trek? What are the stars doing now? — B.D., Clearwater, Fla.

Star Trek's first show was on NBC-TV Sept. 8, 1966. Shatner is a busy guest star in TV this season. Nimoy has been doing plays. They provide voices for the animated Star Trek seen on Saturday mornings, too.

Fan call

I am a very big fan of David Toma. I am talking about the real David Toma and not the actor. I know he lives in Newark, N. J., but I would like to know his home address. — L.M., R.D., Chicago, Ill.

TV Scout does not give out home addresses. But, if you sent a letter to Dave, care of the Newark Police Department, it would eventually reach him. He's pretty well known there.

Stephanie sang her conversations

By STEPHEN FORD

NEW YORK — Until she was five years old and the neighborhood bully had plucked the hat from her head, Stephanie Mills rarely — if ever — spoke in normal sentences. Up to that point, her every retort was in song, no matter what the situation, and she always managed to find some snatch or couplet from a popular song that answered the question and fit into her juvenile opera.

But Stephanie learned that sweetly impugning the bully to return her cap was not too effective: she had to talk.

Stephanie, now 15 years old, does respond in sentence form but she has never stopped singing. In fact, her singing has earned raves from critics for her fast-rising ABC-Dunhill single "I Knew It Was Love." And she is now finishing up an album to be released in October.

In addition to her singing career, Stephanie is currently rehearsing her role as Dorothy in an all-black version of the classic "Wizard of Oz" scheduled to open on Broadway in December.

It takes no brilliant seer to imagine Stephanie's name spelled out in 40-carat sequins in the not-too-distant future. But how does a black girl from a tough New York City neighborhood, where the wail of police sirens is more common than the sweet strains of a recording studio, get these breaks?

Learning the rudiments of vocal control while singing with a gospel choir every Sunday morning is a good start. Winning the school music award at PS 269 in Brooklyn where Barbra Streisand graduated doesn't hurt and landing a part in the play "Maggie Flynn" starring Jack Cassidy and Shirley Jones helps.

Then, polishing one's craft during a gig with the Negro Ensemble Company is no detriment before topping that with numerous standing ovations during a six week-long appearance at the Apollo Theater.

"I have always wanted to be a singer," Stephanie says in an even voice that belies her 15 years, "from the time I was two years old and telling my family what I wanted by singing a line from a Marvin Gaye song. I never really thought about doing anything else. For awhile I considered becoming a psychiatrist but even then, I'd probably be singing to my patients on the couch," she giggles, betraying her adolescence.

Stephanie's aborted desire to be a shrink stems from her greater desire to help people.

"I've got to," she says, her deep brown eyes filled with unquestionable sincerity. "There's so much to be done. I like all sorts of music but I especially like those with some meaning — that tell the listener to help somebody. I can't just do love songs even though I like them. Nobody writes prettier love songs than Stevie Wonder but even his new album talks more about life's problems than romance."

Stephanie Mills

Stephanie, like her older sister Judy, who appeared in the film "Claudine", has Hollywood aspirations, too. "But it has to be a meaningful film — not any old thing just to be on the screen," she said.

Stephanie is not reticent about admitting that her greatest influence was Diana Ross, a fact quite evident in her singing style. "Nobody handles herself on stage or in a recording studio with as much class as Diana," she avers.

Anxious over the impending opening of the "Wizard of Oz", Stephanie warns the show may shock anyone going to see a rehash of the Judy Garland film. The music is strictly Motown so don't expect "Somewhere Over the Rainbow" as you know it.

"All songs are in a Stevie Wonder or Roberta Flack style and they all have a message — enjoy who you are and help others enjoy who they are," she says emphatically.

She explained another radical departure from the ancient Oz will be the bizarre costumes designed by Geoffrey Holder (the shiny-domed unCola dude of 7-Up advertising fame). "The tin man will be wearing rusty beer cans and the wizard is portrayed in different costumes," Stephanie added. "Sometimes he's disguised as a snake, sometimes as a woman."

Stephanie said that even with so much effort these days, future plans call for staying at home with her parents since her six older brothers and sisters are now out on their own.

"I enjoy my family. They've all stood behind me, my parents especially." She said the fact her older sister Judy blazed a path in show business made things easier.

Still, it isn't every parent who would encourage their children to pursue something as uncertain as a singing career, particularly when her father is a construction worker frequently looking for work.

There is no dearth of stars-in-the-eyes vocalists these days but what makes Stephanie so remarkable is her determination. "Yeah, I'm determined," she agrees. "I expect to be doing this for another ten years if not for the rest of my life." Determination and a great deal of confidence. (NEA)

The fur expert of Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD — She calls herself just Charie, but that's enough for Hollywood. They know her as the lady they go to see when they need furs.

Charie, of Fuhrman's, is probably the leading furrier of Southern California, has been pelting the stars for years. And, perhaps out of nostalgia, she thinks that show business still exerts a major influence over styles, but not TV.

"Movies still have a tremendous style influence," Charie says. "Look how the 'Gatsby' look caught on — at least, it influenced designers. We're getting all dressed up again.

Nevertheless, Charie and Fuhrman's does a big business with and for television. One of the store's major assets is its huge vault, where more than 300 vintage furs are stored in rack after rack. They are furs in storage and furs for rental, which were originally all made for various productions. It's a trapper's paradise.

Charie had them bring out a splendid white ermine and fox cape. She said it should look familiar — it's been in dozens of movies and TV shows. The cape was originally made in 1931 for a Fox executive, for his wife.

"Edie Adams wears it often," Charie says. "Carol Burnett and Flip Wilson have used it. It's been in many movies. Nobody ever says they've seen it before."

Charie has made matching full-length minks for Flip Wilson — one for him, which has "Killer" embroidered inside, and one for her, which says "Rosalind."

The store has been making furs for the stars for years — from Gloria Swanson to Faye Dunaway. Miss Dunaway, in "Chinatown," wears one of Charie's designs.

For television, Charie also has made furs for Red Skelton, Bob Hope and many more.

In her stage appearance in "I do! I Do!" Carol Burnett wore a Fuhrman-made ermine cape. Charie says "It's old as the hills but has the right look for the show."

For the soon-to-be-released movie, "Shampoo," Charie made furs for the three leading ladies, Goldie Hawn, Julie Christie and Lee Grant. She says that Miss Grant decided to keep hers and bought it.

"But Julie Christie won't wear furs — she's on an ecology kick," Charie says.

The fur business suffered for a time, when some people suddenly discovered that furs came from animals. But Charie says the business "weathered the storm" and is coming back.

"Mary Tyler Moore had just had her fur coat remodeled," Charie says, "when the ecology thing hit. She gave the coat to her mother — but I think she's gotten over it and wants the coat back."

Good memory

Please tell me why Michael Douglas changed his name, which was Michael D. Dowd. — H. H., Chicago, Ill.

You have a good memory because when Mike lived in Chicago, Michael Dowd was his name. However, Mike Douglas is a much more theatrical name and it has stood him in good stead. There was no other big reason for the change.

Question and answer

Does Jimmie Walker play J. J. Evans on Good Times? If so, please give me his mailing address. — Carla Thompson, Whitehall, N. Y.

Rivers of Hudson

What are the names and ages of the Hudson Brothers and where can I get in touch with them? — Wanda Pipkin, Cashmere, Wa.

Bill is 24, Mark 23 and Brett 21. Write them in care of Blye-Bearde Productions, CBS Television City, Los Angeles, Calif. 90036.

Name that name

Please tell me the name of the Mexican actor who played Mano on The High Chaparral? — Marie Aud, Merrillville, Ind.

Henry Darrow played Mano. He's not Mexican but rather Puerto Rican. His real name is Henry Delgado and he was raised in New York. He was a regular on The New Dick Van Dyke Show this past season and he's on David Janssen's new series, Harry O.

Kiss me, Kate

Back and forth

Will the movie "Back Street" be shown on TV this fall? Also, the time is of some concern, since it is difficult for a lot of us to watch at 3:30 in the afternoon. — B.J., Maywood, Ill.

The movie is not a network run, but rather is programmed locally by individual stations. It's the kind of film, appealing as it does to women, that would probably be telecast in the afternoon so housewives could see it. However, if there are enough of you in your area who want to see it later in the day, and if one of your local stations has plans to show it, the power of a letter-writing campaign might get you your wish.

Fraternal question

I realize you probably have answered this question many times, but for the benefit of my brother visiting from the far north, may I hear it one more time. Are Pat and Richard Boone related? He says they are. — R.E.M., Holiday, Fla.

Well, not for some time, so we're happy to oblige you. Pat and Richard are not related.

No ruffians among these brawlers

By DICK KLEINER

LONDON — There will always be an England, bless it.

They're shooting the next James Bond film, "The Man With the Golden Gun," at Pinewood Studios near here and I watched one of those typical Bondian brawls. Roger Moore is playing Bond again, and he was trapped in the dressing room of a belly dancer by the bad guys who try to beat him up.

The scene had been "choreographed" by the head stunt gaffer, Les Crawford, and Moore and the stuntmen went at it, full speed ahead. And then, after the brawl was over, one stuntmen wiped his forehead and said to Moore, "Thank you very much."

During another take, one stuntmen asked another to get him a cup of tea. As he was pounding his adversary's stomach, he looked at him and said, "Do you take sugar, luv?"

Perhaps that's the secret of the success of the Bond films, the combination of semi-violence and typical British politeness. Whatever the reason, they keep rolling along. Co-producer Oubby Broccoli told me there's no sign of any let-up in public enthusiasm for Bond movies and they plan to continue making them, one every 18 months.

Broccoli says the interest is worldwide, and he's had feelers to make one in Russia.

"We've been invited to film there," he says, "by Russian film interests. But we won't do it unless they exhibit our films there and I doubt that will happen because we've never been too kind to Russia in our films."

This is Moore's second Bond film and he seems happy with the project. The rumor is that after he's done the four he's contracted to do he will be independently rich. It's worth a man's trouble, that goal.

He came out of the dressing room brawl scene hardly puffing. He keeps himself in good shape through a program of exercise.

"This kind of scene," he said, "is a lot easier than learning dialogue. Actually, I enjoy doing the fight scenes because I always win."

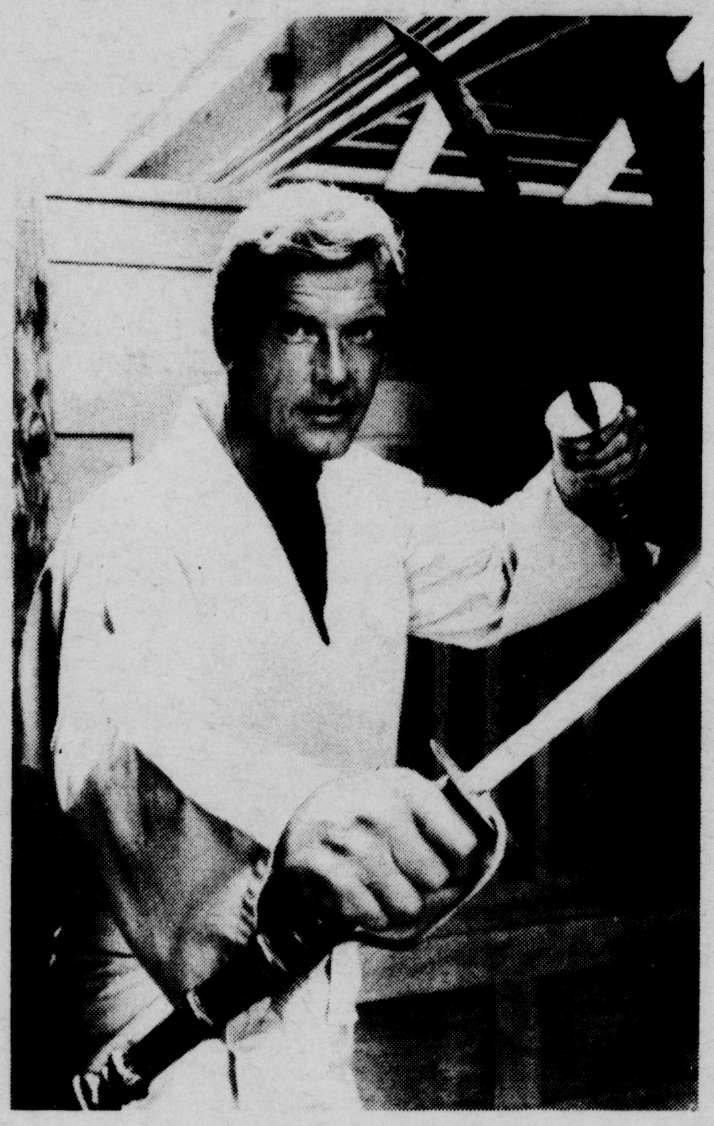

In between Bond films, he wants to give himself a change of pace — he's doing a drawing room comedy. There will be no brawls but there will be a lot of dialogue to memorize.

Moore says the Bond success has made him a prime target for publishers who want him to write his autobiography.

"But I won't do it yet," he says. "I think I'll wait until a few of my ex-wives kick the bucket."

He then returned to film the scene. One of the enemies was a portly actor named George Silver who said he weighed 25 stone. That's 350 pounds — and he looked it. He was supposed to crush Moore with all his weight and he did. Poor Roger groaned under the tonnage and said, "Please! Remember, I have a wife."

You can get hurt making films. In this one, Christopher Lee, the British horror movie

Roger Moore

King, is Bond's nemesis, and he told me of his injuries.

Lee rolled up his trousers and showed me a nasty lump on his knee. It came, he said, from his work in "The Three Musketeers."

"I tore the ligaments in my knee," he said. "I had five sword fights in the film and I got hurt in the first of the five. For the rest of the filming I had to hobble around with my knee strapped, doped up with pain killers."

Lee is again playing a heavy, as he did in "Musketeers," but he's grateful it isn't a horror heavy. He's done too many horror heavies and he'd rather not do any more.

I asked him what happened to the pilot he did with Sammy Davis Jr., in which he played the Devil and Sammy was an inept assistant. Lee said it didn't sell, and he had heard that NBC was worried — "They were afraid the public might take it seriously, and figure Hell was such a nice place they'd try to get there."

As usual, there's a new leading lady for Bond in "The Man With the Golden Gun." She's Maud Adams, one of New York's (and TV's) top models. Swedish-born, she's a tall and fantastically beautiful girl.

I asked her if she had been a Bond fan, and she said with a smile, "Of course — everybody likes Bond and Donald Duck."

This is her fourth picture but her first big one. She says it's hard for her to get acting work because she is so well known as a model.

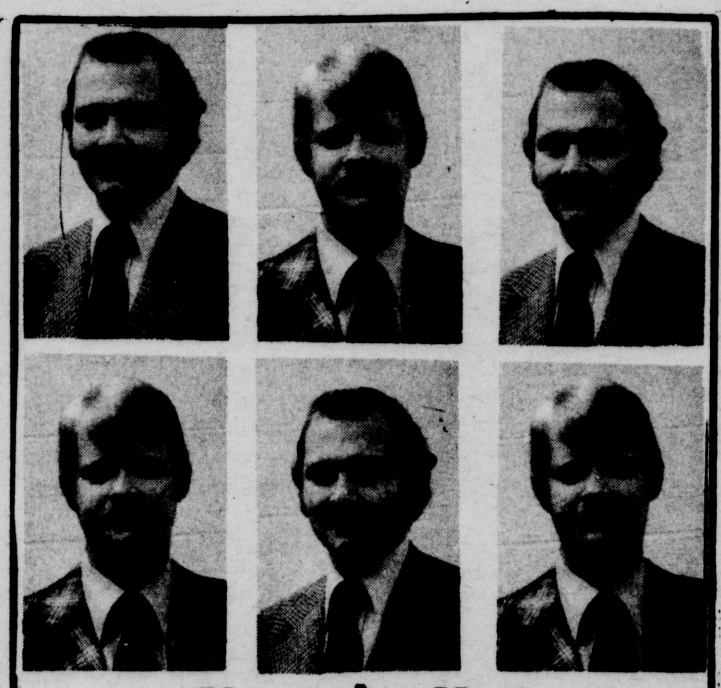

Many directors are anti-model, she says, "and I think justifiably so. Many models feel that because they know how to pose in front of a camera that automatically makes them actors. That's not so."

She says she knows her limitations as an actress, that she is still inexperienced — "But I'm beginning to feel more comfortable," she said.

The director of "The Man With the Golden Gun" is Guy Hamilton. He was well-dressed — shirt, tie, jacket — in comparison to the usually sloppy American directors. Hamilton said I had just happened to catch him on a bad day.

They had to go back to work on the fight scene. Hamilton called them into action with these lovely British words: "All right, gentlemen. Let's have it nice and noisy, if you wouldn't mind." (NEA)

FOR BOBBY RIGGS

What do you think about Men's Lib?—Sue Dubey, Durham, N.H.

● I didn't know there was such a thing, because I thought all men were liberated. Guys who feel in need of being liberated, or are reduced to powder by bossy wives, have my sympathy. My advice to them is not to form a group—but get out! The way to get liberated is either to stay single or else marry a girl the opposite of the one you unloaded. My idea of an ideal wife is one who thinks and fully believes that this is a Man's World.

FOR LEE TREVINO, golfer

What facet of being a celebrity bothers you most?—David Marlowe, Atlantic City, N.J.

● I can't take my wife to a pub restaurant without being bothered. I am just sticking my knife and fork into a steak when somebody comes up and asks me if I'm Lee Trevino. Then they start asking me how Jack Nicklaus' game is. They want to know what's wrong with Arnold Palmer and what I think of young players. It's a pain!

FOR SHELLEY WINTERS

You always seem to be losing and gaining weight. How does this affect your social life?—Rick Burger, Decatur, Ill.

● More than my social life, it affects my health and state of mind. If I'm not my desired size, I can't wear my favorite clothes. So if I'm invited to a marvelous party, and can't fit into anything, I don't go, and so I get depressed. Right now I'm trying to lose, and once I get down, intend to stay there. I fluctuate between sizes 12 and 18, which gives me a lot of leeway. I feel best at size 12.

FOR BEA ARTHUR

Do you in any way resemble Maude in your private life? —D. Maguire, Waco, Texas

● No, and if I ever do behave like her off-screen, it must be my subconscious working. I can't ever remember getting into "Maude situations." But I'm flattered by your question, because it means I've made the character so real and alive that people think we're one person.

FOR PETER FALK

On "Columbo," you play a sloppy detective. Are you much like him in real life?—Bob Berkeley, Salem, Ore.

● Well, I wouldn't say I'm the best-dressed guy in the world, but I'm not as bad as Columbo. I don't have Columbo's insatiable curiosity. I share with him a certain obsessiveness. He doesn't quit. I don't quit either.

FOR CARL BERNSTEIN,
coauthor of "All the President's Men"

No one dug as deeply into the Watergate mess as you and Woodward did. Has the experience made you cynical about the American system?—John Foster, Waco, Texas

● I think perhaps I have much more of a belief in the system now than I ever did. I no longer believe it's necessary to go outside the system to effect change. I'm probably more conservative in that respect than I ever was.

FOR CHARLES SCHULZ, creator of "Peanuts"

Is Snoopy patterned after a real dog?—Shirley Moretti, Corte Madera, Calif.

● Snoopy was patterned slightly after a dog I owned as a teenager. His name was Spike and he was larger than Snoopy. Since then our family has owned a beagle named Snoopy, but he died just last year at the age of 15.

FOR ARLENE FRANCIS

What happened to the locket you used to wear?—Mrs. Louise Blackwelder, Wingate, N.C.

● I still have the locket, which was my husband's first-anniversary gift. The only time I take it off is if the chain needs repairing. I once teased that only a divorce would get that locket off my neck, so it's become my trademark. If people don't see it, they call to ask if there's a change in my marital status. I tuck it inside my dress if I wear another necklace. That's probably what prompted your question.

FOR TRICIA NIXON COX

Where and when was your first solo public appearance as a President's daughter, and were you nervous?—Barbara Throne, Milan, Ill.

● On January 25, 1969, at the Waldorf in New York. On my mother's behalf, I accepted the Republican Woman of the Year Award at the Womens National Republican Club's luncheon. I wasn't at all nervous. My mother, sister and I are alike—we enjoy meeting people and being able to exchange views with them.

FOR THE ASK THEM YOURSELF EDITOR

I just vacationed at the new MGM Grand Hotel in Las Vegas, and wonder if the nightclub there—or at one of the other Vegas hotels—is the largest in the world?—S. Penn, Green Bay, Wis.

● Vegas nightclubs are enormous but, according to the "Guinness Book of World Records," the biggest nightclub is at the Concord Hotel in New York's Catskill Mountains. The club there seats 3,000 people. It's reputed to be the No. 1 showcase on the East Coast, because performers such as Don Rickles, Shirley MacLaine, Johnny Mathis, Herb Alpert, etc., all headline there.

Our $125-a-Day Hospitals:

Where Does All That Money Go?

"In 1971, only about 40 percent of the country's pediatric beds were occupied—36,021 out of a total of 89,420. Considering that each of these units cost an average of $15,000 to build, that means hundreds of millions of dollars worth of new facilities went unused."

By John Kelly

Almost everything is more expensive than it was a decade ago. But no item in the economy can match the precipitous 500 percent rise in hospital costs. In terms of your paycheck, this means that while you now work one-and-a-third times longer than you did in 1964 to purchase a loaf of bread and three times longer to buy a sirloin steak, you work five times as long to pay for a day of hospitalization.

Why?

According to Alexander McMahon, president of the American Hospital Association, hospitals have been caught in the same inflationary bind as the rest of the country – "but in our case, the situation has been worse. Our workers' wages have risen nearly 70 percent in the last six years alone. That's much larger than the pay increases given employees in other industries. Moreover," he adds, "people now expect much more from hospitals both in the way of treatment and personalized care."

All of which is true. But McMahon's answer tells only part of the story. While he's right that hospital workers' wage increases have outpaced those of the employees in other industries, in terms of the percentage of the patient's bill, labor costs are just the same. According to Harvard economist Martin S. Feldstein, an expert on hospital financing, labor costs in 1955 accounted for 60 percent of a patient's bill, and in 1971, they accounted for exactly the same proportion – 60 percent.

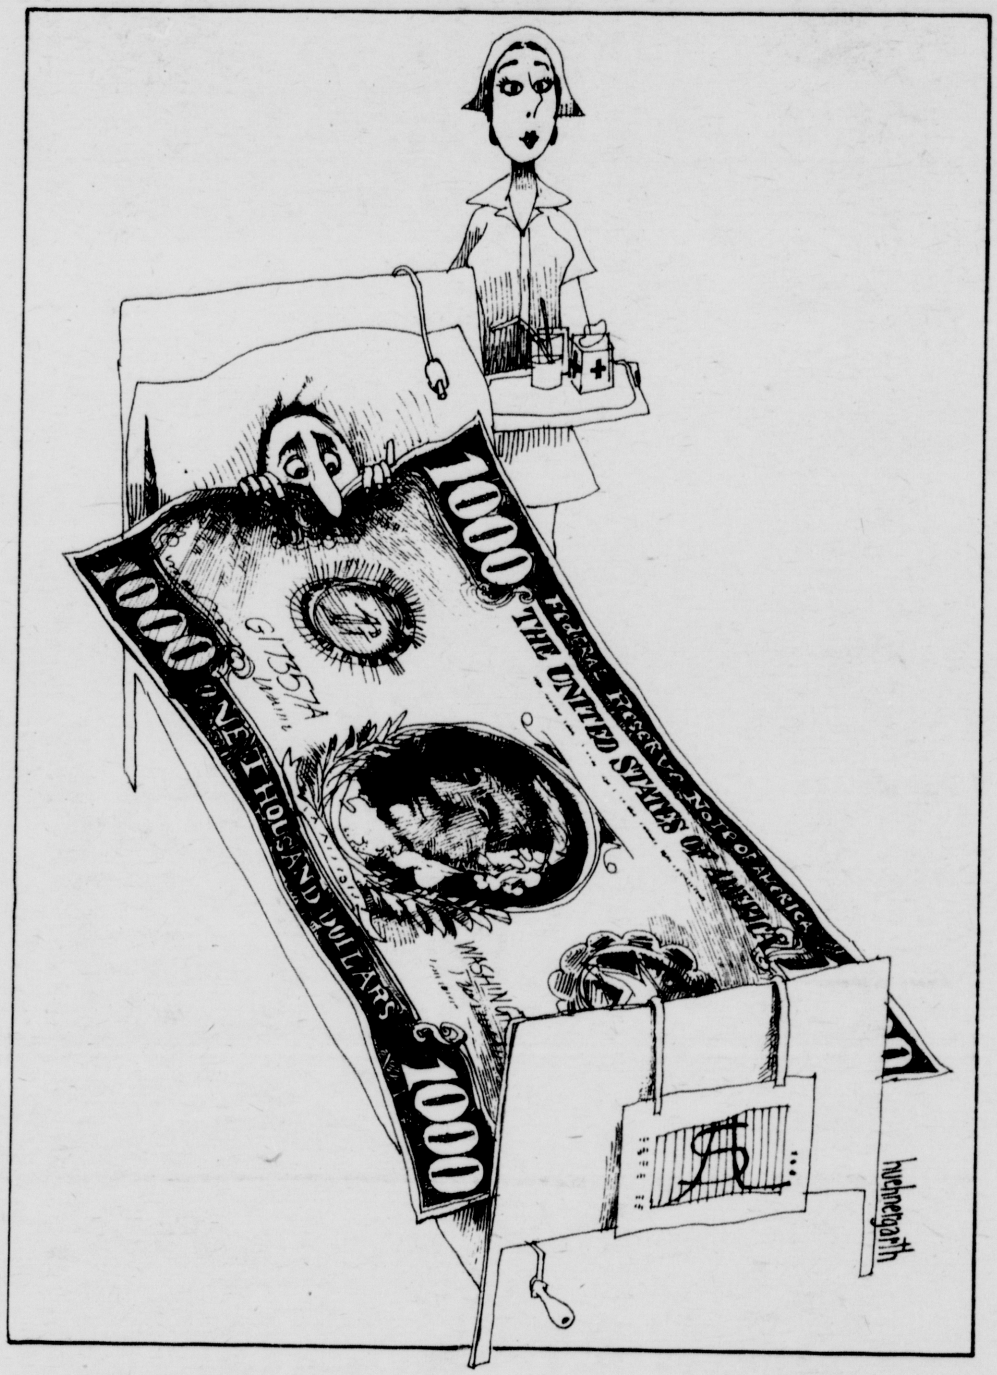

John Kelly is a New York-based writer who specializes in medical subjects.

It is also true that patients expect more from hospitals. But Louis A. Orsini, vice president of the Health Insurance Association of America (HIAA), says that the effects of this demand have been distorted by hospital administrators' "edifice complex." "When federal-loan funds became available for hospital construction, a lot of institutions began adding new facilities whether they needed them or not," says Orsini. "Cardiac monitoring units or a handsome new pediatric ward may add to a hospital's prestige, but if they aren't utilized, the cost will be passed on to the institution's other patients."

Government figures show that many of these new facilities aren't even being partially used. A study by the U.S. Comptroller General's office says that in 1971 only about 40 percent of the country's pediatric beds were occupied—36,021 out of a total of 89,420. Considering that each of these units cost an average of $15,000 to build, that means hundreds of millions of dollars worth of new facilities went unused. And, with our declining population growth, they will probably remain empty for some time to come.

The figures on cardiac-care units and emergency rooms make equally depressing reading. In 1972, only about three percent of the 416 hospitals equipped to perform open-heart surgery used their facilities more than four times a week. And of the 6,200 hospitals with emergency rooms, 3,744, or well over half, cared for less than 13 percent of all emergency cases reported.

Oklahoma City illustrates how out-of-hand the overbuilding mania can get. With a projected population of 700,000 in 1975, the community theoretically needs 2,696 hospital beds. But by the end of next year it will have 4,642 – a surplus of 1,946. Each of these extra beds costs about $50,000 to build and another $20,000 to maintain each year. And since the surplus is expected to remain at about the 1,000-bed level for the next 30 years, the unneeded units could end up costing Oklahoma City residents $650 million.

But overbuilding is not the only problem. Another major villain is what's known as the "cost-plus" method of payment. Nearly 90 percent of the more than $35 billion collected by hospitals last year was paid for by Medicaid, Medicare, Blue Cross and commercial insurance companies.

Under the usual arrangement, Blue Cross or a private carrier agrees to pay the hospital for the expenses it incurs caring for insured patients, as well as an extra bonus payment. In effect, the institution is guaranteed a profit no matter how inefficiently it operates. Hospital administrators claim that the third-party plans monitor their costs closely. But critics don't agree. Even Walter J. McNerny, president of the national Blue Cross Association, Inc., concedes "that the system is relatively unchecked."

Take a simple matter like hospital wages. As a rule, administrators and staff physicians can pay themselves pretty much what they choose without fear of being brought to task by the third-party plans footing the bill. Thus, it's not at all unusual for the chief pathologist in a hospital laboratory to earn $100,000 a year or more.

Far more serious and expensive, however, are the duplications and inefficiencies spawned by the cost-plus system. "There are so many areas of potential savings in an average hospital, it would make your head spin," says Herbert S. Denenberg, former Insurance Commissioner of Pennsylvania and a leading consumer advocate. "I know one institution, for instance, that pays $7.50 for tape measures it could buy for 25 cents." Laundry service may seem like a relatively minor budgetary expense. But 24 Boston hospitals cut their annual cleaning bills by over $1 million just by pooling their laundry facilities.

If private business operated so inefficiently, customers would be up in arms. But, says Harvard's Feldstein,

I believe that my MINK OIL will make your WRINKLES VANISH!

By Billie Ann Bender

You can find out for yourself without risking one penny! Here's what I did about my wrinkles . . . I always pampered my skin . . . Special creams, lotions, exotic balms . . . I used them faithfully. Yet nothing helped. I was ready to give up. You see unsightly premature wrinkles are caused by changes in climate, temperature, humidity, dryness, pollution even soaps and detergents.

Then something struck me—something I never would have known if my husband hadn't owned and managed a mink farm where we lived.

One day I was serving coffee to three of the men who handle the mink pelts. These men had worked for my husband for years. As I gave them their coffee, I couldn't help but notice their hands. How smooth and soft they were! I thought about them all that day. In my opinion it had to be something in the body or skin of the mink that made their hands so smooth and soft. And if it was good for hands, then it must be good for the face and throat. Could this be the answer to the signs that alarm every woman?

I told my husband what was on my mind and asked if he could possibly extract some of the oil from the mink pelts. At first he laughed at me, but then agreed I might have a point. He consulted a chemist friend and together they compounded the mink oil with a pure balm base. It was a costly process, but what it produced I believed was priceless.

After I'd used the mink oil my complexion looked fresher, clearer, smoother. There was no doubt about it. My formerly dull, dry skin now had a glowing, dewy look. I was really thrilled! The little lines had been eased away. Even my throat seemed petal-smooth and more firm looking. I could hardly believe it. My friends and relatives were astonished at the change in my appearance.

So I gave my precious mink oil a name and put it on the market. It's called Emlin®Mink Oil Essential Creme. It contains no hormones, estrogens or steroids—only the pure oil and balm. Already I've received hundreds of letters from delighted users. Many said the effects were beyond anything they had hoped for. These reports make me say "I believe that my mink oil will make your wrinkles vanish."

And mind you, there's nothing complicated about the application. (Who has time for elaborate beauty rituals? I'll bet you don't). Just apply Emlin®Mink Oil Essential Creme at bedtime and leave it on while you sleep. That's when it works its wonders, helping to penetrate below the surface of your skin replacing lost natural oils, restoring moisture balance, leaving a beautifully lovely skin you never dreamed possible.

I'm so confident my Mink Oil cream can do marvelous things for your skin. I offer it to you with an unconditional guarantee. Just try it. See for yourself, in your own mirror, how it helps ease away unwanted dreadful lines. Many women wrote of gratifying results after only two weeks. Some take longer. But I want you to understand this. If, for any reason, you are not pleased with Emlin®Mink Oil Essential Creme just return the unused portion to me, and I'll mail you a full refund, plus postage with no questions asked.

Now it's up to you. Here is your chance to have beautiful, attractive skin —at no risk. Fill out the coupon and mail today.

Can Hospitals Cut Costs?

Here Are 10 Ways Suggested by Consumerists:

1. Keep operating rooms and laboratory facilities open nights and weekends.

2. End needless duplication of costly facilities, such as intensive cardiac-care units. (Many communities that could easily get by with one ICCU have three or four.)

3. Full insurance-company coverage of outpatient services.

4. More coverage for extended-care facilities. (Many older patients are hospitalized simply because their insurance doesn't pay for care given in nursing homes and similar institutions.)

5. Limit the number of residents and interns a hospital may employ. (A large part of patients' bills go to pay their salaries.)

6. Hospitals should buy generic drugs rather than their more expensive brand-name equivalents.

7. Pool purchases of equipment and supplies. This would help save a great deal of money.

8. Each hospital should have at least one consumer representative on its board.

9. Liberalization of staff privileges. (A doctor should be permitted to practice in every hospital in his community.)

10. End overbuilding. The typical hospital administrator's "edifice complex" has resulted in the construction of thousands of needless, costly hospital beds.

Hospitals

hospital costs have been so cushioned through medical insurance that the average consumer really doesn't feel the pinch (except, of course, in his steadily rising insurance premiums).

Another way we could all save money is if hospitals would perform more diagnostic procedures and minor surgery in out-patient facilities. But insurance companies often won't cover out-patient treatment. This encourages hospitals to admit patients who really don't need full hospital care.

"I know one institution . . . that pays $7.50 for tape measures it could buy for 25 cents."

There are hospitals that are pointing the way to a brighter future. For example, whereas in most hospitals a private room costs anywhere from $100 a day upward, patients at Memorial Hospital in Long Beach, Calif., pay only $20 a day. The reason? Memorial's special daily unit. Patients scheduled for minor surgery or diagnostic procedures check into the hospital at 7 a.m. By 8 a.m. they've been given the necessary lab tests and presurgical preparations, and by 10 a.m. the operation is over. Most are home in time for dinner.

The 800-bed Albany Medical Center in Albany, N.Y., is also saving patients money. Instead of closing its operating rooms and labs at night and on weekends, the center operates them on a seven-day around-the-clock basis. As a result, the average hospital stay at the institution has been cut from 11.6 days to 8.9 days. That adds up to a savings of over $300 for the average Albany patient.

Baptist Memorial Hospital in Memphis, Tenn., has also been a leader in creating cost-saving programs. In its recently opened special minimal-care unit, blood pressures and temperatures are only taken when a physician requests them. The patients administer their own medications and go to treatments on their own. According to the hospital officials, the elimination of more elaborate forms of care cuts $20 to $30 off each patient's daily bill.

CIDER VINEGAR LECITHIN, KELP & B-6

NOW AVAILABLE IN 4-IN-1 TABLET FORM

"NATURAL FORMULA" The 4 'fabulous' ingredients that everybody is talking about . . .

What is this "NATURAL FORMULA" that everybody is talking about? "NATURAL FORMULA" is the name we've given a specially formulated tablet containing Vitamin B-6, Lecithin and Kelp in a base of Cider Vinegar. The combination of ingredients talked about for weight control in low calorie diets.

Lecithin: A substance derived from vegetable oils that is actually a food, not a drug. In a recent experiment, a doctor found that Lecithin produced a decrease of as much as 30% in cholesterol and at the same time, tended to shift weight from one area of the body to another for a more streamlined silhouette.

Vitamin B-6: The fat-metabolizing vitamin that scientists have found works with body chemicals to balance and regulate body fluids to prevent water retention and bloat.

Kelp: Nature's great food mineral harvested from the ocean and our most reliable source for essential Iodine — so important in burning up fuel to melt fat accumulations away.

Cider Vinegar: Legendary solution used down thru the ages in weight control diets, is the basis for this outstanding new formula.

Why Did They Kill "Dirty Sally"? A Word From "Sally" Herself

"I can tell you honestly, I had no idea of how overwhelming the reaction would be. Wherever John and I go, people come up, and their testimonials about Sally are touching. My Lord, just fabulous. They love her. In my wildest dreams I didn't think she touched people so much."

Pictorial Parade

Jeanette Nolan defines "Dirty Sally": "Sally's real beauty is her spirit."

With their ballots, older readers of FAMILY WEEKLY propelled "Dirty Sally's" Jeanette Nolan to victory over "McMillan & Wife's" Susan Saint James as TV's most popular actress in this year's celebrity survey. But CBS-TV canceled the series only a few weeks later. A network spokesman blamed the show's ratings (it was playing opposite NBC's popular "Sanford and Son"), and pooh-poohed "Sally's" victory in our survey as "probably the result of the network's big promotion campaign." For the other side of that story, FAMILY WEEKLY went directly to "Sally" herself, whom we found living comfortably in her Laguna Beach home with her husband of almost 40 years, the well-known TV actor John McIntyre.

JEANETTE: No, we have two other homes. One is a 43-foot boat we keep at the marina down here and that we take to a marina near Hollywood to live on whenever one of us works there. But our real home is a rustic log cabin in the Yaak Valley of Montana.

FW: Why Montana?

JEANETTE: John was born there. As far as both of us are concerned, Montana is IT.

FW: You mean there is something of the rugged "Dirty Sally" pioneer woman in your own life?

JEANETTE: There always has been. We have a section of land in Montana —640 acres. It's beautiful! We turned the barn into our permanent home. Both our children have log cabins on the ranch. We live there at least half of our lives, and we've done so since we were married in 1935. Once, we quit our careers altogether to live there permanently.

FW: Has John always been an actor?

JEANETTE: No, he was a sailor. He quit Southern Cal after two years to go to sea. He was always sure that if he couldn't make it as an actor, he could make a living as a sailor anytime. That's why he didn't hesitate to quit. That was in 1937. His idea of life, and I agreed with him, was to live in the wilderness. He loved that kind of life and felt sure I would. John is a very nervous, sensitive person. He wanted to get away, to think and write. And that's what he did. He did a play about the sea. Unfortunately, it was never produced.

FW: How involved are you with the ranch?

JEANETTE: Totally. I even helped John build the cabins. I cultivate the land and help with the animals. The nearest neighbor is ten miles away. The only bad part is the bears. Black bears aren't so bad, but the grizzlies are unpredictable. When we first moved up there I wouldn't even go out on the porch alone. I remember one time a grizzly got into our root cellar. I got so mad that he was going to eat up our food, I shot him and then dressed him. Oh, yes, I can do that too.

FW: How did the "Dirty Sally" series get started?

JEANETTE: Originally it was a segment of "Gunsmoke." The producer wanted to make a series of it but the network didn't believe the character could sustain. Two years later the producer went back to New York with 500 of the best letters he'd received after the "Dirty Sally" segment was aired. The network officials asked why he hadn't brought them before, and he said he'd forgotten. So the officials decided to make a test in New York, and the results were so good, they didn't believe it. They still didn't want to go with it as a series until they'd tested it in 30 cities and towns across the country. The results were equally good. So "Dirty Sally" became a series.

FW: Was it a surprise to you that "Dirty Sally" was canceled?

JEANETTE: Oh, my, yes. John and I had gone back to Montana with the understanding that I'd be back to do the show. They told us in the beginning that they'd be happy if we captured 23 percent of the audience against "Sanford and Son." We captured 34 percent. And we ended up among the top 40 shows, which is usually considered good. They even commissioned six one-hour scripts after they'd received so many letters saying, "Please make 'Dirty Sally' an hour show, instead of just a half hour!" And I thought, "Oh, gosh, that would be wonderful. I can do something with it, make Sally grow. . . ."

FW: What was the public's reaction when they learned of the cancellation?

JEANETTE: I can tell you honestly, I had no idea of how overwhelming the reaction would be. Wherever John and I go, people come up, and their testimonials about Sally are touching. My Lord, just fabulous. They love her. In my wildest dreams I didn't think she touched people so much.

FW: What was it about Sally that reached out to them?

JEANETTE: In the beginning, I was afraid she'd be too vulgar and repulsive to appeal. But Sally's real beauty is her spirit. People identified with her courage, her old-fashioned guts and morality. These were inspirational.

FW: Why did CBS cancel the show?

JEANETTE: I've been told the salespeople at CBS couldn't sell it. Sponsors were reluctant. This doesn't sound realistic to me because love is the quality sold in this particular situation. If a man can't sell love to a client, he's a sad salesman. They should show prospective clients the letters we've received—the petitions signed by whole neighborhoods! If these things aren't ammunition enough for a salesman, then I think maybe the sales staff is not as sharp as it ought to be.

FW: Were you personally sorry to have the show cut off?

JEANETTE: Yes, I was. When they first talked to me about the series, John wasn't enthusiastic for me to do it. He'd done series, and he was afraid it would be a drag for me. [Editor's note: John costarred in "Wagon Train" and in "Naked City."] But when he saw the reaction of people, he was thrilled.

FW: Do you feel resentment toward CBS?

JEANETTE: I could never be so naïve as to think things like this never happen. I've worked for CBS almost my entire life, and have sentimental attachments there. But I am also aware how cruel networks can be. "Naked City" ran for 18 months. In the middle of a show, a man walked in and said, "I hope they told you—this is your last show."

FW: Do you think this is the end of Sally?

JEANETTE: There's been talk of reviving her. They've threatened to bring her back on "Gunsmoke"—where she started. It's possible that will be her lifeline.

FW: And what about you—what's next?

JEANETTE: Right now I am working on a two-parter for Disney called "Ragwing." It's a wonderful story. I'm working with Pat O'Brien and Lloyd Nolan, and enjoying every minute. And then we can go back to Montana, and leave all of this behind us.

People Quiz

By John E. Gibson

Does Our "Body Language" Really Give Us Away?

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. If you're trying to determine whether the person talking to you is being deceptive and attempting to hide something, there is one gesture that can often tip you off.

2. Individuals who often touch other people—putting their hands on their arms or shoulders, patting them on the back—usually lack self-esteem.

3. People who "talk with their hands" do so because they lack verbal fluency.

4. It's easy to tell how much someone likes you simply by observing his gestures and movements.

5. People whose hands are seldom still when they talk are likely to be neurotic and emotionally unstable.

6. Women are more inclined than men to overlook the significance of telltale gestures when talking with another person.

ANSWERS

1. True. The gesture is the "hand shrug"—the spreading of the hands with palms upturned in the you-see-I-have-nothing-to-hide gesture. In psychological tests at the University of California, it was found that the "hand shrug" increased to a marked extent in interviews in which subjects were trying to deceive or withhold information from investigators.

2. False—according to the findings of a study of 80 male and female college students which showed that "the higher the subject's self-esteem the more intimate the subject was in communicating through touch, especially when communicating with a female." (Ah, there!) And similar studies conducted by Harvard psychologists showed that "touch privilege is a correlate of status."

3. False. There are exceptions to the rule, of course, but university studies have shown that, as a group, people who "talk with their hands"—who have a high rate of hand movements or gestures—are actually more fluent in their speech than others. Another interesting finding: When the subjects' hands were restrained, it took the people longer to describe a scene or picture.

4. True. Dr. Albert Mehrabian, associate professor of psychology at the University of California, has this to say: "Greater liking is conveyed by standing close to another person instead of far; by leaning forward instead of back when seated in a chair or at a desk; by facing the person directly instead of turning to one side; by touching; by extending bodily contact, as during a handshake; and by prolonged good-byes. . . ."

5. False. Psychological studies at the University of Paris show that people whose speech is accompanied by gestures tend to be outgoing and people-oriented, with well-balanced personalities. The investigators found that "Communicative gestures in general are strongly tied to emotional stability, i.e., the absence of neuroticism."

6. False—as evidenced by university studies which show that women are much more attentive to—and affected by—gestures and other nonverbal signals than men are. And it's noted that a woman's greater sensitivity to this form of communication often causes her to accord it more significance than the words the person is actually speaking.

True or False: Individuals who often touch other people—putting their hands on their arms or shoulders, patting them on the back—usually lack self-esteem. (See number 2)

Now, medical science has the power to say to you:

BEGIN YOUR "MIDDLE YEARS" AT 70, 80, EVEN 90!

retain the strength and grace and power of a trained athlete in your body beyond your seventies . . .

and keep you in vibrant good health till ninety or more . . . even if you feel "rotten" today . . . even if your mother or father died far too young of diseases that are STILL carried in your bloodstream!

Yes, This Medical "Youth-Building Program" is so Strong That It Can Even Overcome Poor Heredity!

It is so strong, in fact, that it may actually make you look twenty or more years younger than your parents did at the same age . . . at the same exact time that it enables you to live thirty or forty years longer than they did!

We realize, of course, that these facts may seem virtually impossible to you at this moment . . . until you are shown the new medical techniques by which these goals are attained! They are:

1. The most powerful "age-reversing mechanism" known to man . . . which takes exactly six minutes per day . . . may be done by any man or woman, no matter how poor their health today . . . and which is bluntly recognized by one of the leading physicians in this book to give far better "youthifying" results — far faster — than even "cell therapy" treatments costing hundreds of dollars apiece!

2. A direct attack on the stored-up emotional poisons in your body that eat away strength and youth like internal acid, and replace them with never-flagging fatigue! This incredibly simple technique drains out those poisons, and that deadly fatigue, in approximately ten of the most revivifying minutes you have ever spent!

And. finally —

3. A new way to lose weight — not a diet — designed to change your present suicidal eating habits in exactly 48 hours! And, to break at last the vicious fat-multiplying cycle inside your body, that causes you to put on more weight, from less food, than your thin friends.

Let Us Repeat Again: These Medical Techniques Are So Powerful That They Actually REVERSE THE AGING PROCESS — WITHOUT DRUGS!

They cause you, quite simply, to grow stronger and not weaker, as you grow older! And here is the medical documentation to prove it:

In tests conducted at a leading University and Medical School in Southern California, it was discovered that life-prolongation, accomplished this way, not only added decades to potential human life spans, but — even more important — also produced vastly increased vitality and vigor, as well as startlingly heightened resistance to dread "senile decline!" (Reported on page 129 of this thrilling new book.)

As a result of scientific observations and experiments conducted in several different locations in the United States (as well as in Europe and Soviet Russia), it was definitely established that these techniques will enable almost any individual to live beyond 90 . . . and even beyond 100 healthy, productive, thoroughly enjoyable years — even if he or she had tragically short-lived parents or grandparents! In other words, disastrous heredity can now be overcome! (See page 36.)

At a leading Gerontology Research Center on the Pacific Coast, its' president bluntly stated that a single one of the techniques given to you here had (in essence): ". . . reversed the aging process and over a period of time restored the characteristics of youth to the bodies of middle-aged men!" (See Page 129.)

And one of his colleagues, discussing the same simple procedure, went so far as to state that it: ". . . relieves joint stiffness, lowers the blood pressure, and reduces the amount of fat in the body tissues. It acts like a miracle drug, and it's free for the doing!" (Italics ours — see page 130.)

But All This Research Documentation Is Only The PROLOGUE To The Real Meat Of This Revolutionary New Book! FOR NOW THE YOUTH-RESTORING PRINCIPLES LEARNED ALL OVER THE WORLD ARE PUT TO WORK — INSTANTLY — FOR YOU!

How to lose weight without counting calories — by harnessing the same exact forces which made you overweight in the first place! (It is not unusual, with these methods, to lose 15 and more pounds the first week — up to 10 pounds the second week — and a good hundred pounds or more, in as little as 15 weeks. And the weight stays off — for decades!)

How to add 10 . . . 20 . . . perhaps even 30 glowing years to your life, simply by avoiding the everyday "Life-Traps" that make you grow old too fast!

How a careful examination of your eye can tell you, with unerring accuracy, if you've eaten the wrong foods that night for dinner . . . and therefore have to give them up for a few days till your body's digestive powers restore themselves to the correct balance!

Little-known-stress-on-the-heart Number 1 . . . that kills unwary thousands every year . . . and can be prevented simply by reading a single sentence on page 70!

"Hungry enzymes" that now infest your body! They are the real reason all past attempts to peel off ugly fat have been such torture for you! And you can "command" your body to destroy them — for good — as simply as this! (See page 82.)

Why most people's muscles simply "melt away" as they grow older! (No wonder "old age" to them means ever-growing weakness!) And how you can stop that muscle-melting process overnight . . . and replace it with vibrant new strength!

And More! And More! And More! Like This —

What really causes vigor to drain out of the "aging" body! A simple fluid that if the body gives up too much of, it then dies of old age! And how you can "pump that vital cell-nourishing fluid" right back into your body . . . actually increase your body capacity to utilize by as much as 133% . . . in just a few thrilling minutes every day!

How to exercise your heart! Anyone — no matter what age— can do it! And prevent the greatest tragedy of all — premature heart attack!

Read the line in the middle of page 144 as though your life depended upon it! Because, if you've ever worried about killing your own heart through the worst possible error you can make — this one line will show you how to avoid it . . . forever!

World's easiest exercise program — for men and women who are pitifully out of shape!

How to avoid the man-made diseases! And save your body, and your nerves, at exactly the same time!

What your sleep, or lack of it, is really telling you! And how to ease yourself into a good night's rest again!

What your fingers tell you that can save your life! Listen to them . . . obey their command . . . and you may be able to out-run your own youngster!

No more nervous breakdowns! And no more un-necessary heart attacks (or strokes!) The technique shown to you on page 197 may banish them from your life — for good!

How to add ten years to your life, by avoiding one little fatal mistake — at night! Before you go to sleep!

How to laugh at old age — at least till you're ninety! A simple program so effective that it may actually cause strangers to think that you are your best friends' grown children!

And Yours To Prove — In Its Entirety — For 30 Days, Entirely At Our Risk!

The choice is yours. This is a book for people who mean business. It costs you nothing! We take all the risk! Fair enough? Why not send in the coupon — TODAY!

SPECIAL ADDED BONUS SECTION

How to survive a heart attack! Why so many heart attacks are the "silent" type, that kill without the victim even being aware he has been seriously ill before! The one warning signal you simply CAN'T ignore! Why HALF of all heart attack victims ACTUALLY KILL THEMSELVES because they just don't know what to do!

Helps Shrink Swelling Of Hemorrhoidal Tissues Due To Inflammation. Relieves Pain And Itch...

There's an exclusive formulation which actually helps shrink the painful swelling of hemorrhoidal tissues caused by infection. In many cases the first applications give prompt, temporary relief from itching and pain in hemorrhoidal tissues.

The sufferer first notices relief from such painful discomfort. Then this medication helps to gently reduce swelling of hemorrhoidal tissues. Tests conducted by doctors on hundreds of patients in New York City, Washington, D.C., and at a Midwest Medical Center showed this to be true in many cases.

The medication used by doctors in these tests was Preparation H®—the same exclusive formula you can buy at any drug counter without a prescription. Preparation H also lubricates the affected area to protect the inflamed, irritated surface and so helps make bowel movements more comfortable.

There is no other formula like Preparation H. In ointment or suppository form.

When your child can't sit still, is it nervousness or is it Pin-Worms?

Fidgeting, distraction, fitful scratching of rectal itch—many people don't know these "nervous habits" can be caused by Pin-Worms. These almost invisible parasites are so common, medical authorities have said 1 out of 3 children examined, and many parents, may have Pin-Worms.

They can infect anyone—young or old, rich or poor. Worst of all, Pin-Worms are highly contagious, so they can spread from person to person, until the whole family is infected.

Fortunately, there is an easy-to-take medication called Jayne's® P-W® tablets that gets rid of Pin-Worms. Your pharmacist will tell you that Jayne's P-W tablets are specially formulated with an effective medical ingredient that drives Pin-Worms out of your system. Ask for Jayne's P-W tablets at your drug store.

BROOKS ROBINSON
Too much pressure

QUOTE: Baseball star Brooks Robinson on a game he'd like to forget: "I've been in over 3,000 ball games in my life—maybe more than 3,500 if I could recollect every game between sandlots and the World Series—and every one of them has left me some kind of memory. One that sticks with me far too firmly is something I did very poorly when I wanted to do so well. I had called my folks the night before we were going to be on a Monday night TV game against the Boston Red Sox and my mother told me it was going to be their 35th anniversary. She said friends were coming over to watch the game and asked me to play well. I was perfect. I went 0 for 5, struck out twice, booted a ground ball for an error and dropped a pop-up. After the game I wrote Mom and told her not to do that to me any more. I couldn't stand the pressure." UNQUOTE. From "My Home Is Third Base," by Brooks Robinson (Word, $5.95).

Caught out in left field when lightning strikes? For years people have been admonished to run away from the trees during a thunderstorm. Now, along comes a German inventor, Dr. Ing Johannes Wiesing, who feels he has the perfect protection — a small tent that can be set up in two minutes. It can withstand a two-million-volt charge, fits into a case and weighs only eight pounds. It consists of four folding tubes to which metallic canvas is attached. The occupant sits on an inflatable seat that holds down the tent — which can withstand winds of 65 to 75 miles an hour. For more information, write Firma Dehn U. Sohne, Nurnberg, Neumarkt, Germany. Playboy Hugh Hefner's steady date, Barbie Benton, thinks her man would be good presidential material. "Hef is highly intelligent and very political minded. He thinks the Presidency would be a step down from being Hugh Hefner, but he would love to take on the job—if only so he could make this country a moral and wonderful place to live. He thinks there are so many nasty shenanigans going on that we need a good man to go in and clean it up. He'd be a good politician because he likes to see everyone happy and he just can't stand the slums. He loves to spend money and would like everyone to have some."

ARMOUR'S ARMOURY
By Richard Armour

ON MY SOLE

I have a pebble in my shoe.
Perhaps you've had a pebble too,
And maybe, between sole and sock,
It felt, as mine does, like a rock
Or as one grows more tender, older,
More like a fairly good-sized boulder.
If so, you know the way, no doubt,
I feel, my shoe off, pebble out,
On finding, if it's found at all,
The thing so very, very small.
I need no bandage, need no ointment;
I feel relief—and disappointment.

Ad in an Indiana weekly paper: "Wanted: Regular baby-sitter. One dollar an hour plus fridge benefits."
—Herm Albright

A son at college wrote his father. "Dear Dad, you haven't sent me a check in two weeks. What sort of kindness is that?" His father replied: "Dear Son, that is called unremitting kindness." —Thomas LaMance

People are law-abiding. The other day the crossing signal flashed DONT ALK. We all crossed, and not one of us alked. —Robert Brault

When asking for a raise, Bill told his boss that several companies were after him. "What companies?" asked the boss. Bill answered: "The gas company, electric company and finance company." —Lucille S. Harper

—Robert Orben

THROUGH A CHILD'S EYES

MARABOU STORK

THE ODD-LOOKING MARABOU BIRD IS THE LARGEST OF THE STORKS. ANOTHER NAME FOR THE MARABOU STORK IS "ADJUTANT STORK." IT GETS ITS MILITARY TITLE FROM ITS STIFF, SOLDIER-LIKE BEARING AND MEASURED STRUT.

THIS WEEK'S TOP PRIZE QUESTION:

MAX WEINMAN OF PANAMA CITY, FL, ASKS:

"HOW IS A BASEBALL MADE?"

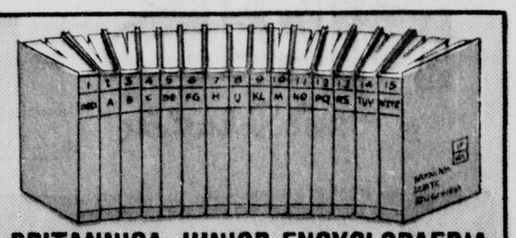

WHEN YOU PLAY WITH A BASEBALL YOU ARE PLAYING WITH A BALL OF YARN THAT HAS A LEATHER COVER WRAPPED AROUND IT. TO MAKE A BASEBALL, THE BALLMAKER STARTS BY WRAPPING A SMALL CORK BALL WITH A RUBBER COVER. HE CALLS THIS THE "PILL." NEXT, A MACHINE TIGHTLY WINDS MANY YARDS OF YARN AROUND THE PILL UNTIL IT IS ABOUT AS BIG AS A BASEBALL. AFTER DIPPING THE BALL OF YARN INTO A TUB OF GLUE, THE BALL MAKER SEWS TWO STRIPS OF WHITE LEATHER OVER IT, MUCH LIKE LACING YOUR SHOES.

Polly's Pointers

DEAR POLLY — Before washing white tennis shoes, I dampen them with cold water and brush salt into the canvas with a toothbrush. I let them stand for about 10 minutes and then wash. — KELLY.

DEAR POLLY — When preparing a dish that calls for a small amount of grated cheese I use a potato peeler rather than messing up the big grater. — JO ANN.

Polly pays $1.00 for every idea used. Send them to her, % this newspaper.

DEAR POLLY — Styrofoam trays that meat comes on are great for holding scouring pads, steel wool and other such things I keep for using at the kitchen sink. — THELMA.

DEAR POLLY — Before cleaning a butter or margarine container, I wipe it out with a slice of bread or some of the cubes I make from left-over bread to use on casseroles, in meat loaf, etc. Not a drop of the spread is wasted. — GLADY's.

DEAR POLLY — No-longer-needed fabric eyeglass cases make great sleeping bags for small dolls. Such cases are shaped like pockets so that the glasses (or the dolls) slip in one end. — CINDY.

DEAR POLLY — I save plastic bottles of all sizes. By cutting them at the base or any place between the base and neck I have funnels of all sizes. — A.D.M.

DEAR POLLY — I lay my grater across a heated burner on the stove before grating cheese and find the cheese does not stick so badly to the heated grater. Of course, the grater must then be handled with a potholder. — MARTHA.

DEAR POLLY — When opening a can of fruit or vegetables that has a lot of liquid (such as beets), first punch a hole in the top with a bottle opener, pour off most of the juice and avoid that splash made by the can opener. — LOUISE.

DEAR POLLY — Before traveling with baby, put each disposable diaper in a plastic bag. After the diaper is used put it back in this bag, tie and dispose of it in the proper place. — JEANNINE.
